TO IMPROVE RURAL ROADS

County Commissioners Are Willing to Proceed With the Work.

PEOPLE ASKED TO DECIDE

A Tax Levy of One Mill, or Perhaps Less, Is Thought to Be Sufficient.

MANY ENDORSE THE MOVE

To the residents of that portion of St. Clair township bordering on the Calcutta road is due the credit of starting a movement, tardy as it is, that will eventually result in the improvement of every country road in Columbiana county. The agitation has been persistent and the farmers in that locality now have the assurance that sooner or later, if they will perform their part, they will be enabled to drive from their homes to East Liverpool without the danger of becoming fast in the mud on the country road several miles from town.

The residents of other rural localities have watched the progress of the agitation with interest, and the result has been that the county commissioners are now very seriously considering a plan whereby the farmers in every section of the county will be benefited. The determination on the part of the board this week to improve the road leading past Hibbett's mill to Coal hollow is a good one, and indicates that the members propose to go as far as their limited means will permit in the work of road improvements. Their experience, covering a period of five years, however, has taught them that the sort of materials used during that time will not do and an effort will be made to introduce something more substantial and durable than planks. The improvement will include the repairing of the floor of the bridge over Little Yellow creek, and it may be that the planks will be replaced with new ones and that a layer of concrete will be put in.

The commissioners have been hampered in no small degree by the lack of funds with which to carry on the work of road improvement. It may not be generally known to many, but it is a fact that there has never been a specific levy for the improvement of highways. The county authorities have never had what is known as a road fund, and every cent that has been used for this purpose has been taken from the bridge fund. This would seem a trifle irregular, but it was the only way the board could see around the question.

A large number of prominent farmers and others residing in cities have been studying the problem for a long time, and can come to but one conclusion. That is, to create a fund for the purpose of grading and putting in shape for their paving or macadamizing the roads leading into the principal cities and towns of the county. The commissioners can do nothing along this line, no matter what their personal feeling might be in the matter, without funds. It has been suggested that the commissioners make a levy for road improvements, and that the fund so acquired be used for that purpose and no other. Nearly all of the counties in the state have this apportionment to draw from, and the excellent driveways in those localities will stand as evidence of the good work done.

It is admitted that Columbiana is far behind its sister counties in the matter of improved roads, and the reason is apparent when it is known there has been no fund for this specific purpose. Several members of the board of county commissioners have been interviewed, and while they are very much in favor of doing something to better the condition of the roads, assert they are unable to proceed under the present circumstances. W. K. George, one of the commissioners, made a statement last evening which will be worth hearing. Mr. George, being a farmer himself, is very much in favor of the move, and does not hesitate to express his views on the subject. He said:

"The commissioners are unanimous in their opinion that the roads should be improved, but without a special levy can do nothing. We had thought that a fund might be created by the levying of one mill. It may be that a half mill would be sufficient for the present, but there must be a fund to start with. With the money acquired in this manner grading can be done and hills cut away, so that the people can go ahead with the paving or macadamizing whenever they see fit. It could not be expected that our board would be in shape to do more than grade within the first few years, and they could only perform this work where the country roads were much traveled; in other words, those thoroughfares leading into the cities and towns. The highways less traveled could be given attention later on, but it is a fact that the main county roads are a disgrace, and will have to be fixed very soon in some manner. It is my opinion that the average taxpayer could stand the extra levy better now than at any time in many years. What we are endeavoring to ascertain just now is whether or not the people want the improvement. If they do, they will certainly expect to pay for it, and the only way this can be brought about is through a levy. If the taxpayers want the roads graded and improved we are more than willing to comply. An effort is being made to feel the public pulse, and as soon as we are satisfied that the citizens of the county are willing to stand the additional taxation there will be no further delay."

POPE MAY LIVE SEVERAL DAYS

Showed Marked Improvement Following a Second Severe Operation.

AT PRAYER WHEN FOUND

Rome, July 10.—(Special)—The pope's physicians say he may live several more days. A second operation was performed and a large quantity of serum was extracted from the pleural cavity. The pontiff bore the operation well. Respiration and heart action showed a marked improvement. After the operation he rested tranquily in the library.

Shortly after sunrise, when Dr. Lapponi approached the illustrious patient's bed, he found him with hands clasped and in the attitude of prayer. In answer to the physician's query if he needed anything his holiness replied: "Today finishes a week since I was taken ill. I am thanking God for having given me strength to still pray to Him."

A third physician, Dr. Rossoni, has been called in to consult with Drs. Lapponi and Mezzoni, the relapse of yesterday necessitating this action.

Following advices from the vatican, the cardinals throughout the world are hurrying Romeward, anticipating the holding of a conclave for the choice of the pope. These preparations are being undertaken in a spirit of profound grief and as the performance of a sacred duty.

NO MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

Held Last Evening, Although a Call Had Been Issued—Business Neglected.

Owing to the absence from the city of three members of council, President Horwell, Barlow and Cannon, the meeting called for last evening was not held. As a result the several very important questions to have been acted upon are still hanging fire, and it is possible that the city fathers will be called to task for their negligence.

It was expedient that some disposition be made of the tax levy, it being a requirement of the code that it be submitted to the county auditor by July 10. The ordinance providing for the creation of offices under the fire and police heads were due to have been passed and the report on Pennsylvania avenue is scheduled for acceptance.

UNIFORM SYSTEM

Of Accounting to Be Inaugurated. Expert Here to Explain Methods.

G. H. McKenzie, an expert accountant connected with the department of the auditor of state, arrived in the city this morning and spent most of the day at city hall.

He is here to inaugurate the uniform system of accounting among the city officials.

He started with Auditor Davidson and will continue his stay in the city until every official has learned the system.

DULL TIMES ON THE FOURTH

Will Result Hereafter If Safety Board Idea Is Carried Out.

DESTRUCTIVE EXPLOSIVES

Were Discussed by Board and Recommendations to the City Council.

MAY BE THE FINAL RESULT

Dull times on future holidays may be the fate of the little boy in the Crockery City. It is possible that there will be no more shooting of fire crackers; no more Roman candles, no more sky rockets and, in fact, a Fourth of July celebration in this city may not be again a day looked forward to by the fun-loving and innocent urchin in anticipation of the glorious, old-time demonstration. To the board of public safety can be given the credit for the agitation of the abolishment of such celebrations.

D. M. Ogilvie, a member of the board, brought up for discussion at the meeting last evening the question. He stated that something should be done, and that immediately to prevent the sale of explosives next year. It was not, however, his idea to prevent all of the pleasure generally derived from the indulgence in fire works. He simply advocates the abolishment of destructive displays. Nevertheless it having been decided by the board to have the following city ordinance rigidly enforced, there can be but one result—no fire works of any kind:

"No person or persons shall burn, set fire to or shoot off any sky rockets, Roman candles, Chinese fire crackers, or any kind of fire works of any description whatsoever or by whatever name known or cast, throw or cause to be exploded any torpedoes or any other explosive material by whatever name or names known; provided, however, that the council may by resolution permit experienced persons to make on special occasions, pyrotechnic displays at such places and under regulations as may be prescribed by council."

The above ordinance governs every explosive used on the national holiday and if enforced will surely put a stop to the customary manner of celebration. It was argued by the board that the ordinance should be enforced to prevent a repetition of the damage incurred in the city on last Saturday. The amount lost as the result of the big crackers aggregated at least $200 and numerous people were badly hurt.

For the protection of both property and lives, the board took the matter under advisement. It took no definite step and will investigate the question for another week before final action. It is thought the members will by that time decide on a recommendation to council to change the ordinance so that its enforcement will work only against the more destructive explosives.

DIFFERENT STORY TOLD BY CONSTINE

MAN BOUND OVER FOR HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Confessed to Chief Wyman While Going to Lisbon—Light on Subject.

Chief Wyman returned last evening from Lisbon, where he took John Constine, the Irish section hand, who was bound over to court by Mayor Weaver on a charge of highway robbery. The chief states that he had no trouble whatever in landing his prisoner in the county jail.

While en route Constine talked freely, and if the story he told of the robbing of H. O. Sampsell be true the latter's statement to the press and at police headquarters was concocted to shield himself irrespective of the jeopardy into which he cast Constine. Constine said that he met Sampsell early in the afternoon and that they had several drinks together at the National House. Sampsell, said he, insulted a woman at the hotel and was compelled to make a hasty exist. Constine then said:

"I followed him and we both went to the upper side of the freight station and there drank a pint of whisky which Sampsell had bought. Sampsell then asked me to walk up the track with him. I consented and upon arriving at the Spring on Thompson's green he said he would like to have another pint of liquor. I told him I would go after it and he reached in his pocket to get me the money. What cause I me to do it I do not know, but when he produced his wallet I grabbed the money and started up the track. Both of us were pretty drunk and that is the only reason I can give for my foolish act. Just think, I won't get less than 15 years for the job and I could earn the amount I stole in four days."

PROBATE COURT

Lisbon, July 10.—(Special)—Anna L. Dickey, having resigned as administratrix with the will annexed, of the estate of the late David Evans, of Elkrun township, John Patterson has been appointed administrator de bonis non, with the will annexed, under bond of $1,200. There will be no appraisement.

The will of the late Philip Meister, of Franklin township, has been filed for probate and the application is set for hearing Saturday, July 18.

Circus Is Stranded.

Salem, July 10.—The H. A. Mann's circus, which exhibited here last Friday night, has stranded at Leetonia. It showed there Wednesday night to a small audience and yesterday it was still there. The show was to have exhibited at Columbiana yesterday, but owing to continued bad business on the part of those in front of the aggregation it is now on the rocks.

Population Increased.

Lisbon, July 10.—(Special)—The assessors' returns show that from April 1, 1902, to April 1, 1903, there were born in Columbiana county 612 males and 553 females a total of 1,165. During the same period there were 538 deaths, 285 being males. The births exceeded the deaths 627.

MAKING FAST PROGRESS ON DOUBLE TRACK WORK

Pittsburg, July 10.—Work on the double-tracking of the Cleveland & Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania lines west is progressing so rapidly that the officials expect to have it completed sooner than was planned when the work was begun on January 17. It was then thought that it would require 15 months for its completion. An official of the railroad company said yesterday that the entire division would be double-tracked and both tracks in service by January 1 next. The reconstruction of the Cleveland & Pittsburg has involved some exceedingly difficult engineering problems. The contracting company now engaged in the double-track work has contracts for building a second track between Rochester and Cleveland, a distance of nearly 125 miles.

There is a total of 62 bridges to be double-tracked. This is a much larger number of such structures than is usual on the same mileage as that of the Cleveland & Pittsburg. The longest bridge is across the Little Beaver river. Most of the others are short, but many of them are high above the stream beds and will require a large amount of costly masonry for the sub-structures.

The total cost of the work will aggregate nearly $8,000,000. It is the largest double-tracking contract awarded by the Pennsylvania for years. The increased and increasing traffic over the Cleveland & Pittsburg has been calling for more track facilities for two years. The Pennsylvania had completed plans for the second track in January, 1902, but owing to the evidences of the freight congestion which were then apparent it was decided to delay the beginning of the work until freight conditions had fallen back to normal.

At the present time the traffic on the division is enormous, considering the track facilities available for use. During the past two weeks a condition approaching that of an entire freight blockade prevailed for two days. This was caused partly by the necessity for a large and quick movement of freight to lake ports and partly by impediments due to the improvement work. A total of nearly 60 miles of the second track bed has been graded. Two bridges have been double-tracked, and these two are the longest bridges on the division. Unless some unexpected obstacle arises the entire division will be double-tracked by the end of the present year.

THE RECORD IS SMASHED

Three Members of Board of Public Safety Attend to Business.

MANY BILLS CONSIDERED

LOOKING FOR POSITIONS

The board of public safety, three members strong, President Grafton, Ogilvie and Dawson, met in the council chamber, city hall, last evening and succeeded in breaking the record for the length of time in session. In less than an hour the members had disposed of the business before them. Mr. Taylor, although in the city, was not present.

The first business taken up by the board was the consideration of numerous bills. The majority of them were approved and ordered paid. In regard to the bill of H. E. Moon, councilman, who sold feed to the city to the amount of $103.20, half of which falls to the safety board for payment, no action was taken, it being the opinion of two members that the solicitor's advice should be asked for. Grafton said that he thought it should be paid because Moon had sold the feed cheaper than it could have been purchased from any other dealer in the city. Ogilvie was of the same opinion, but Dawson stated that if it is unlawful to pay the bill it should be held up and his motion to get the solicitor to make a statement carried. It will be remembered that the board of public service turned down its portion of the bill, and as yet it has not approved it. The contention is that an official of the city cannot make a contract with the city. Moon and others argue that it was no contract.

Among the big batch of bills approved were those of the police and firemen, who will receive their money in good time. Ex-Chief Thomas V. Thompson's bill of $1.50 for feeding prisoners was turned down, it having no o. k. attached. The bill will likely be paid at the next meeting.

There having been no meeting of council since the preceding meeting of the board, none of the members were able to state in what light the councilmen are looking upon the appointment of a night watchman for city hall. As a result President Grafton appointed Ogilvie and Dawson a committee to confer with the honorable body regarding the question. While discussing the matter President Grafton introduced the idea of drafting rules by which prisoners confined in the city jail must be governed. He stated that the interior of the jail is going to be placed in first-class condition and in order that prisoners be restrained from defacing the walls and cells he thought stringent rules should be made. It was finally decided to have Grafton act with the chief of police in compiling them.

There was but one committee to report. Grafton had been inspecting the East End, and in regard to the placing of a fire plug for the people who petitioned the board at the last meeting, he stated that he thought the people needed at least one plug. For one entire block the residences are absolutely without fire protection. Chief Morley was authorized to locate the plug and have it set.

Three applications for positions were accepted and filed. William E. Moore wants to be a policeman; T. M. Shay would like to become a fire laddie and J. R. Turnbull is ambitious to become one of the finest.

A HEAVY RAIN AFFORDED RELIEF

To Sweltering Citizens and Cleansed the Streets—Mercury Took Tumble.

This morning's rain was perhaps the heaviest of the season and came as a great relief to sweltering citizens. Another appreciable result was the thorough cleansing of the streets and the marked drop o mercury was most welcome.

Tanyard run was on a rampage and had the rain continued for a short time longer considerable damage would have resulted. At the Armour building on West Market street the muddy waters swirled around the foundation on the eastern side, reaching almost to the windows.

The people who live along the stream are particularly thankful for the shower. In the vicinity of the West End pottery the filth, carried down the stream, as a result of it being used as a sanitary sewer, had been sending forth a sickening odor since the advent of the hot weather. Most of the foul smelling refuse was carried away by the rushing water.

Wilson's drug store in East End was flooded and slight damage resulted.

WATCH STOLEN

Huckster Reported to Officers That Miscreant Touched His Vest.

John M. Wilson, the well known huckster of Avondale street, appeared at city hall this morning and reported the loss of a gold watch. He stated that he was at work in a building in the East End yesterday and that the watch was stolen from his vest, which he had discarded, owing to the extreme heat. He did not discover the loss until nearly home last evening.

Whoever stole it wanted only the watch, as he did not disturb the chain.

THE NEWS REVIEW VOTING CONTEST

Grows in Interest and Has Already Passed the 30,000 Mark.

HOW CANDIDATES STAND

The News Review voting contest is becoming more popular every day, and the last end of the fight promises to be intensely interesting. It is conceded on every hand that there never was so generous an offer from any publication in this section of the state, and the candidates and their friends are showing their appreciation by bringing in the votes by the hundreds.

As will be noted by the figures published each day, the number of votes being received is large, and it will not be long until all the readers have passed the 30,000 mark. Since the extremely hot weather set in the candidates have redoubled their efforts, the prospects of spending a few weeks on the lakes or some days on shipboard having spurred the aspirants to harder work.

Team Has Withdrawn.

Martin's Ferry, July 10.—At the meeting of the Vigilant hose company they passed a resolution to withdraw from the Northeastern Ohio Volunteer Firemen's association. The reason for this action was that the members did not believe in paying out the membership fee when they have no running team or anything else to be benefited by remaining longer in the association.

Judge Boone in Harness.

Salem, July 10.—Ex-Probate Judge J. C. Boone is engaged in fixing up his offices over Hanna & Kridler's office with the view of again taking up his office practice. The rooms will be neatly fitted out and he will again turn his attention to business after a long rest.

PEST HOUSE MUCH WANTED

In the Opinion of Members of the Local Board of Health.

BOARD SCHEDULED TO MEET

This Evening—In Addition to Pest House Question Garbage Matter May

COME UP FOR FINAL ACTION

There will be a meeting of the board of health this evening, at which many matters of interest to the public will be discussed and possibly acted upon. The garbage question, one that has baffled the board for years, will be given another whirl. It is the intention of the board to finally dispose of the question if possible.

The members will likely decide upon a recommendation to council regarding the garbage question. They have had it under study for several weeks and are of the opinion that the only solution of the problem is to make a contract with some person to handle and dispose of every bit of garbage produced in the city. Sanitary Policeman Burgess has given the matter much careful thought and he states that the board can do nothing else. Every day he has numerous complaints from residents who want their garbage removed. They are willing to have it hauled at their own expense, but in some cases they can get no one to do the work.

If a contract is made with one person he will be compelled to haul the garbage from the residence at least once a week, and where necessary, twice. The general objection to the present manner of disposing of the filth is based upon the action of the majority of haulers. They will not cart the garbage for a long distance, and when people living in second and third stories ask for a wagon they can not get it.

Another important question to be considered is that providing for the erection of a pest house. It is argued by the members of the board that a house of the kind will pay for itself in less than a year and that it is an absolute necessity. During the present year the board has paid out enough money to build three houses, and it is tired of the proposition. The largest bill to be presented tonight will be one incurred as the result of the contagious disease in the East End, and it is stated that had the city a pest house the bill would only be half as large.

On the outskirts of the city are several locations that would be favorable for pest house sites, and they may also be considered.

WOMAN KILLED

By Train on Pennsylvania—Was Well Known in East Liverpool.

Cambridge Springs, July 10.—(Special.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Hessen was struck by train No. 5, on the Pennsylvania railroad, and almost instantly killed. Mrs. Hessen's home was at Letart, W. Va., and she was known to many in East Liverpool.

The remains were taken to Freedom to await the arrival of relatives from her home, who were at once notified of the accident.

Mrs. Spaulding Buried.

Salem, July 10.—Private funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Anna Spaulding, who was killed by a Garfield avenue street car Tuesday evening, were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home in Garfield avenue. Rev. H. W. Dewey, of the M. E. church, officiated. Burial followed in Hope cemetery.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

HAS LEFT GOODWIN'S.

A well-known trade journal has the following announcement concerning a local pottery salesman:

"J. Lee Richards, the well known traveling salesman of the Goodwin Pottery company, East Liverpool, O., has left this firm and will take charge of the china and house furnishing departments of the Bass Dry Goods company, the large wholesale dealers in Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Richards will do the buying and managing of these lines.

"The china and house furnishing departments are located on the fifth floor, but under the able supervision of the new manager they will be removed to the basement, which is being remodeled and improved in many ways. They expect this change to be completed by July 7. Their stock of dinner ware, toilet ware, bric-a-brac, etc., will be greatly enlarged, as the company intends to make this line a specialty.

"Mr. Richards is known to a large number of the trade, who wish him much success in his new position. He was with the Bennett Pottery company, of Baltimore, Md., at one time."

POTTERY AS PREMIUMS.

A number of eastern newspaper publishers are offering dinner sets, usually consisting of 46 or 48 pieces, for every new subscription that is accompanied by the payment of $1 and the additional 12 cents every week for a year. These installments represent an expenditure of $7 or $8 on the part of the subscriber, but the latter, besides being furnished for a year with a newspaper that would ordinarily cost between $3 and $4 also obtains a serviceable dinner set.

This new departure has struck the popular fancy as is evidenced by the tremendous quantity of goods being circulated through these channels. The scheme originated in Philadelphia, and the craze has spread with astonishing rapidity.

This wholesale presentation of dinner sets threatens to have an even more disastrous effect on the legitimate sale of crockery than the scheme trade of the other concerns that preceded the newspaper in the field, and is causing considerable worry in the ranks of legitimate dealers.

A LATE FAD.

London is at present passing through a craze for finger bowls. These adjuncts are more ornate in design and more dainty in appearance than ever before. And in consequence they are more fashionable than ever before. It is quite the thing now to introduce two sets of finger bowls in the course of one ceremonious dinner, one after the salad and one following the dessert. A charming idea is to float on the water contained in the finger bowls a tiny flower or two, a spring of heliotrope or a violet. Each bowl stands on a delicate little saucer of the same ware as itself.

Persian decorations, so long evident in dress trimmings, upholsteries and wall paper, are now obtaining in tableware, some beautiful dessert, entree and game plates being thus decorated. Medallions, delicate in tracery as though made of lace, adorn the newest soup plates, in color combinations of green and gold.

OUTSIDE PLANTS.

The Steubenville pottery is preparing to re-open within the next 10 days, when repairs will be completed. The fact that none of the plants will be affected by labor troubles has met with a wave of relief. The La Belle and Wheeling potteries will resume Monday, after an idleness of about two weeks for repairs. The claymakers will go to work Friday in order to have enough clay made by Monday so that the plants may be put in full blast at once. It is very likely that the Wavwick plant will resume Monday also.

POTTERY BUILDING COMPLETED.

Salem, July 10.—Charles Lacy, of this city, who had the contract for the brick work on the new pottery which is being built at Carrollton by the Carrollton Pottery company, has completed his work and returned to this city. The building of this pottery is 406x128, and in places two stories in height. Mr. Lacy and his force of men were at work on the building for three months.

FILLING-IN WILL BE SLOW.

It is probable that the decorators, particularly the fillers-in, will have but little work to do until the end of the summer. At least there will not be orders enough to keep all in the trade steadily employed. The encroachments of decalcomania work is being keenly felt by the fillers-in.

WEST END WORKING.

The West End pottery has started again, being one of the first plants in the city to get under way since the loaf. There is promise of a very busy season at the West End and the improvements recently made will help materially to get the orders out on time.

SALEM PLANT TO START.

Salem, July 10.—The Salem China company will not be started until July 20. The shut down will be longer than originally intended for the reason that the company has been unable to obtain enough bricklayers to make the necessary repairs. The kilns are being repaired with arches and cut work.

AMONG THE DEALERS.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by J. J. Forsyth, Atlanta, Ga.

The firm of Rottman & Zucker, Milwaukee, Wis., is reported in financial difficulties.

Frank Kern, proprietor of the Mattoon Department store, Mattoon, Ill., has sold out.

George K. Reed & Co., Fall River, Mass., are trying to compromise with their creditors at 20 cents on the dollar.

J. W. Slater, Traverse City, Mich., has bought out C. O. Smith, of Thompsonville, Mich., and will conduct the store there as a branch of Traverse City.

A petition in bankruptcy against D. Laffler, Norfolk, Va., has been dismissed, Laffler having settled with the petitioners on a basis of 25 cents on the dollar.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by the P. H. Snook & Austin Furniture company, Atlanta, Ga. The liabilities are scheduled at between $25,000 and $30,000 and the assets at about $5,000.

H. B. Sahler, doing business under the name of the Enterprise Furniture & Carpet company at Joliet, Ill., has been succeeded by a corporation under the same name with an authorized capital stock of $25,000.

The W. T. Ladd Trading company, Fort Worth, Tex., and the Cleburne Furniture company, of Cleburne, Tex., have consolidated at Fort Worth under the name of the Ladd Furniture & Carpet company, with a paid up capital stock of $15,000.

INJUNCTION

Secured Against the C. & P. in the Jefferson County Courts.

Steubenville, July 10.—If injunctions continue to be filed against the C. & P., extra records will be necessary in the court house. Yesterday the county commissioners obtained an injunction against the C. & P., Glenn Run Coal company, T. J. Stringer and David Carpenter, to prevent the company from building a track on a county road that runs from the Ohio river to Hopewell Hill in Warren township and then from Hopewell Hill to a point near New Alexandria.

Now the company is laying stakes to put down a branch track from the Ohio river, near the mouth of Rush Run, to the New Alexandria and Smithfield turnpike, near the Franklin school house, and it threatens to grade, fill and construct tracks without any lawful authority. If the work is further prosecuted it will do irreparable damage to the county road.

The matter was presented to Judge Kerr by Prosecutor Alban and an injunction was granted preventing the contractor from grading or digging or in any way changing the course of the water way.

The road being built is for the purpose of tapping the new coal fields near New Alexandria and Smithfield.

MAY LOSE AN ARM

A Pleasant Heights Boy Submitted To An Operation for Tuberculosis.

The local physicians yesterday performed a very delicate operation upon Harry, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Wood, of Pleasant Heights. The lad has been afflicted with tuberculosis for a long time. The disease fastened upon his left arm, and an operation was necessary. It was thought at first that they would have to amputate the arm, but as an experiment, the operation was gone through with.

The lad stood the ordeal fairly well, but is very ill today from the shock. In case the operation fails to prove successful, the arm will be amputated later.

The Store That Saves You Money.

Young Couples

can get their first lesson in economy by buying their outfits here.

We know exactly what we're talking about. We know our prices can not be matched in this city.

This may sound like boasting, but that does'nt alter the facts in the case. We are ready to bear out everything we say if you will come and look at the goods.

We court the fullest comparisons of prices and qualities.

On Tuesday, July 14th,

We're going to place on sale between 3 and 4 hundred salesmen's samples of Brussels, Velvets and Axminister Carpets, they are all a yard and a half long and at the price we're going to sell them they will surely interest you. If you want a good rug for little money now's your chance.

Come—have a look—ask your friends about us, they buy here.

Reasoning Power In Animals.

Animal intelligence, though not necessarily higher in degree when they are acting as our servants and not for their own ends, is then very much more easily approached and understood by us. The "point" is a curious example of an action in which instinct and reason meet. The stopping of the dog, however it began, has by training and heredity become instinctive. The dog, even when quite a puppy, stops when it smells the game and remains almost paralyzed, its impulse to rush in and seize it being checked by a strong instinct to stand still. Yet the dog, after he had accompanied his master and had game shot over him, is quite aware that he is a half controlled "medium," and while still under the dominating "pointing" instinct will look round imploringly to his master to urge him to hurry up if the scent tells him that the birds are moving. A border line action of a different kind is the squatting of young birds. It is a perfectly reasonable precaution. Keeping still and lying low are not characteristics peculiar only to Br'er Rabbit, but it is most remarkable to see the way in which tiny peewits or little teal, hardly bigger than a fluffy bee, lie down, put their little chins flat on the ground and remain motionless for minutes to avoid being seen.

EAST END

EAST ENDERS HAVE FORTUNE IN OIL

Leaseholds Near Marietta Increasing in Value—Big Prices Offered for Them.

Several East End people who hold leases on oil property in the Marietta oil district seem to have very profitable investments, as paying wells are being drilled in on all sides of their leaseholds. The Marietta territory is being developed very rapidly and there seems to be oil throughout that entire section, as the drillers have been almost uniformly successful.

Tom McCormick, a well known East Ender, recently returned from Marietta, where he was looking after his own leases and those held by several others. One Marietta operator made an offer of $1,000 cash for the lease owned by Dr. R. J. Marshall. The offer will not be considered, as it is thought that the lease is worth much more than the price offered.

FATAL RESULT OF WARD'S INJURIES

Sebring Lad, Injured on the Fourth, Died Yesterday from Blood Poisoning.

Earle, the 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ward, of Sebring, whose serious illness was noted in yesterday's News Review, died yesterday morning from blood poisoning. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the Presbyterian church at Sebring, and the interment will be made in Quaker Hill cemetery.

Mrs. John J. Bell, an aunt of the dead boy, left for Sebring this morning, and her husband and sister, Miss Dilcey Ward, will leave this evening to attend the services.

The lad was quite a favorite among his playmates and his frank and manly deportment won him the esteem of all. He was a member of the Sunday school of the Sebring Presbyterian church.

DISTURBED BY SHOTS

St. George Street People Thought Battle With Burglars Was in Progress.

Residents of upper St. George street were greatly alarmed at a late hour last night by a number of pistol shots that disturbed the usual quietude of the locality. From just what point the shots were fired could not be determined. Several residents thought that burglars had been detected in the act of entering some house and that a battle was in progress. The numerous depredations lately of this nature was the principal foundation for the burglar theory.

The matter has not been reported to the police, although news of it came to them unofficially. From the failure to make complaint it is thought the shots were fired by roisterers.

NO TRACK LAID

Owing to Lack of Material—Rails Are Now Being Unloaded.

Track laying on the new electric line along little Beaver creek, projected by L. W. Healy and associates, has not been commenced, although the rails are being transported to the scene. So far the necessary ties for this purpose have not been received, which accounts for the delay.

The rails are being unloaded from the cars at the foot of Broadway and deposited at the eastern terminal of the line.

Married at Huntington.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah McCormick, of Chafinville, arrived in the East End last evening from Huntington, W. Va., and are the guests of relatives until they can go to housekeeping. When Mr. McCormick left the East End before the Fourth he was a bachelor and the announcement that he had married a Huntington young lady comes as a surprise to his many friends, who are now hastening to extend congratulations.

Two Games Yesterday.

The East End Grays won a one-sided ball game yesterday afternoon from a picked nine by a score of 13 to 4. Levi Bolton pitched a good game for the Grays, while Stilwell for the other side was hit hard. Another game between a St. George street team and one from Chafinville played, the latter losing by a score of 9 to 3.

Mrs. Annie Green, an esteemed resident of Bridgeport, tried to commit suicide by taking laudanum, but a physician succeeded in saving her life. Her husband left Bridgeport two months ago and nothing has been heard from him since, and the anxiety and suspense caused her to become despondent and weary of life.

SMALLPOX

Is Spreading in Brooke County And Residents Are Alarmed at the Prospects.

Brooke county has another case of smallpox. The victim is Joseph Hukill, a son of James Hukill, of Buffalo creek. The young man had been working as mine boss at Carnegie, Pa., and came home last week to visit his parents. While at work in the harvest field Saturday the young man was taken seriously ill and Dr. Weirick, the family physician, found him to have symptoms of smallpox. Yesterday the case developed and the home was placed under quarantine this morning.

Ex-Postmaster John E. Reese, of Lazearville, is dangerously ill from paralysis. He became totally paralyzed yesterday morning and has been unable to speak or move since. Little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Job A. Lewis, of Maplewood, on Buffalo creek, has been ill for several days and showed at first symptoms of smallpox, much to the alarm of his friends and the force of state line workmen who are boarding at his home. Later the case has developed into measles and has been pronounced as such by the attending physician.

BODY FOUND

Remains of Ed Delehanty Recovered from Niagara And Are Identified.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 10.—The body found in the river below the falls yesterday was identified at Drummondsville yesterday afternoon as that of Ed Delehanty, the famous outfielder of the Washington American league team.

The body was mangled. One leg was torn off, presumably by the propeller of the Maid of the Mist, near whose landing the body was found. M. A. Green, a stockholder in the Washington team, identified the body by the teeth, two crippled fingers, and the clothing. The body was shipped to Washington last night.

Every effort will be made to investigate the death, as some of Delehanty's relatives place no stock in the suicide theory.

Years of suffering relieved in a night. Itching piles yield at once to the curative properties of Doan's Ointment. Never fails. At any drug store, 50 cents.

The Columbus Press, at present a Democratic organ, turned by hand, and which is in danger of being gobbled up by the Scripps-McRae league, after a great deal of hemming and hawing, concludes that Congressman Gill did not resign on account of ill health notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Gill says so. The chances are that Mr. Gill knows more about this matter than does the Press, and it must be admitted that all Democratic organs have more imagination than gray matter. The Press has been "off the trail" several times. Some time ago, after having "flew de coop" the paper was put back on the Democratic switch but not without great expenditure of both cash and effort. Since it has "entered the fold" the Press has carried a motto something like this nailed to its masthead: "Without a mission and with a muzzle." We may not have the words arranged exactly as the Press might wish, but are willing to guarantee they are all in the sentence and apparently more appropriate than when placed Press-fashion.

Those who did not read last evening's News Review had no means of knowing that the board of review completed its work. Incidentally speaking, there were numerous other stories of the day's doings in yesterday's News Review to be found in no other publication. All told, this paper contained at least half a dozen exclusive news stories last evening and any amount of items appearing in no other paper. The superiority of the News Review over all other local newspapers was never more strongly emphasized than last evening.

While it is always well for owners having real estate for sale to get as much as possible for it, in some cases exorbitant prices asked for property have possibly kept mighty good industries from locating here. If possible to do so it might be wise for the board of trade to secure control over land suitable for factory sites which could be used when necessary.

"One Yale students lived a year on $100," says the Ohio State Journal, "while another spent $11,000 in the same time. It is a pretty safe bet that the former has a fuller mind and the latter a bigger head."

OBITUARY

Mrs. Delia Dobbins.

Mrs. Delia Dobbins, wife of Harry Dobbins, kilnhand at the Cartwright pottery, died at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Massillon hospital, where she has been confined since last October. Dr. Eyeman notified the husband of the wife's decease and arrangements were at once made to have the body brought here for burial. The deceased leaves, besides a husband, three sons and one daughter. The body arrived in the city last evening and the funeral will be held from St. Aloysius Catholic church at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. Interment in the Catholic cemetery.

HOME AFFAIRS

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature and of Matters About Town.

Son Is Ill—A little son of Architect A. W. Scott is seriously ill as the result of complications following measles.

Boy Improving—Willie Patterson, who had a part of his foot amputated as the result of a railroad accident, is improving.

Daughter Born—A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Rev. Curtman, of Nessley chapel, Hancock county, W. Va.

Fleet Has Passed—About the last of the Pittsburg coal fleet has passed the city and with the possible exception of several stragglers all the boats are now well on their way to southern waters.

Day in the Woods—A large picnic party was held at the home of David O'Hanlon, north of the city, yesterday. The crowd was made up of people from this city, and an enjoyable time was spent.

Board Will Meet—An important meeting of the board of public service is to be held this evening. Solicitor George E. Davidson has returned to the city and will be present. He will offer advice on many questions that the board has been afraid to tackle and will likely be instrumental in having the rules and regulations that have been drafted to govern the board adopted.

Dangerous Business—A quantity of nitro glycerine, sufficient to have shaken the entire city had it exploded, was taken past the city shortly after noon today. The fluid was in tin cans, sunk a short distance below the surface of the water. A negro in a skiff was in charge of the dangerous shipment.

Will Attend Inquest—Dr. W. W. Hamilton left today for Pittsburg to give his testimony at the inquest over the body of Denver A. Easter, the man who was fatally injured by a train at the local passenger station. It will be remembered that Dr. Hamilton attended the injured man and was with him when he died. Detective Jewell, of the C. & P. police department, was here yesterday to notify Dr. Hamilton of the inquest.

Along the River—The river has been falling rapidly since yesterday, but plenty of water remains for a good packet stage. Business with the packets and at the local wharfboat continues good. The Lorena from Zanesville and the Greenwood from Charleston, were the up packets last night. The Greenwood had a big freight trip. She is due down tonight at 8 on the return trip. The Ben Hur for Parkersburg passed down last night.

Killed a Big Snake—Clarence Hulse, one of the members of the Wyoming Camping club, now located near Fredericktown for the summer outing, returned to town last night with the prize snake story of the season. The snake was captured and killed near the camp last night. Just how big Hulse said his snakeship was is not definitely known, but by the time the story reached the reporter he was a nine-footer.

Won First Prize—Irene Charlotte Long, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Long, of Ridgeway avenue, was awarded the prize at Dr. Cooper's baby show last evening. There were a large number of competitors, and the handsome little lady, though not old enough to appreciate the honor, will have plenty of time to look back to it in years to come.

Wrench Was Arrested—John Wrench was arrested yesterday by Constable Powell on a warrant sworn to in Justice Rose's court by W. S. Baney, a picture agent. Wrench was in Baney's employ and, it is alleged, sold a mirror and pocketed the proceeds. The defendant claims the article was sold to a relative on the installment plan. The justice held Wrench for trial, fixing the bond at $50, which he could not furnish. The case is being tried this afternoon.

WARNING

Given Business Men By Mayor Concerning the Loaning of Money on Valuables.

Mayor Weaver has given warning to the business men and all others in the city that the practice of loaning money on chattels, or valuables of any kind is against the law and that on information he will be compelled to prosecute. The state laws make this provision where there is a licensed pawn shop and prohibits any but the pawn brokers to carry on such business. The pawn brokers are compelled to keep a record and thus where articles have been stolen and pawned they may be found and recovered.

"Many business men innocently loan money on valuables as an accommodation," said the mayor. "Where there is not a pawn shop this is legal. Otherwise, as in this city, it is not. A severe penalty is attached for a violation. I believe the purpose of the law is to prevent thieves and those misappropriating valuables from disposing of them in a manner to leave no chance of tracing them back to the thief."

MILLER RELEASED; GRIM FINED $5

DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR TREATED AS A JOKE BY FRIENDS.

The 'Squire Is Criticised in Some Quarters for Leniency Shown.

Fred Grim and Andy Miller, the two young thugs who nearly killed the Italian Betchi in Chester the other day, were arraigned before Justice A. G. Pugh yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. In spite of the doubtful reputation of both boys, they had a large number of friends, who were at the hearing all determined to clear them if they could.

Nick Cennalley acted as interpreter and Betchi told his story. A number of other witnesses were examined and the testimony throughout was conflicting and unsatisfactory. Miller, through some of his friends, was able to prove an alibi, and the 'squire discharged him. Grim was not so fortunate, and though he endeavored to make the whole affair into a joke, he was fined $5 and costs, which he arranged to pay.

Grim claimed he had an errand to the Italian shanty, and that the foreigner had assaulted him before he struck a single blow. The attempt to laugh the matter off was a miserable failure, and there are a great many of the good people of Chester who believe the justice was too lenient. They assert that such lax methods will undoubtedly result in more lawlessness.

A LETTER FROM HOBBS

Former Resident of Hancock County Tells of the Wonderful Prospects for Florida.

W. A. H. Hobbs, who is well known in Chester, has written from his home in Florida, and says:

"I rejoice in the prosperity of Hancock county and especially the success of my former pupils. I am well pleased with my location in the most tropical part of the United States. We have good roads, and spring and summer weather the year round. Our groves are just coming into bearing. The eyes of winter vegetable growers are on the state of Dade as this county is called. I refrain from telling of the wonderful things of this land. The possibilities of this county are almost beyond comprehension. The insect pests are growing less with the development of the country. Storms and disasters have been very few. Indeed we have very much to be thankful for."

ANNUAL SETTLEMENT

Affairs of the Grant District Board of Education Are in Good Shape.

Sheriff C. A. Allison, of New Cumberland, as custodian of the county school fund, was in Chester today making the annual settlement with the Grant district board of education.

'Squire A. G. Pugh is secretary of the board, and he and Mr. Allison were busy the greater portion of the day with their tasks. There are 15 teachers employed in the district and the schools are in a very prosperous condition. It is likely the majority of those employed during the year will be re-engaged.

The funds are in excellent condition, and there will be a comfortable surplus in the hands of the county treasurer when the settlement is made.

The levy during the past year has been thirty-three and one-third per cent for the teachers' fund and twenty-five per cent for the general building fund. The board has prospered so well that the apportionment will hardly be changed. The sheriff and Mr. Pugh completed their task late this afternoon.

DIED OF HYDROPHOBIA

A Valuable Horse Became Ill With the Dread Disease, Dying in Agony.

A valuable horse belonging to George Hutton, a farmer residing near Asbury chapel, died last night from a very mysterious affliction. The horse was taken violently ill yesterday and though unable to move about, kept up a continual snapping and biting at every object within reach. It frothed at the mouth and there were other evidences that the animal was afflicted with hydrophobia. A veterinary was summoned as quickly as possible, but could do nothing to revive the horse, and it died a few hours later in great agony. The veterinary stated that the horse had certainly been afflicted with rabies, and that the disease had taken such a firm hold that it was impossible to do anything for its relief.

FIRST MONEY ORDER

Chester Postoffice Is Now a Full-Fledged Branch With All Accommodations.

Postmaster W. C. Johnston this morning issued the first order under the dispensation granted from the postoffice department at Washington, D. C., making the Chester office a money order branch. The order was for $47.50 and was payable at Chicago. The new order of things will be a very great convenience to the residents of the Southside, and the people of that growing city appreciate the untiring efforts of Postmaster Johnston in bringing the office to its present high standard.

TAKING OVER OPTIONS

A Big Deal in Coal Land Being Closed By New York Parties Today.

A representative of a title and trust company of New York arrived in New Cumberland today to take over the options secured by A. S. Cooper, on the coal lands on King's creek. As evidence of good faith they deposited $5,000 before the options are to be turned over. Messrs. Cooper and McElfresh hope to get the matter shaped up very soon, so the money can be paid as soon as the abstracts are turned over. The deal will bring a big lot of money into the county when once completed.

RAILROAD PICNIC

Of Panhandle Railway Employes to Be Held at Rock Springs This Year.

The outing of the Pittsburg division of the Panhandle lines this year will be held at Rock Springs park on Friday, July 31. Master Mechanic Smith, of the Dennison shops, has arranged for thirty coaches to carry the employes and their families on an excursion which promises to be the largest in the history of the road. The management of the park is making preparations for the crowd, and a pleasant time will undoubtedly result.

Going to California.

Prof. William Bambrick, principal of the Soldiers' Orphans' Industrial school at Scotland, Pa., is visiting relatives and friends in Chester and Hancock county. Mr. Bambrick will leave for California in a few days, where he will spend the remainder of his vacation.

Scott-McKim.

REALM OF SPORTS

DIAMOND CAREER OF ED. DELEHANTY

Suicide Player Had Won First Honors in Two Leagues With His Bat.

Ed. Delehanty was one of the greatest ball tossers ever turned out from Ohio, being a native of Cleveland. He began his career as an exponent of the national game at Wheeling, W. Va. It was in Philadelphia that he made his first appearance in fast company, playing second base. His remarkable quickness in getting out into field for balls out of regular fielders' reach resulted in his being made an outfielder. He was one of the mainstays of the Quakers until 1901, when he jumped his contract along with Al Orth, Harry Wolverton and Jack Townsend, and cast his fortune with the Washington team of the American league.

Delehanty's work with Washington last season was such as to cause John T. Brush, of New York city, to cast out his grappling irons. Delehanty finally signed a contract at big figures to play with the Giants. Four thousand dollars advance money was paid to Delehanty, and a winter was put in playing the ponies. Luck was against the big fellow, and when the peace committee awarded him back to Washington and to return the $4,000 advanced to New York his base ball heart must have been broken.

Nothing like the Delehanty of his past 11 years has been in evidence in his 1903 work with Washington. He was anxious to get away, but the Washington club held onto him in the hope that he would round into his old time shape. They were doomed to disappointment, however, as the big fellow has been out of the game for some time, still drawing an enormous salary. Fit and well, Delehanty had but a few peers in the matter of batting. Just once during the past 11 years has he finished lower than ninth place. In 1899 he landed the batting championship of the National league with the figures .408. Last year the American league honors in the same direction were won with .376.

It was but a short time ago that Washington tried to unload the big fellow on the Cincinnati club, but nothing came of the attempt.

JOB APPARENT

In a Race At Salem—Effort Made to Beat Cervantes.

Salem, July 10.—The races at the Salem Driving park yesterday brought out a crowd of local and visiting people and was productive of only one special feature, that being an apparent job in the last race of the day—the 2:25 trot. In the fifth heat Cervantes had two firsts to his credit and apparently to most spectators won at the wire, though closely nosed by Fred, to whom the judges gave the heat.

The summary:

2:18 pace; purse $400—

Big Boy, b. g., (G. A. Fuller)	1	1	1

SALARY ARM

Gives Maley Considerable Trouble. He Has Frequently Beaten Homestead.

From the results of the two games played this season with Homestead it seems that Larry Maley is the only local pitcher who can trim them. Last year with Maley in the box the locals won three games from the Homesteaders, with the relative strength of the teams about the same as this season.

Maley, however, will not pitch again this season. His salary arm has been giving him considerable trouble and he thinks a rest for the remainder of the season will benefit him. He has been keeping in good condition by playing other positions with local teams and is developing into quite a hitter.

MALEY WILL PLAY

With Locals Today Against Homestead if Rain Does Not Stop the Game.

Maley will make his first appearance with the locals today, providing rain does not stop the game, having been assigned to right garden by Manager Reark. Brown has replaced Nolan in left, much to the satisfaction of the fans, and Webb has been moved in from right to the second sack. The two teams will line up as follows:

Y. M. C. A. — Emmerling, catcher; Lawrence, pitcher; Gibson, short; Wallace, first; Webb, second; Mason, third, Brown, left; Maley, right.

Homestead — Coursey, catcher; Burns, pitcher; Ferguson, short; Milton, first; Cosgrove, second; Edmonston, third; McChesney, left; Violet, right.

TIGERS VICTORIOUS

In a Hotly Contested Game Played Yesterday Afternoon.

The Hilltop Tigers and the Westinghouse Juniors, two amateur baseball teams, played a hot game on the grounds of the former club yesterday afternoon. The battle was hard fought from start to finish and the score stood 12-11 in favor of the Tigers when it hand ended.

Another game will be played this afternoon and the third tomorrow. The batteries in yesterday's game were: Tigers, Brown and Stroud; Westinghouse, Mackey and DeTemple.

Morrow's Team Challenged.

The Superbas is one of the latest ball teams in the field. Terry Carman is the manager and promotor, but so far has not divulged his lineup. He has asked the sporting editor of the News Review to publish a challenge for the Superbas for a game with Billy Morrow's team. So confident are the Superbas that they want to play for $100 a side.

Went East With Horses.

T. K. Moffatt, driver of Redmond, Joan and La France, horses owned by Harrison Rinehart, left this morning for the east, where he will enter the fine bred animals in numerous races before the end of the season. Mr. Moffatt has the horses in elegant condition and will no doubt be successful on the trip.

Will Play at Empire.

The Athletics go to Empire tomorrow for a game with the team representing that town. The local team will line up as follows: L. Emmerling, catcher; McShane, pitcher; McAvoy, short; Maley, first; Stilwell, second; Davis, third; Trainer, left; Carey, middle; Bennett, right.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Wallace and Gibson failed to land a hit in yesterday's game, a rather unusual occurrence.

Cleveland has lost three straight games. The suspension of Lajoie is partly responsible.

"Wild Bill" Donovan has won the rubber from Waddell, and wants to try the trick again.

Selee has started several collegians in professional base ball, and most of them make good for him.

The efforts of the crowds fail to rattle Weimer, the cowboy pitcher Selee has signed. He recently told McGann to "Pin back your ears, people want to see the game." when Mack was trying to rattle him with the help of the crowd.

Charlie Rabb, the ex-American association player, has something on George Davis at shortstop.

The Athletics and the Second Y. M. C. A. teams will play a league game this afternoon at Rock Springs park.

According to figures offered by different compilers, at least two men lead the American league in batting at the same time.

In Cresceus and Oldfield, Ohio has two record holders, and Columbus feels good because both made records in that city.

Wallace's great catch of a foul from Tate's bat was really the feature of the game. It was a sensational play and roundly applauded.

Mason made a bad break yesterday by trying to take Emmerling's throw with one hand. He failed to hold the ball and the error cost a run.

Nolan has probably made his last appearance with the local team. With Brown in left field yesterday the result might have been different.

The Red's double defeat of Boston and Pittsburg's victory over Brooklyn gives the first named team the best margin in fourth place they have had this season.

Umpire Reark called two hits of the visitors that dropped in front of the plate fouls. Both of them looked fair and each time Emmerling could have thrown the runner out.

PREPARING FOR FIRE LADDIES

Toronto is Shaping Up to Entertain Firemen's Annual Tournament.

Toronto, July 10.—Toronto is putting on its holiday garb and making preparations to greet and entertain the people who will come next week to participate in and see the firemen's tournament and carnival.

Each year the volunteer firemen of Northeastern Ohio have a tournament, where they battle for supremacy. The active running teams of the Firemen's association embrace the following towns: Wellsville, Salem, Leetonia, Columbiana, Bridgeport, Martin's Ferry, Bellaire, Toronto, Coshocton, New Philadelphia and Canal Dover.

The tournament will take place here July 15 16 and 17, but the local firemen have arranged for an entire week of fun, commencing July 13. Business will be practically suspended during the tournament and all factories will close. The program is as follows:

July 15—Convention at 10 a. m. Parade of firemen and industrial features at 1 p. m.

July 16—Hose race 2 p. m., first prize, $125; second prize, $50; third prize, $25. Foot race, 100 yards. Hook and ladder race, first prize $50.

JURY ORDERED

To Consider Appropriation Cases Brought By Electric Railway Company.

Lisbon, July 10.—(Special.)—A preliminary hearing in the appropriation proceedings of the Stark Electric Railroad company versus Ira F. Brainard, Nellie M. Hogan and Martin and Charles Lottman was held before Judge Martin in probate court yesterday afternoon.

The land in question is situated west of Salem, and it was shown that it is needed by the plaintiff company for a right of way for the extension of its railway line from Sebring to Salem.

Judge Martin ordered that a jury of 16 persons be drawn to report in the probate court next Tuesday morning to place a valuation on the land sought to be appropriated.

Catarrh of the Stomach.

When the stomach is overloaded; when food is taken into it that fails to digest, it decays and inflames the mucous membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secret mucin, instead of the natural juices of digestion. This is called catarrh of the stomach. "For years I suffered with catarrh of the stomach, caused by indigestion. Doctors and medicines failed to benefit me until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure."—J. R. Rhea Coppell, Texas. Sold by Alvin H. Bulger.

BUSINESS AGENT WAS TURNED DOWN

He Endeavored to Square a Non-Union Job.

And Was Ordered from the Building. Owner Will Be Reported to His Organization.

Business Agent House, of the painters' union, the members of which have been on strike for many weeks, had an experience yesterday that was a good sample of the trials and tribulations of the average walking delegate, and one which is enough to make the good unionist resolve to turn non-union on the spot.

Among his other duties it is expected of the business agent that he keep tab on all contracts secured by the non-union contractors, and wherever possible secure the work for his fellows who were on strike. Yesterday he heard of a job of this character and lost no time in going after the contractor through the owner of the building. He was surprised and disgusted to learn that the man having the work done was one of the best known, and to the present, a very prominent trades unionist of the city.

The situation was explained to him and an attempt made to induce the owner to treat the painters fairly, but he refused. The walking delegate was dumbfounded, and left the job thoroughly disgusted. Not, however, before he was ordered away and had been subjected to all manner of abuse. Te so called unionist will be reported to his organization.

BOGUS MONEY RACKET WORKED

Poor Counterfeits of Large Note This Time.

Banks Have Been Warned from Washington—None Found Here Yet.

Counterfeit money is again in wide circulation. Bankers in all parts of the United States have been warned by the treasury department at Washington to be on the watch for suprious coin, most of which it seems is of larger denomination than is generally placed on the market.

According to the department at the capitol city the country is being filled with counterfeit $20 national bank notes. The notes are not, however, very good imitations of the genuine and only people unaccustomed to handling money are being victimized.

The national banks of this city have received the following warning which has placed them on guard, and they do not anticipate being roped in: "New counterfeit $20 national bank note on National State bank of Metropolis, Ill. Check letter A; series of 1882; charter number, 5,254; bank number, 1,193; treasury number, 896,558; J. W. Lyons, register; Ellis H. Roberts, treasurer."

This counterfeit is a rudely executed photographic production on thin brittle paper, and no attempt has been made to imitate the silk fibre of the genuine paper. The photograph of the original numbers of the note can be plainly discerned beneath the coloring applied. The back of the note is faded; green ink has been smeared on the panel surrounding the charter number on the back of the note.

This counterfeit should not deceive the ordinarily careful handler of money.

Though local banks have not run across any of these particular counterfeits they will institute a sharp lookout for them and the warning given to the banks should be remembered by citizens in general.

Bogus dimes and nickels are still afloat, but they are not so abundant as a few months back. It is thought that they are almost entirely wiped out of this vicinity, much to the satisfaction of both the banks and street car companies.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

Johnny and the Spider

"What are you going to do?" asked the spider as Johnny crept up toward his web.

"I'm going to kill you," answered Johnny.

"Oh, it's just as well, I guess," said the spider. "I'm tired of doing everything for you and having you do nothing for me, so I might as well be done with it."

"What do you do for me?" asked Johnny in surprise.

room and perched on the foot of your bed. He had horrid green eyes and long claws all covered with sharp spikes, and his jaws were filled with teeth as sharp as needles. He said he was going to bite a piece off the end of your nose. I killed him and ate him.

"Night before last when you were asleep a long earwig crawled down the wall and jumped on your pillow. He had 10,000 legs that wriggled all the time, and he had a stinger in his tail and eyes that rolled round and round. He said he was going to crawl into your hair and go to sleep. I killed him and ate him, but he said that he had two cousins from the country who would be here to see you tomorrow night.

"Saturday morning when you were asleep a green eyed"—

"Hold on!" cried Johnny. "Hold on! You mustn't go. You mustn't leave me."

"Oh, yes, you'd better kill me, as you said you would, because then I will not have to sit up all night and fight those things."

"No, no!" exclaimed Johnny. "You dear old spider! I wouldn't harm you for all the world. You must stay here with me always, and I shall always be your friend, as you have been mine."

So they shook hands and were happy all the rest of their days. — Chicago Tribune.

WELLSVILLE

VAST CHANCE

In the "White Swan," Who Was Once Rich and Admired—Arrested Again.

Alma Waters, better known by the name of "White Swan," is again in the toils of the law, having been arrested for fighting. She was fined $25 by Mayor Fogo, and the chances are exceedingly bright for her to go to the work house at Canton.

Charles Mills was also arrested at the same time by Chief Houser and the probabilities are that he will go to Canton, too.

The Waters woman has been a local character for many years and until this time always managed to secure money to obtain her freedom when arrested. She has been in jail dozens of times, but her luck seems to have deserted her at last. She was once considered the most beautiful woman in the upper Ohio valley and men fairly showered her with gold and diamonds. Of late she has been on the decline and as her beauty faded so her admirers failed and now she faces a workhouse sentence.

CARE FOR ROADS

Will Wellsville's City Officials—Some Projected Improvements

It is the purpose of Mayor Fogo and the city council to take good care of all the roads leading into Wellsville before snow flies, and paving on the Lisbon road from the county bridge to the corporation line and the Steubenville road from Clark avenue to the railroad tracks in the West End, will soon be commenced.

The county commissioners have promised to pave a mile of the Lisbon road after the city extends the paving to the city's limits, and this, too, it is thought, will be completed by early fall.

The tax payers of both the city and county are in favor of this needed improvement and there will be no let up from now on until it is finished.

SERENADED

Newly Married Couple—Marriage Was To Have Been Kept a Secret.

Barney Rand and bride were fairly overwhelmed by the arrival of a large number of friends at their summer home at Spring Grove camp grounds Thursday afternoon, soon after their return from the Methodist parsonage, where Rev. C. E. Clark united them in the holy bonds of wedlock.

After congratulations the friends organized an old fashioned "belling" and gave the couple a serenade that was greatly appreciated and enjoyed.

It was the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Rand to keep their wedding a secret, but some valuable friend let the cat out of the bag and in a little while it was town talk.

RAY ARRESTED

For Beating Perri and Gave Bond For Appearance At Trial.

Chief Houser has arrested Frank Ray, a sub-boss under Contractor Charles A. Sims, for brutally beating Antonio Perri, mention of which was made in this paper yesterday. He claimed to have been justified in fighting with the Italian and left $25 cash security for his appearance at the day of trial.

The injured man is still under the care of a physician and the hearing will not likely take place before the first of the week, as it will be necessary to get several witnesses here from Port Homer and other places along the C. & P.

The Millionaire Malady.

Men who have sacrificed health and youth, scrimped their families and injured their digestion in the acquirement of a "pile" often think they are public benefactors and that humanity in general owes them a debt of gratitude for being so rich. In consequence they resent as cruel injustice the fatigue, chagrin and newspaper notoriety that money invariably brings in its trail. It would be about as consistent for a little boy who had gorged himself on purloined apples to feel injured when an avenging stomach ache followed gluttony.—Eliot Gregory in Century.

Our Eccentric Phrases.

Why do we always talk of putting on a coat and vest? Who puts on a coat before a vest? We also say putting on shoes and stockings? Who puts on shoes before the stockings? We also put up signs telling people to wipe their feet when we mean their boots or shoes. And a father tells a boy he will warm his jacket when he means to warm his pantaloons. We are a little eccentric in our phrases at times.

Friends In Need.

"I don't put much faith in proverbs," said Brown to Jones. "For instance, look at the oft quoted one, 'A friend in need is a friend indeed.' Now, most of my experience with friends in need has been that they wanted to borrow. Give me the friends that are not in need."

Where Diplomacy Is Needful.

ANNUAL REUNION OF EIGHTH OHIO

To Be Held in Detroit Instead of in East Liverpool as Previously Arranged

CASE IN SUPREME COURT

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, July 10.—The annual reunion of those who served in the Eighth Ohio volunteers, "The President's Own," during the Spanish war, will be held in Detroit, Mich., instead of at East Liverpool as intended.

The latter city was selected for the gathering at last year's reunion which was held at Canton, but on account of threatened labor troubles, which happily have since been averted, the East Liverpool members held a meeting and voted unanimously in favor of transferring the reunion to Detroit, where the Society of the Army of Santiago will hold its first reunion on Thursday and Friday of next week, which is the date fixed for the reunion of the Eighth. Will H. Kinney, acting secretary of the Spanish War Veterans' society, at East Liverpool, advised Colonel Charles C. Weybrecht, of Alliance, of the Eighth regiment, who was a major in the Eighth Ohio, of the action taken by the East Liverpool members. He concurred in the proposal and authorized Secretary McKinney to issue an official call providing for the holding of the reunion at Detroit on the date mentioned. The change meets with the general approval of the old Eighth members, as it will give them an opportunity of attending the meeting of the Society of the Army of Santiago in which many of them are enrolled as members.

Major General Shafter, who commanded the Santiago expedition, is president of this society, and President Roosevelt and General Joe Wheeler are vice presidents. Congressman Charles Dick, now major general of the Ohio National Guard, who was lieutenant colonel of the Eighth Ohio, is a national officer.

To adhere to the original plan of holding the reunion of the Eighth at East Liverpool would mean a decreased attendance, as many would be at the Detroit gathering. Steubenville, Empire, Toronto, Wellsville and other towns adjacent to East Liverpool were represented in Company E, of that city, which was in the Eighth Ohio Volunteer regiment. Those of these cities who contemplate attending the reunion will probably receive notice to assemble in East Liverpool, from whence a number will leave in a body for some lake point and thence proceed to Detroit by boat. By following this plan it will be possible to secure special railroad rates.

A Columbiana county case styled Alex McBane, administrator of the estate of Christian McGill, deceased, against William Swart, guardian of John Russell, a minor, has been filed in the supreme court. P. M. Smith, of Wellsville, is attorney for the plaintiff in error and Charles S. Speaker, of Lisbon, for the defendant in error.

Young Russell sued the estate for 78 month's work at $20 per month, amounting to $1,560, and won in both of the lower courts. He lived at the home of Christian McGill and claimed he rendered her this service. Her administrator claims she boarded Russell and sent him to school and that on this account he should be paid nothing for what work he did.

SOCIAL EVENTS

EPWORTH LEAGUE HAD FINE SOCIAL

SPLENDID PROGRAM RENDERED IN ABLE MANNER.

Rev. M. B. Pratt Spoke at Length On Live Subject—Address Well Received.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church gave a very pleasant social in the Sunday school room of the church last evening. In honor of the occasion the room was prettily decorated with numerous Epworth League flags. The young people had worked faithfully to make the affair a success, and the event proved that their efforts were by no means in vain.

Much of the pleasure of the evening was due to the entertainment committee, of which Miss Maude Baum is president. The program, which was largely of a musical nature, was very interesting and as follows: Solo, Prof. R. H. Jennings; piono solo, Mrs. Gertrude Dix; duet, Mrs. Homer J. Taylor and Prof. Jennings; address, "John Wesley," Rev. M. B. Pratt; solo, Mr. C. L. Gray; duet, Miss Olive Dickey and Mr. Tallis Blount; selection, ladies' quartet.

Every number was splendidly rendered, and received not a little merited applause from the audience. The address of Rev. Pratt on "John Wesley—His Life and Works," was especially well received, it being both interesting and instructive. Rev. Pratt spoke in part as follows:

"John Wesley was born immediately after the death of Oliver Cromwell. On both sides he came of parentage distinguished alike for scholarship patriotism and piety. Inheriting all these traits he became a great scholar, graduating with the degree of M. A. at the early age of 24 years. He then became assistant to his father who was rector of a rural church, but was neither happy nor successful. Later he came to Georgia as chaplain for the new colony but his stay was short and on his return to England he met some very gentle and spiritual Christians who led him to a new experience.

"In that experience, Methodism was born. Preaching this new gospel of the witness of the spirit of God to our spirits, and summoning the people back to God, he was soon condemned and compelled to preach outside their churches. It was the old story, because he would not put new wine in old vessels, he was condemned. In fact, today if one wishes to satisfy the 'Keepers of the Ark,' one must say nothing that has not already been said ten thousand times.

"Wesley early became a great scholar, and created an important literature for his followers. Lecky says that the literature he created has not yet been adequately appreciated. But he saved his movement from mere emotional vaporing by the might of a mind trained and consecrated to his work. His movement was essentially a spiritual movement. The young people of our day should learn to cultivate their minds and this is a simpler task than some presume. A few moments each day of serious study for a few years and one may become liberally educated."

The purpose of the entertainment was to bring the young people together and interest them in social work. The affair was largely attended.

Will Hold Picnic.

A meeting of McCoy Circle was held last evening by the ladies of the G. A. R. at the rooms in the Exchange building. Besides the regular work of the evening it was decided to hold a picnic in the near future at Rock Springs park. The exact date was not decided upon. Arrangements were discussed pertaining to the encampment to be held in August at San Francisco. Mrs. Fannie Wyllie has been elected delegate-at-large from this order.

The Magnet.

Thousands of years ago a mineral having the strange power of attracting iron was found in the country anciently called Magnesia, in Asia Minor. The name of this country has given us the word "magnet." This mineral, which is now called the lodestone (not loadstone), attracted the attention of the curious, and it was discovered that a piece of iron which had been rubbed with the lodestone acquired the same power of attracting iron. In other words, the piece of iron became a magnet. It was afterward found that such an iron or artificial magnet could be used like the lodestone itself to convert other pieces or iron into magnets by rubbing. Still more recently a mode of making magnets by means of electricity was discovered—that is, by wrapping a piece of insulated wire many times around the bar and then causing a current of electricity to pass through the wire. The familiar small toy magnets are simply steel bars which have been rubbed a few times against powerful magnets.—St. Nicholas.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

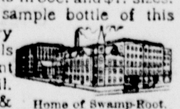

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Home of Swamp-Root.

HONESTY
Is the Best Policy

WHY is it that this store is constantly forging ahead? Why is it that customers always express their satisfaction over purchases made here? The answer is not hard to find. We believe in unswerving adherence to the truth; we have but one price to everybody alike; we mark our goods, as a whole, cheaper than any store in town, nor is this all; we do not try to deceive; no false "dissolution sales" or "fake" Half Price Sales here. We do our best to intelligently supply your wants, and to give you extra values for every dollar without resorting to imaginary reasons for a motive. We take this occasion to thank our many customers for the confidence they have reposed in us and in the future we shall strive to give even better service than in the past.

Crushing an Actor.

A brother actor famous for his pomposity and his inordinate ambition was regaling Sir Henry Irving with a forecast of his plans for the future.

"I shall begin the season," he announced, "with such and such a part, and after that I shall appear as Hamlet."

"Um!" drawled Irving. "As—eh—Hamlet, did you say?"

The other, incensed by the tone of the query, bridled up at once.

"Do you think, Sir Henry," he demanded indignantly, "that you are the only man who can play Hamlet?"

"Oh, no," rejoined Irving blandly, "but I am quite sure that you are the only man who can't."—Harper's Weekly.

How Pausanius Died.

Pausanius, the Greek general, died by self administered poison. When hotly pursued by those sent to apprehend him on a charge of treason and sacrilege he took refuge in the sanctuary of a temple. Unable to remove him by force and also unwilling to violate the sanctuary, the officers walled up the entrance and began to unroof the building. When he could be seen they noticed that he was chewing something which proved to be a quill filled with poison. By the time the work had sufficiently advanced to admit of their entrance he was in a lying condition.

BATTING RALLY WON SECOND GAME

From the Locals—Homestead Has Another Scalp In the Wigwam.

LOUD WAIL WENT UP

When the Locals Had the Game Won and Then Got on the Stupid Cart. Excellent Opportunity to Win the Game Was Sacrificed.

Wail after wail went up from the dry and dusty throats of the disappointed fans when a batting rally, coupled with stupid playing, allowed the Homesteaders to tie the score in the eighth inning. Half of the crowd had their hammers out and echoes of the anvil chorus could be heard all over the West End. Umpire Reark and half the players on the team came in for a share of the maledictions, unjustly for the most part.

While the error column does not show it, the locals played ball like wooden Indians, particularly when head work would have pulled them out of the hole. After six innings had been played the score stood 6 to 1 with the former numeral on the right side of the ledger. The visitors had but three measly hits off Miller, the south paw slab artist, but in their last three turns at the bat they landed on him good and hard, 9 hits, good for 14 bases and 7 runs, being the noxious figures.

Miller had all the best of the argument with the celebrated Buck Washer, late of the Wheeling leaguers, up to the seventh, in spite of his wildness. He did not have the proper command and his curves failed to break properly. His drop ball, so effective in other games, could not be used owing to his lack of control.

The angry and disappointed fans, when they come to calmly peruse the score, will see that Homestead's clean and consecutive hitting in the last three innings was the principal factor in their victory.

The entire Homestead bunch kept up a fusilade against Umpire Reark when they were getting a shade the best of the decisions, considering them in the aggregate. "Red" Violet was particularly obnoxious in this respect and it drew to him an enfilading fire of hot shots from the spectators.

The first four innings were productive of six runs for the locals, after which they failed to score. After the fourth Washer allowed them but one hit. Gibson walked in the first and Mason sacrificed him to second and he scored on Brown's single after Wallace had fanned. In the second with two down Emmerling drew a pass and scored from first on Miller's scorching two bagger. Three more were added in the third. Mason opened with a rattling three base hit to right, scoring on a fumble of Violet's throw to catch him at third. Ferguson fumbled Brown's grounder after Wallace had been given free transportation and Webb brought them over the pan with a clean two sacker. Tally No. 6 came in the fourth. Miller had all the outer gardeners chasing his long drive and when it was finally fielded in he was perched on third. Gibson drew his second free pass and tried for second on the next ball pitched. Coursey and Cosgrove forgot that Miller was on third and he scored while Gibson was being murdered on the throw to second.

The visitors started their run getting where the locals left off. In their half of the sixth Miller passed Cosgrove to first and hit McChesney a jolt in the ribs. Milton hit for a single and Cosgrove counted.

Buck, the brave, wore a large smile when he came to bat in the seventh and it broadened when Mason and Gibson let his punk hit drop safe. Violet worried a walk out of Miller but was forced at second on Edmundson's grounder, Buck moving up to third. Tate sent a screecher along the third base line. Mason standing on the bag, stabbed for it but didn't reach and to the majority of the spectators it looked foul. Umpire Reark thought otherwise and when the excitement subsided Buck had crossed the rubber, followed closely by Edmundson.

McChesney was passed to first on four wide ones as a starter in the eighth. Ferguson skied out to Reark but Coursey spanked one to left for two sacks. Buck, the brave, was the next willow artist with McChesney at third and Coursey on second looking longingly toward home. The way Buck swatted it was something awful. The impact sounded like a "down yander" swain kissing his best girl good night out in Jethro Hollow. It was a base cleaner but Buck rested on third until he had easy sailing home on Violet's single. His run tied the score.

Nolan was working overtime fielding in the base hits. He showed a lack of judgment in returning the ball that made the crowd groan. His poor judgment in the eighth was only excelled by his similar exhibition in the ninth. Cosgrove started the inning with a rattling three bagger but got his dates mixed and was caught off the bag. Milton singled past short. McChesney hit for two in the same direction, scoring Milton. Ferguson found the same opening through short for a hit. McChesney had not turned third when Nolan fielded the ball but he threw to Mason instead of the plate and McChesney scampered home. Mason threw to Brown and Ferguson was nailed at second. But the damage was done. The score:

LETTER FROM WILL REED

Will Sign Bond to Refund Money Unless Mi-o-na Restores Health.

To the Editor of the News Review:

Dear Sir:—Having heard that some people question the sincereity of my offer to refund a purchaser's money if Mi-o-na does not cure dyspepsia, increase the flesh and restore health, I am writing you this letter to say over my own signature that this offer is made in good faith and will be lived up to by me both in the spirit and the letter.

I will give the following bond with every 50 cent box of Mi-o-na I sell. There is no risk in buying Mi-o-na.

GUARANTEE BOND.

I hereby agree to refund the price paid for Mi-o-na, if the purchaser tells me that it has not increased flesh and given freedom from stomach troubles. WILL REED.

So many of my customers have told me of the great good Mi-o-na has done them, that I am more thoroughly convinced than ever that there is but little risk in selling Mi-o-na under this guarantee.

The demand for Mi-o-na is increasing rapidly and it is the most popular of all medicines we sell for the cure of stomach troubles. If it did not have unusual merit I could not afford to guarantee it.

Your readers can see that they run no risk whatever in buying Mi-o-na.

Respectfully yours,
WILL REED.

LIFE SLOWLY EBBING

Demise of Pope a Question of Days at Most and Probably Only Hours.

PHYSICAL VIGOR IS UNBROKEN

No Second Operation Performed—Dr. Rossini Called in Consultation. Cardinals Throughout the World Hurrying Romeward.

Rome, July 10—6:10 a. m.—It is reported that when, shortly after sunrise this morning, Dr. Lapponi went to see the pope he found him with his hands together in the attitude of prayer. On the doctor inquiring whether he required anything his holiness replied:

"Today finishes a week since I was taken ill. I am thanking God for having given me strength to still pray to Him."

Rome, July 10—2 a. m.—Another day of alternate hopes and fears has passed and Pope Leo's life still hangs in the balance. Beginning with renewed hopes, the day closed with the scales tending slowly, but surely, downwards. How long this agonizing period of suspense will last not even the attending doctors dare to say.

No night bulletin was issued, but at 12:15 this morning it was learned from Dr. Mazzoni that the condition of the pontiff had not changed since the issue of the evening bulletin at 7:30 o'clock, which announced that the patient's state was grave, and at which hour Dr. Lapponi had declared his fear that there was no hope, but that the end might not come during this night.

Dr. Mazzoni Interviewed.

At midnight a report coming from the vatican itself gained currency that Dr. Mazzoni had again operated on the pope and extracted serum which had again gathered in the pleural cavity. The representative of the Associated Press immediately went to see the illustrious surgeon and found him at his home at 1:30 this morning. Although extremely tired, Dr. Mazzoni allowed himself to be interviewed and said:

"It is untrue that a new operation has been performed. I was with the pope from 11 p. m. until after midnight and found his general condition stationary, no change having taken place since this afternoon, when the consultation with Dr. Rossini was held. To strengthen the patient's heart and help the circulation of the blood I injected camphor and caffeine, after which the pope, who seemed somewhat relieved, said he remembered being treated with raspail water on a camphor basis when he was nuncio at Brussels, 60 years ago."

In reply to a question Dr. Mazzoni replied:

New Operation May Be Necessary.

"I really cannot say whether the serum in the pleural cavity has increased since the consultation this afternoon, as I did not examine his holiness for such a purpose. It must be understood that the pope is too frail to be handled like other people. Besides, his thorax, through old age, has become bent in such a way that the right side, where pneumonia was first detected, curves out in a very pronounced manner, while the left side curves in. In tomorrow's visit attention will be especially centered on the progress in the secretion of serum. Then a decision will be taken as to whether a new operation is necessary."

Dr. Mazzoni ended by ridiculing the criticisms, objections and advice which he said people, most of whom are famous only for never having been heard of, allow themselves to advance, even from abroad, many of these persons having only seen the pope in photographs. The greatest accusation is that pleurisy was not discovered in time. I visited the pope for the first time on Sunday. On Monday evening I discovered the fluid and on Tuesday removed it. "Any student of medicine knows," concluded Dr. Mazzoni, "that sometimes weeks pass before the presence of serum is detected. I myself once had pleurisy, which the doctor only discovered 15 days after I was taken ill."

The condition of Pope Leo at times yesterday morning seemed so favorable that the hopeful Dr. Mazzoni and the more conservative Dr. Lapponi united in expressing the belief that there was some slight prospect of recovery, but within a few hours these brighter prospects disappeared before the most alarming conclusions reached after the lengthy consultation of doctors. The earlier hopes had been inspired largely by the pontiff's outward evidence of vigor, as he was able to rise, walk and command all his faculties, but the latter consultation disclosed that these outward evidences of strength were entirely deceptive, as the real danger consisted in the gradual internal progress of the insidious disease.

Condition Beyond Hope.

The mere fact of the consultation in itself gave rise to the gloomiest forebodings. Indeed, this was the first actual consultation, as the previous frequent meetings of the doctors were not regarded as formal consultations. Dr. Rossini, the distinguished specialist of the Raccelli school, was called into a consultation lasting two hours, during which every phase of the patient's case was minutely gone over. The conclusions announced in the 7:30 o'clock bulletin showed that liquid is again rapidly gathering in the pleural cavity and that the pope's general condition is very grave.

Following the issuance of this bulletin the doctors expressed their convictions regarding the extreme gravity of the case. Dr. Lapponi said, without qualification, that the patient's condition was beyond hope. He did not expect a final collapse at once, but rather a gradual sinking until the end came. How long the sufferer will last the doctors will not venture any prediction. Ordinary calculations, they say, fail to apply to this extraordinary case. One of them remarked:

"Here is a man almost a hundred years old retaining all his mental and most of his physical faculties and bravely combatting the approach of death. Although the conditions change from hour to hour, the essential conditions of mental alertness and physical vigor continue unbroken. Never yet has there been the slightest lapse into incoherency."

Arranging to Elect Successor.

Whatever may be the outcome the vatican world has fully made up its mind that the demise of the pope is only a question of days at the most and probably only of hours. With this being the prevalent view, every detail for conducting the affairs of the church during the interregnum and for carrying out the election of Pope Leo's successor is being systematically arranged. Following advices from the vatican, the cardinals throughout the world are hurrying Romeward, anticipating the holding of a conclave for the choice of a pope. These preparations are being undertaken in a spirit of profound grief and as the performance of a sacred duty.

The court of the vatican leading to the pope's apartments has been thronged with distingiushed visitors seeking information as to the pope's condition. Practically the entire diplomatic corps accredited to the vatican was among the inquirers and many cardinals were also among the groups. The popular solicitude for the pope's condition has led to an amelioration of the rigid rules closing the entrances. High and low coming to ask about the pope's condition were equally admitted to the inner court, where the bulletins signed by the doctors were conspicuously exhibited.

Pope in Ignorance of Volponi's Death.

One of the most remarkable features of the sick room is the absolute simplicity and the entire absence of the usual elaborate equipment found in the sick rooms of distinguished patients. There are no trained nurses, the only attendants besides the doctors being the pope's valets, Centra and De Castro. The doctors are without a corps of assistants and there are none of the modern appliances for refrigeration and other means of ameliorating the condition of patients.

The tragic death of Monsignor Volponi was carefully kept from the pope throughout the day. It was at first feared that it would be necessary to inform the pope in order that Monsignor Volponi's successor to the office of secretary of the consistory might be nominated, but after discussion by the vatican authorities it was decided that the precedents admitted of the nomination of a secretary without the intervention of the pope.

EDITORS DISCUSS MANY TOPICS

Newspapers Err and Sin Rather by Things Suppressed Rather Than by What Is Published.

Omaha, July 10.—B. B. Herbert, of the National Editorial association gave an account of a journalistic association in England which has met with success under the name of the Institutive Journalists of England. One of its objects is the protection of its members against libel suits and other difficulties common to journalism. Out of it has grown the World's Press Congress, which will be held in St. Louis next year. Mr. Herbert recommended that a committee be appointed to represent the editorial association at that congress, and the suggestion was adopted.

"Relation of the Newspaper to the State" was the subject of an address by F. C. Raney, of Fort Scott, Kan.

Edward Rosewater spoke on the "Ethics of Journalism." He criticised doctors and lawyers for seeking advertising in newspapers. The editor, he said, erred and sinned rather by the things he suppressed than by what he published.

A number of other papers were read, one of which was by Mrs. Georgiana Raby, of St. Louis, who spoke on "Fraternity and the World's Fair," reviewing the elaborate arrangements for the meeting of fraternal orders at the world's fair in 1904.

PICTORIAL PUZZLE.

WHISKY LABELS ON HER BAGGAG.

Jokers Decorate Trunk of Mrs. Carrie Nation While Ticket Agent Is Lectured on Evils of Smoking.

McKeesport, Pa., July 10.—Mrs. Carrie Nation arrived in town and immediately went to the Baltimore and Ohio depot for the purpose of purchasing a ticket for Olympia park, where she gave two lectures during the day. The ticket agent did not know Mrs. Nation and appeared at the window smoking a cigar. Immediately Mrs. Nation saw the blue and white smoke, the young man lost favor in her eyes. She pointed out to him, in strenuous language, the error of his ways, and intimated that it would end in his death. The agent was at first somewhat surprised at the outburst, but when he had a chance to get in a word, told her he was there to sell tickets and he wanted no lectures except from his superior officer.

MRS. CARRIE NATION.

While the lecture was in progress Mrs. Nation's enemies were losing no time. Some procured a large quantity of whisky labels of a certain brand and liberally pasted them on her baggage. When the light of Mrs. Nation's eyes apprehended what had been done she almost fainted. Reviving without the aid of a stimulant, however, she made the depot lively for a time and then made a vain search for a policeman. Returning, she did her best at destroying the hated labels, but when her train came along not half of them had been dislodged, so she proceeded to the park, advertising the traffic which she so much hated.

Lime Burns Sound Steamer.

Anacortes, Wash., July 10.—The sound steamer Laconner has been destroyed by fire in Burroughs bay. The vessel was bringing 1,800 barrels of lime and 129 barrels of salt salmon from San Juan island when she sprang a leak. As soon as the water struck the lime the vessel caught fire. Captain Ira Myers headed her for the beach, which she reached in time to allow the officers and crew to get ashore. The loss is about $20,000.

CHRONIC SORES

Signs of Polluted Blood.

There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the SSS polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.

S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health. If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

The Ethics of Fiction

By ANNE FITZHUGH MACLEAN

III.—Difficult Moral Situations.

WITH the rapid growth of our modern habit of self analysis arose the moral dilemma as a motive in fiction, replacing or complicating the old motives of love, intrigue and adventure.

This in its turn has developed so rapidly that from a robust, obvious dilemma like that of Rochester and Jane in "Jane Eyre" it has already become in the hands of many writers subtilized beyond the recognition of the ordinary mind.

Even Mrs. Ward's Eleanor would, a hundred years ago, have spared herself most of her spiritual agonizings. The case between her and Lucy would have been a plain case of take who can, or Eleanor would have made a noble and immediate sacrifice of her claims, living happy ever after in the consciousness of well doing or else dying of a broken heart without any preliminary pains of self struggle. But the modernness of this treatment of an ancient situation is a very different thing from the decadent modernness of certain books—for instance, "The Column," where the dilemma is so vague that the everyday reader merely concludes that the young married pair were hard put to it for something to make themselves wretched about.

The two elements, one of which nearly always constitutes the difficulty in the moral situation, are, first, the necessity for deceit, either in word or in a course of action; second, the necessity of a decision between fearful self sacrifice and the ruin of another.

Generally all that is needed is a little of that wisdom of which Margaret Deland is our chief apostle, the wisdom that we call common sense. In most novels the lack of this quality on the part of personages caught in moral complications is either irritating or laughable, according as the author has or has not succeeded in gaining our sympathy. We feel that they know they are in a story and must keep up the plot, else they would surely speak the word or do the simple thing that would untangle the intricacies that are making them miserable or bringing the innocent to ruin.

Sir Gilbert Parker.

[Who built up a hopeless complication of difficult situations in "The Right of Way."]

From such it is restful to turn to a book in which the situation would be considered equally difficult in real life. Out of many "Jane Field" is a good example. The yielding to the temptation was to her despairing mother love made diabolically easy by the lawyer's mistake in assuming her to be her sister, of whose death he was ignorant. She meant to take from the estate only the sum that was rightfully due her. Even the most self conscious integrity might tremble at the power and plausibility of her temptation. She yields, yet in a life of falsehood she shrinks from a spoken lie and constantly risks all by refusing to utter one. Marvelous is the consistency of this old woman—rigid, unlovely, yet a glowing fire of maternal passion.

In the end her conscience triumphs—the conscience which, though, as the story says, "all her traditions were purely orthodox, made of her a fetich worshiper in a time of trouble," and when her daughter falls ill drives her to church "to propitiate a terrifying deity." When her tortured brain gives way as she makes confession of her sin, one cannot help the gentle human wish that she might first have realized the happiness of the child for whom she believed she had forfeited salvation.

A very different but also extremely interesting book whose motive is maternal passion in excess is "Mrs. Keith's Crime." So appealing is the situation of the woman who finally kills her adored child that there is danger of the reader's condemnation of her crime weakening under the influence of his sympathy. Or was it crime? Since killing for self defense is allowed by all, is it permissible to kill the helpless in his own defense?

This is Mrs. Clifford's problem in the story of Mrs. Keith, and shudderingly real has she made the presentment of it.

A hopeless complication of difficult situations is found in Gilbert Parker's fine book, "The Right of Way." Yet even in this the Gordian knot method would have been the right thing, and Steele would best have followed the obvious and sensible course—to go home, avow himself, let everybody involved take the consequences, including a divorce for his wife, who had married again, and then return to marry his Rosalie.

The distress to his wife would have been temporary, and surely the innocent Rosalie should not have had all the suffering put upon her. But that is the way. The person who sacrifices himself generally at the same time offers up another victim and one who deserves to be shielded quite as much as the one for whom the sacrifice is made. Mrs. Deland takes this for a text in "Sally," a wholesome short story for people in whose natures the quality of self renunciation is out of drawing.

In "A Tale of Two Cities" Dickens suggests no question as to whether Sydney Carton had a right to give up his life for his friend. Do we, then, belong to ourselves, or are we responsible to God for our bodies as well as our souls? Carton's act was suicide, and does any cause justify suicide? Certainly no cause could justify self degradation such as is illustrated in the means by which William Black's Yolande proposed to cure her mother of the habit of eating opium. Here we have an extreme case of the perversion of self sacrifice, but it does not require extreme cases to work grave injury to the moral vision of young or unthinking readers.

Says Mr. Howell, "The self sacrifice painted in most novels is nothing but psychical suicide and is as wholly immoral as the spectacle of a man falling upon a sword."

False and morbid sentiment in fiction is responsible for much false and morbid sentiment in real life. On the other hand, it could not have so permeated fiction had it not first existed widely in life.

Fiction exaggerates it, as a thing must be exaggerated, by the emphasis of its selection to the exclusion of most of the modifying elements of real life, but in the face of the spread of correct ethical principles it is fast assuming its true relation and proportion. Undoubtedly our public enlightenment has gone beyond the approval of such acts as that of Ewan, the clergyman in "The Deemster," who, by falsely acknowledging as his the signature which his cousin had forged, took upon himself, besides the lie, the burden of the debt and the stigma of disobedience to the church.

Many readers of "The Honorable Peter Stirling" regarded his lie told to save his friend, or, rather, his friend's wife, as the sole blot upon an ideal character. The lie was an indulgence the temptation to which was great, but he would have been a stronger man to have resisted. He does what the self sacrificing novel hero usually does—puts his wisdom above the wisdom of God, who, however we conceive him, must be a God of truth and cannot require a lie as a foundation for ultimate good. Stirling's words, however, at the moment of crisis, "Ask John, and he will say I am the father of the child," are read by some persons as no lie, but an ingenious statement of fact, to be interpreted thus, "Ask John, and he will say, 'I am the father of the child.'"

Mr. Crawford's "Corleone" has a moral situation at once so dramatic and so probable that it deserves to be the pivot of a story rather than an incident. The inviolacy of the confessional is turned by a murderer to his own advantage in such a way as to put under suspicion of the crime the priest to whom he has confessed it and who is thereby left without means of proving his innocence.

Hippolyte, the priest, sees no dilemma in his situation, nothing to be solved, for he does not for a moment consider breaking the seal of the confessional as an alternative to silently accepting an ignominious death.

The great novelists of the early nineteenth century did not make an ethical situation the keynote of a story, though they made subordinate use of such elements. Scott's notable exception is "The Fair Maid of Perth," of which he tells us he "conceived the case of one constitutionally weak of nerve being supported by feelings of honor and jealousy up to a certain point and then suddenly giving way under circumstances to which the bravest heart could hardly refuse compassion." In this conception Scott was in advance of his time. Since then many stories have been built upon the idea that physical fear is not always proof of a cowardly soul, and I know nothing that shows more clearly than the popular acceptance of this motive the great increase in our knowledge of human nature and the consequent increase of sympathy and forbearance.

A dangerous doctrine still to be weeded out of fiction is that a bad life can be atoned for toward its end by one heroic act. The woman who has wrecked lives appears in such romances to wipe out the score against her when, having experienced the hollowness of her mode of life, she turns sick nurse or devotes her remaining years to work among the poor.

The fascinating debauchee, with years of wasted or actively bad life behind him, rescues his enemy or does something equally dramatic, and the author strikes an attitude as if to assure us that his past is now clean.

What the novelist needs in dealing with moral dilemmas—and what the best novelists have already found—is, first, common sense, and, second, a just standard of right and wrong. Thus equipped, false or exaggerated sentiment may be required in the actions of his personages, but his presentment will show these things in their true significance. Such writers are the most valuable of moral teachers, for their audience is the largest in the world, and they teach the truth so subtly that it is absorbed by the spirit as the pure air is drunk in by the skin.

The Things That Need Not Happen

By WILLIAM GEORGE JORDAN

From "The Power of Truth," Published by Brentano's

THIS world would be a delightful place to live in if it were not for the people. They really cause all the trouble. Man's worst enemy is always man. He began to throw the responsibility of his transgressions on some one else in the garden of Eden, and he has been doing so ever since.

The greater part of the pain, sorrow and misery in life is purely a human invention, yet man, with cowardly irreverence, dares to throw the responsibility on God. It comes through breaking laws—laws natural, physical, civic, mental or moral. These are laws which man knows, but he disregards. He takes chances. He thinks he can dodge results in some way. But nature says, "He who breaks pays." There are no dead letter laws on the divine statute books of life. When a man permits a torchlight procession to parade through a powder magazine, it is not courteous for him to refer to the subsequent explosion as "one of the mysterious workings of Providence."

Nine-tenths of the world's sorrow, misfortune and unhappiness is preventable. The daily newspapers are the great chroniclers of the dominance of the unnecessary. Paragraph after paragraph, column after column and page after page of the dark story—accidents, disasters, crime, scandal, human weakness and sin—might be checked off with the word "preventable." In each instance, were our information full enough, our analysis keen enough, we could trace each back to its cause, to the weakness or the wrong from which it emanated. Sometimes it is carelessness, inattention, neglect of duty, avarice, anger, jealousy, dissipation, betrayal of trust, selfishness, hypocrisy, revenge, dishonesty, any of a hundred phases of the preventable.

That which can be prevented should be prevented. It all rests with the individual. The "preventable" exists in three degrees—first, that which is due to the individual solely and directly; second, that which he suffers through the wrongdoing of those around him, other individuals; third, those instances wherein he is the unnecessary victim of the wrongs of society, the innocent legatee of the folly of humanity—and society is but the massing of thousands of individuals with the heritage of manners, customs and laws they have received from the past.

We sometimes feel heartsick and weary in facing failure when the fortune that seemed almost in our fingers slips away because of the envy, malice or treachery of some one else. We bow under the weight of a sorrow that makes all life grow dark and the star of hope fade from our vision, or we meet some unnecessary misfortune with a dumb, helpless despair. "It is all wrong," we say, "it is cruel, it is unjust. Why is it permitted?" And in the very intensity of our feeling we half unconsciously repeat the words over and over again in monotonous iteration, as if in some way the very repetition might bring relief, might somehow soothe us. Yet in most instances it could be prevented. No suffering is caused in the world by right. Whatever sorrow there is that is preventable comes from inharmony or wrong of some kind.

In the divine economy of the universe most of the evil, pain and suffering are unnecessary, even when overruled for good, and perhaps if our knowledge were perfect it would be seen that none is necessary; that all is preventable. The fault is mine or yours or the fault of the world. It is always individual. The world itself is but the cohesive, united fence of the thoughts, words and deeds of millions who have lived or who are living like you and me. By individuals has the great wrong that causes our preventable sorrow been built up; by individuals must it be weakened and transformed to right. And in this, too, it is to a great degree our fault; we care so little about rousing public sentiment, of lashing it into activity unless it concerns us individually.

The old Greek fable of Atlas, the African king who supported the world on his shoulders, has a modern application. The individual is the Atlas upon whom the fate of the world rests today. Let each individual do his best, and the result is foreordained. It is but a matter of the unconquerable massing of the units. Let each individual bear his part as faithfully as though all the responsibility rested on him, yet as calmly, as gently and as unworried as though all the responsibility rested on others.

Most accidents are preventable—as at Balaklava, "some one has blundered." One of the great disasters of the nineteenth century was the Johnstown flood, where the bursting of a dam caused the loss of more than 6,000 lives. The flood was not a mere accident: it was a crime. A leaking dam, for more than a year known to be unsafe, known to be unable to withstand any increased pressure, stood at the head of the valley. Below it lay a chain of villages containing over 45,000 persons in the direct line of the flood. When the heavy rains came, the weakened dam gave way. Had there been one individual, one member of the South Fork Fishing club, brave enough to have done merely his duty, one member with the courage to so move his fellows and to stir up public action to make the barrier safe over 6,000 murders could have been prevented.

When a tired engineer, sleepy from overwork, can no longer cheat nature of her needed rest and, drowsing for a moment in his cab, fails to see the red signal light of danger or to heed the exploding of the warning torpedo, the wreck that follows is not chargeable to the Almighty. It is but an awful memorial of a railroad corporation's struggle to save $2. One ounce of prevention is worth six pounds of coroner's inquest. It is a crime to balance the safety and sacredness of human life in the scales with the petty saving that comes from transforming a man into a mechanism and forgetting he has either a soul or a body. True, just and wise labor laws are part of society's weapon for fighting the preventable.

When a terrible fire makes a city desolate and a nation mourn, the investigation that follows usually shows that a little human foresight could have prevented it, or at least lessened the horror of it all. If chemicals or dynamite are stored in any building in excess of what wise legislation declares is safe, some one has been cruelly careless. Perhaps it is some inspector who has been disloyal to his trust by permitting bribes to chloroform his sense of duty. If the lack of fire escapes adds his quota to the list of deaths or if the avarice of the owner has made his building a fire trap, public feeling becomes intense, the newspapers are justly loud in their protests and in demands that the guilty ones be punished. "If the laws already on the statute books do not cover the situation," we hear from day to day, "new laws will be framed to make a repetition of the tragedy impossible." We are promised all kinds of reforms; the air seems filled with a spirit of regeneration; the mercury of public indignation rises to the point where "fever heat" seems a mild, inadequate term.

Then, as the horror begins to fade in the perspective of the past, men go quietly back to their own personal cares and duties, and the mighty wave of righteous protest that threatened so much dies in gentle lapping on the shore. What has been all men's concern seems soon to concern no one. The tremendous energy of the authorities seems like the gesture of a drunken man that starts from his shoulder with a force that would almost fell an ox, but when it reaches the hand it has expended itself, and the hand drops listlessly in the air with hardly power enough to disturb the serenity of a butterfly. There is always a little progress, a slight advance, and it is only the constant accumulation of these steps that is giving to the world greater dominion over the preventable.

The World's Need of Tolerance

By WILLIAM GEORGE JORDAN

Let us not seek to fit the whole world with shoes from our individual last. If we think that all music ceased to be written when Wagner laid down the pen, let us not condemn those who find enjoyment in light opera. Perhaps they may some time rise to our heights of artistic appreciation and learn the proper parts to applaud. If their lighter music satisfies their souls, is our Wagner doing more for us? It is not fair to take from a child its rag doll in order to raise it to the appreciation of the Venus de Milo. The rag doll is its Venus. It may require a long series of increasingly better dolls to lead it to realize the beauties of the marble woman of Melos.

Intolerance makes its great mistakes in measuring the needs of others from its own standpoint. Intolerance ignores the personal equation in life. What would be an excellent book for a man of forty might be worse than useless for a boy of thirteen. The line of activity in life that we would choose as our highest dream of bliss, as our paradise, might if forced on another be to him worse than the after death fate of the wicked according to the old fashioned theologians. What would be a very acceptable breakfast for a sparrow would be a very poor meal for an elephant.

When we sit in solemn judgment of the acts and characters of those around us and condemn them with the easy nonchalance of our ignorance, yet with the assumption of omniscience, we reveal our intolerance. Tolerance ever leads us to recognize and respect the differences in the natures of those who are near to us, to make allowance for differences in training, in opportunities, in ideals, in motives, in tastes, in opinions, in temperaments and in feelings. Intolerance seeks to live other people's lives for them: sympathy helps us to live their lives with them. We must accept humanity with all its weakness, sin and folly and seek to make the best of it, just as humanity must accept us. We learn this lesson as we grow older, and with the increase of our knowledge of the world we see how much happier life would have been for us and for others if we had been more tolerant, more charitable, more generous.—From "The Power of Truth," Published by Brentano's.

Yankee Yacht Experts

Our Marine Designers and Builders Lead World ⁘ The Magic Name of Herreshoff ⁘ Famous Bristol Boats ⁘ Captain Nat.

With Sir Thomas Lipton again in the field as a challenger for the America's cup all the world is getting in trim to give the deepest attention to the next races for that trophy, to be sailed for off Sandy Hook in August.

For more than half a century this cup has remained in the custody of the New York Yacht club in spite of the admitted fact that the seamanship of the men across the water is equal to that of the men who have sailed the various successive cup defenders to their victories. This same state of affairs exists as far as the coming races are concerned, and it is upon the question of yacht designing and building that the real test between the English and the Americans depends. This question and this alone, it is firmly believed by yachtsmen, will decide the coming contest between the Shamrock III. and the cup defender.

American yacht designers concededly are the best in the world, and Sir Thomas, on the occasion of his last unsuccessful effort to lift the cup, half in humor and half in despair, said he was afraid he never would be able to land the cup unless the Herreshoffs would consent to build a cup challenger for his use. It is the work of these American designers that has kept the cup safely on these shores since the America first brought it over, despite the fact that the best designers and sailors in the United Kingdom have made repeated efforts to win it back, spending millions of dollars in their attempts.

The name Herreshoff is a magic one in the world of yachting. It was Herreshoff who designed and built the Vigilant, the craft that defeated Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie in 1893; it was Herreshoff who designed and built the Defender, which lowered the earl's colors in 1895, when he made his second attempt to win the cup with the Valkyrie III., and it was Herreshoff also who designed and built the Columbia, which defeated the first Shamrock in 1899 and which again was relied upon to defeat the Shamrock II. two years ago, after the new Herreshoff yacht, the Constitution, had proved to be a little inferior to the cup defender of the previous race, called upon for a second time to protect the trophy. These and many other famous yachts have been built by the Herreshoffs, upon whom the yachtsmen of this country have once more to depend.

is a direct descendant of the noted Charles Brown, the colleague of Roger Williams. John B. Herreshoff was born in 1841 and was educated at Brown university. He was an enthusiast on the subject of boats in his boyhood, and he entered the business as a designer and builder in 1864. He lost his sight shortly after, but kept right on building boats, and today can explain the intricacies of machinery and the values of lines of construction as accurately as though he saw everything. Nathaniel Greene Herreshoff, the youngest brother of John B., however, is the member of the firm who is responsible for the almost unvarying success of the yachts built by the firm. He practically has lived on the water all his life and from the age of nine on has been considered an expert at handling sailing craft. He was graduated from the Institute of Technology and in 1869 went into the Corliss engine works in Providence and there worked and studied for eight years, after which he joined his brother in business.

Much of the attention of the Bristol firm was given to steam craft until a few years ago. Nathaniel Herreshoff does the actual designing, but John B. always is consulted. He runs his hands over the models, and his sensitive fingers find lumps and hollows that would be impossible for less educated digits to discover. Then he makes suggestions, calls attention to the slightest imperfections and tells how they may best be remedied. In this manner the two brothers evolved the Wasp, the Gloriana, Colonia, Vigilant, Defender, Columbia, Rainbow, Mineola, Yankee, Virginia and a host of other racing yachts that have made history. Yachtsmen of America, while admitting the great genius of Herreshoff, especially in designing big cutters, do not concede that all the brains in this particular direction are stowed away in one head. There are others who have held their own in the construction of smaller single stickers and in large schooners.

BOWDOIN B. CROWNINSHIELD.

For instance, there is William Gardner, a young man who has made a reputation among the marine architects of America. He began his career in the office of Stephen Roach's shipbuilding yard and thoroughly learned the manner of shipbuilding on the Delaware.

Charles D. Mosher is another thoroughly practical engineer and designer.

A. Cary Smith is a marine painter whose works on canvas have attracted no small amount of attention, but at the present time he is turning out more yachts than pictures. He designed the big steel schooner Tampa, now owned by Emperor William of Germany, but probably the best known racing craft from his board is the Amorita, owned by Richard Mansfield.

He also designed the Iroquois, which safely sailed through the great blizzard of 1888 without having a spar carried away; the seventy footer Titania, the schooner Lasca, a craft that later was bought by a German nobleman; the Ariel, and many others. It was Cary Smith who transformed the Herreshoff keel cutter Colonia into a centerboard schooner, which under the flag of Commodore Postley of the Larchmont (N. Y.) Yacht club was seldom defeated during the many years of its activity. Mr. Smith also designed some fast sound steamers and other steam craft.

The Boston designer, A. G. McVey, is a newspaper writer who has had charge of the yachting departments of various Boston papers for years. He has designed several thirty footers and forty footers and stands well in the ranks of the marine architects. Then there is George Stewart, who designed the cup defender Pilgrim in 1893; also E. Binney, C. Purdan and B. B. Crowninshield of Boston, who designed Thomas W. Lawson's Independence and a whole fleet of small craft; W. P. Stephens, Charles G. Davis, C. D. Mower, Clinton H. Crane, Larry Huntington, and many others who hail from New York. Proof is not wanting of the strength of America in marine architects.

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism.

"My mother has been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pa. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried. In fact, she is never without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with." For sale by Alvin & Bulger.

EXPENSIVE KISSES.

Two That Helped to Make Eighteenth Century History.

In the year 1794 the beautiful and charming Duchess of Gordon raised that famous regiment of soldiers called "the Gordon highlanders" by giving each recruit a guinea in gold and a kiss from her own lips. It is notorious that the regiment was raised to a full complement quicker than any other regiment in the British service. But the highlanders paid well for their kiss. They were sent immediately to fight the French, and in their first engagement 500 fell, killed and wounded.

In the year 1703 a stray kiss was the means of bringing about a bloody and expensive war. Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria was journeying in a neighboring state. One day he visited "the royal household," and while there his eye caught sight of a most beautiful maiden who happened to be near him. He was so bewitched with her charming personality that he impulsively and thoughtlessly implanted a kiss upon her fair cheek. She was a princess of the royal household, which the prince knew not, neither did he know that she was an affianced bride and that her betrothed was near by and saw the whole affair. Angry words and blows followed. A duel was fought and both principals were severely wounded. Diplomatic relations between the two kingdoms were suspended, and a long and bloody war ensued, all on account of a kiss which was paid for most dearly in blood and treasure.

Dangerous Symptoms.

The story is told of a Scotch preacher who gave his people long, strong sermons and delivered them in a remarkably deliberate manner. One Sunday he asked a friend who was visiting him to occupy his pulpit in the morning.

"An' were you satisfied wi' my preaching?" asked his friend as they walked home from the kirk.

"Weel," said his host slowly, "it was a fair discoorse, Will'm; a fair discoorse, but it pained me at the last to see the folk looking so fresh and wide-awake. I mistrust 'twasna sae long nor sae sound as it should hae been."

The Dictionary Habit.

Friend—What queer language your husband uses! He pronounces every word half a dozen different ways.

Wife—Yes, he has half a dozen different dictionaries.

We are inclined to believe in those whom we do not know because they have never deceived us.—Johnson.

The Postal Service

Uncle Sam the Greatest Mail Carrier In the World

OWING to the recent sweeping changes in the personnel of the staff of Postmaster General Henry C. Payne, public attention is directed to Uncle Sam's postal establishment, the greatest business concern in the world. It handles more pieces, employs more men, spends more money, brings more revenue, uses more agencies, reaches more homes, involves more details and touches more interests than any other human organization, public or private, governmental or corporate.

The postal services of England, France and Germany include the telegraph, which is a private enterprise here, and yet the aggregate figures of the postal business in this country surpass both post and telegraph in any of those lands. The receipts and expenditures of one system, of combined railroads and of the United States Steel corporation, perhaps, equal those of the postal service, but the only equality is in monetary figures and not in the extent and ramifications of organization.

POSTMASTER GENERAL PAYNE.

The post office department directed last year 75,924 post offices, mustered an army of 200,000 employees, spent $124,809,217, and its receipts were $121,848,047.

The delivery system of letters has been carried to a high state of perfection. Those residents of cities and large towns who accept as a matter of course the frequent rounds of the gray coated messengers of the post office find it difficult to recall that prior to 1863 the letter carrier service had no existence in the United States.

Rural free delivery is a much more recent addition to the carrier service, but is already well established. The estimates of the department are to the effect that the available territory for this service embraces about 1,000,000 square miles. The 11,650 routes now in operation cover about one-third of the available territory. From this it will be seen that it will require about 25,000 additional employees to take care of this territory. It is believed that within the next three years the extension of this service will have been completed.

In connection with the transportation of mails it may be a matter of interest to know how the bags and pouches used in carrying the billions of pieces of mail matter deposited in more than 80,000 post offices and postal cars are distributed and how they find their way back. Practically they are furnished by contract, and nearly all get in circulation through the New York office.

MRS. HENRY C. PAYNE.

The great trend of the mail is from east to west and from the large commercial centers to the less populous districts. How to recover the mail bags sent to remote sections and have them promptly returned to the large centers long ago became a serious problem. This was solved by designating certain cities, with adequate railroad facilities and ample storage room, as depositories for all surplus mail bags finding their way to offices in the surrounding states.

The money order division is one of the greatest of international clearing houses. Through its machinery remittances may be sent all over the world at the smallest expense and in the safest manner. The number of money orders issued is still, however, much below the business done by either Germany or England. The former country does a postal money order business nearly four times the volume of that done in this country, while England overtops us at least 200 per cent. The postal order has been far longer established in those countries, and there is little competition on the part of private enterprises, as here.

The advance of the foreign mail service has kept pace, so far as the conditions would allow, with the domestic service. It is only since 1874 that the postal union has existed which established uniform rates and conditions. Prior to that time the mails with foreign countries were regulated by separate treaties, providing different rates with almost every nation. Then the letter writer had to consult numerous schedules to learn how much he must prepay and what conditions must be fulfilled to secure the earliest dispatch.

Now, with the uniform foreign rate as well known as the domestic, he can drop his letter into the first box he comes to with the assurance that it will go by the quickest route to its destination, though at the ends of the earth, and all for the sum of 5 cents.

The first head of the postal department was Samuel Osgood of Massachusetts, under President Washington in 1789. It was not until 1829, however, that the postmaster general was considered a cabinet officer, when William T. Barry of Kentucky held that post under President Jackson. In all there have been just forty postmaster generals.

Henry C. Payne, the head of the postal department, is a New Englander by birth, and his first job with a salary attachment was as assistant to the post office at Shelburne, Mass., a fitting start in life for the man who was destined in later years to become the head of the department. When the civil war broke out young Payne wanted to enlist, but was rejected on account of his size. Early in the sixties he went to Milwaukee, which is still his home, and where he became a millionaire.

Mrs. Payne, who as the wife of a cabinet officer is one of the notable figures in Washington society, has in no small degree contributed to her husband's success in life. For many years she has been prominent in the Daughters of the Revolution and the Colonial Dames. Before her marriage she was Miss Lydia Van Dyke of an old New York colonial family. The Paynes were married in 1867.

Among all the thousands of Uncle Sam's post offices probably the most curious is the one in Beebe Plain, a town that stands half in Vermont and half in the province of Quebec, Canada. The old post office was built about seventy-five years ago exactly on the line between the United States and Canada, so that it stands in two countries and serves in the postal service of two nations. This combination post office is now being run by parent and child, the father being postmaster for Canada while the daughter is the postmistress for the Vermonters.

With all its great income the postal service is run at a loss, the expenditures since 1882 having been greater than the receipts. This is explained by the fact that whenever the receipts exceed or approach the expenditures it is the policy of congress to extend postal facilities and cheapen the cost of the service to the public. This was the case in 1882, when the letter postage was reduced from 3 cents per half ounce to 2 cents per ounce. Americans have every reason to be proud of the work done by Uncle Sam's post office department, for it is of the highest order of merit.

Nuremberg.

Nuremberg, whose walls are reported to be showing signs of rapid decay, was once almost the richest and most famous town in Europe. The well known saying of Pope Pius II.—that a Nuremberg citizen was better off than a Scottish king—was justified by the accounts that have been preserved of the town and its burghers. In the fifteenth century there came from Nuremberg the first watches known as "Nuremberg eggs;" the first cannon, the first gun lock, the first wire drawing machine, the clarinet, certain descriptions of pottery and the art of painting on glass. For 800 years its now decaying walls defended the valley of the Pegnitz against all enemies. Four hundred towers once topped the walls, but only about a third of them now remain.

European Tattooers.

Tattooing is not by any means confined to savage peoples. There are races in Europe which make it a regular practice, and men, women and children bear on their bodies ornamentations that are as ornate and queer, although not as extensive, as are markings on the bodies of the south sea savages.

These European tattooers are among the Albanians and Bosnians, who live in the famous and notorious Balkan peninsula.

NERVOUS HEADACHE BREEDS INSANITY

Many a person's whole pleasure in life is ruined by the fear of nervous headaches. Any little excitement, no matter what, business or social, brings them on. The feet and hands grow cold, the head is hot, the eyes stiff, the temples throb, and only in the quiet of a darkened room is relief found. This condition must be checked or it means complete mental ruin. To those people Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills come as a blessing. They do not stop, they cure the headaches. They do not blanket, they build up. They put the nervous system in a strong, vigorous, sturdy condition—a condition that gives one resistive power and enables them to again enjoy life's pleasures.

Mrs. George Hall, of No. 389 West Market Street, East Liverpool, Ohio, says: "I was bilious—had nervous headaches, hard and constant—there was a general feeling of weakness and depression. I was asked to try Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and did so, getting them at Larkins' drug store. The result was very good indeed as the biliousness overcome—the headaches cured and bodily and nerve strength furnished."

IF YOU HAVE PAIN IN YOUR BACK

Do Not Be Deceived. You have Kidney Trouble, and You Do Not Need a Physician to Tell You So.

Pain in the back is an almost infallible sign of kidney disease; a surer sign is the condition of your urine. If you have a pain in the back, then look to the condition of your urine. It is easily done. Take a glass or tumbler and fill it with urine; after it has stood 24 hours, if it has a sediment, if it is milky or cloudy, if it is pale or discolored, stringy or ropy, your kidneys and bladder are in a dangerous condition and need immediate attention, or the consequences may prove fatal. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the one medicine that really cures all diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood, rheumatism, dyspepsia and chronic constipation, and it will take you but a short trial to convince yourself of its wonderful curative power.

G. F. Sammer of No. 409 Tioga street, Syracuse, N. Y., in a recent letter says:

"I was afflicted for years with severe pains in my back and kidneys. I tried many doctors and many medicines, but got no relief. I bought a bottle of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and it has entirely cured me."

It is for sale by all druggists in the New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles—less than a cent a dose.

Sample bottle—enough for trial, free by mail.

HARVEST OF DEATH

Intense Heat Throughout the Country Results Fatally to Many.

DOZEN DIE IN GREATER NEW YORK

Hottest Weather in Two Years—Temperature Almost Unendurable and Prostrations Numerous — Evening Brings but Little Relief.

Pittsburg, July 10.—Instead of the cooling showers predicted for this section yesterday by the weather man Pittsburg residents experienced the hottest day so far this summer. The minimum temperature was 92 degrees and was registered at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. From this hour till 6 o'clock the mercury was stationary and the intense heat of the day caused people to swelter till long after midnight. The long list of fatalities caused by the torrid weather during the past week was increased yesterday by the deaths of seven persons from heat and the prostration of four others.

The Dead.

Frank Menet, aged 40, a mill worker of Duquesne.

Jane Humphrey, 8 months old, 7131 Idlewild street.

Mrs. Winifred Carr, aged 53, of South Twenty-second street, died at South Side hospital.

George Schiller, aged 83, died of heart disease, aggravated by the heat, at his home, rear 1731 Fifth avenue.

Zella L. Kimmel, 7 months old, 121 Edmond street.

George Norris, aged 22, of Wilmerding, went bathing in Monongahela river to escape the heat and was drowned.

Frank Meszaro, aged 30, a laborer, found dead in the cellar of his boarding house.

New York, July 10.—There were six deaths from heat in New York, six in Brooklyn, and fully two score of prostrations. It was the hottest day in two years, or since July 2, 1901, which was the hottest day in the hottest month since the local weather bureau opened in 1871. The official record is that day, two years ago, was 99 degrees. Yesterday it ran to 94 degrees at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Down the streets humanity suffered terrible. In the tenements the heat seemed to be almost unendurable. Little children suffered extremely. This state of affairs continued from early morning until late at night. In the evening the scorched inhabitants sought relief on roofs, at the nearby beaches, or by taking car rides.

Philadelphia, July 10.—This vicinity experienced the hottest weather in two years, the maximum temperature registering 96 degrees at 5 p. m. One death, one person rendered insane and a dozen prostrations, all due to the hot weather, were reported by the police.

Chicago, July 10.—Two deaths and 10 prostrations resulted from the heat. A heavy thunderstorm sent the temperature down from 90 to 72. During the storm a number of buildings in the business portion of the city were flooded by the heavy rainfall.

Springfield, Ill., July 10.—Thursday broke the heat record for the year. The government thermometer on top of the federal building recorded a maximum of 97 degrees, while on the streets thermometers ranged all the way from 98 to 104 in the shade.

Cincinnati, July 10.—Thursday was the hottest day of the year, the thermometer registering 95 degrees. Twelve prostrations were reported, three of the victims being in a serious condition.

St. Louis, July 10.—The excessive heat continues here, the weather bureau reporting 97 degrees. A number of prostrations occurred, but no case has resulted fatally.

Lincoln, Neb., July 10.—The mercury stood at 99 degrees Thursday. This was the hottest of the year. One man was prostrated by the heat and may die.

Burlington, Ia., July 10.—The thermometer has stood at 100 degrees for two days. There has been one prostration from the heat.

FOUR FATALITIES AT CROSSING

Wagon Containing Nine People Struck by Pennsylvania Train Near Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, July 10.—A westbound Pennsylvania train struck a wagon containing nine people at a crossing eight miles east of this city, killing four, fatally injuring three and seriously injuring two of the occupants of the wagon.

Robert Copenhagen, with his wife and two children, aged 8 and 2 years respectively, were going from Red Comb junction to Madisonville. A daughter of a neighbor and four of their boarders accompanied them. They did not observe the train which was coming at high speed. When the engineer saw them he blew his whistle, but it was too late to reverse or stop the train. The mules on hearing the whistle stopped and could not be moved. The animals were across the track and escaped unhurt, while the wagon was wrecked and all the occupants either killed or injured. The train brought the victims to this city.

Wheat Yield of New South Wales.

Sydney, N. S. W., July 10.—The Morning Herald says the estimated wheat yield of the colony is 13,418,400 bushels.

What Shall We Have for Dessert?

This question arises in the family every day. Let us answer it to-day. Try a delicious and healthful dessert. Prepared in two minutes. No boiling! no baking! add boiling water and set to cool. Flavors:—Lemon, Orange, Raspberry and Strawberry. Get a package at your grocers to-day. 10 cts.

New Rural Routes.

Washington, July 10.—Two rural free delivery routes will be established July 15 at Orville, Wayne county, O. The routes cover an area of 48 square miles, containing a population of 1,185. On Aug. 1 an additional route will be established at Kane, McKean county, Pa. The route covers an area of 12 square miles, containing a population of 422.

Six Years for Overissuing Stock.

Berlin, July 10.—The court at Duisburg, Rhenish Prussia, has sentenced former Company Director Terrinden, of Oberhausen, to six years' confinement in the penitentiary for overissuing stock and other offenses. Terrinden fled to the United States upon the discovery of his irregularities in the summer of 1901 and later was extradited.

Bids for New Court House.

Greensburg, Pa., July 10.—The bids for the new court house were opened. Miller & Sons, of Pittsburg, are the lowest bidders. Their bid was for granite, $846,000, and for stone, $760,000. It is likely they will be awarded the contract.

Mrs. Blaine Dying.

Augusta, Me., July 10.—There is little change in the condition of Mrs. James G. Blaine, her physicians saying that life is simply wearing away. The end may come suddenly or she may live several days.

Drank Wood Alcohol.

Sewickley, Pa., July 10.—Anne Foley, aged about 50 years, died from drinking wood alcohol at the residence of Mrs. T. W. Fitch, on Maple avenue, where she was employed as a domestic.

Pittsburger Drowned in Gull Lake.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 10.—Elmer McGibbney, aged 21, of Pittsburg, Pa., was drowned in Gull lake while swimming. McGibbney was an employe of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie railroad.

Vessel and Cargo Lost.

Portland, Me., July 10.—The total destruction of the steamship Heathford at Colombo, island of Ceylon, is reported. The Heathford had put into Colombo with her cargo of 30,000 half chests of tea on fire and both vessel and cargo were lost.

Naval Deserter Arrested.

Kansas City, July 10.—Byron West, of this city, who deserted from the naval training ship Charleston at Charleston, S. C., last November, was arrested here and placed in the county jail.

A Surgical Operation

is always dangerous—do not submit to the surgeon's knife until you have tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It will cure when everything else fails—it has done this in thousands of cases. Here is one of them: "I suffered from bleeding and protruding piles for 20 years. Was treated by different specialists and used many remedies, but obtained no relief until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Two boxes of this salve cured me 18 months ago and I have not had a touch of the piles since."—H. A. Tisdale, Summerton, S. C. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy equals DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by Alvin H. Bulger.

"A TALE OF TWO CITIES"

Leaving Detroit at 4 in the afternoon, aboard the palatial steamer "Eastern States" or "Western States" of the famous Detroit & Buffalo Line, passengers are afforded an interesting and panoramic view of Detroit's harbor, teeming with the commerce of the Great Lakes, and bordered with its countless evidences of manufacturing wealth and activity. Passing down the river, Fort Wayne appears, bristling with its war-like aspects, and crowned with "old glory" gently curling in the breeze, seemingly waving adieus to passing travelers.

Again, we are among scenes of simple country life—beautiful farms and artistic rural homes dotting the banks on either side and the verdant islands mid-stream—and, as we float peacefully out upon the bosom of "Old Erie," one feels that the cares of life have lagged behind.

Now the varying course of the ship from time to time brings to view the silvery moon and its rippling reflections in the vessel's wake, while the strains of some dreamy waltz, enchantingly rendered, soothes the ear, and cool, invigorating breezes fan the brow as the traveler is borne along, almost regretting that nature demands its sweet repose.

It is sunrise and we are soon to end our journey. As we pass the breakwater the harbor seems stretching out to welcome our noble vessel, and the tourist, to Buffalo's hospitable environs. Once again we are among scenes of activity, but so refreshed that our journey seems like a fairy's legend.

DELEHANTY'S BODY IDENTIFIED

Remains of Famous Ball Player Are Shipped to Washington—Death Being Investigated.

Buffalo, July 10.—The body found in the river below the falls was identified at Drummondville as that of Ed Delehanty, the famous outfielder of the Washington American league team.

The body was mangled. One leg was torn off, presumably by the propeller of the Maid of the Mist, near whose landing the body was found. M. A. Green, a stockholder in the Washington team, identified the body by the teeth, two crippled fingers and the clothing. The body was shipped to Washington.

Mr. Green identified the luggage left by Delehanty on the train at the bridge last Thursday night when he was put off. In it was a pass to the Washington grounds made out to Mrs. Delehanty. Delehanty's effects have been sent to his wife by the Pullman people.

Frank Delehanty, of the Syracuse team, and E. J. McGuire, a brother-in-law from Cleveland, are here investigating the death of the player. They do not believe that Delehanty committed suicide or that he had been on a spree in Detroit.

Raid on Betting Ring.

Chicago, July 10.—Shortly after the sixth race at Washington park a number of constables, who had been held at bay all afternoon, were admitted to the betting ring. Seven bookmakers for whom the constables had warrants were placed under arrest on a charge of gambling. The men arrested were: James O'Leary, Joseph Yeager, Fred Pesch, Marcus Cartwright, M. Riordan, Bernard J. (Kid) Weller and Samuel Summerfield. They gave bonds of $200 each pending a hearing. The raid was made at the instance of a local attorney. The move is said to have been brought about by several horse owners who were ruled off the track recently at Highland park.

Poisoned by Eating Ice Cream.

FAVOR CLOSER TIES

United States and Great Britain to Act in Interest of Peace of the World.

DECLARATION OF KING EDWARD

Ministers Heartily Approve of Monroe Doctrine—American Officers Royally Welcomed at Buckingham Palace. Toast Drank to President Roosevelt.

London, July 10.—In formally welcoming the American naval officers to England King Edward took occasion to make an emphatic declaration in favor of closer relations between the United States and Great Britain. His majesty did not speak of an alliance or even an understanding, but the impression was clear from his remarks that he desired that the two nations move together in the interests of the peace of the world. Some of the king's ministers also took advantage of the occasion to impress on the American officers their cordial approval of the Monroe doctrine and their desire that it be supported by American influences in a way which would place it above all criticism.

The royal welcome was extended to the American officers at Buckingham palace, where, at 8:30 p. m., commenced the dinner given in their honor by King Edward. The table was decorated by Marechal Neil roses and gold plate brought from Windsor was used. The king commanded the most distinguished of the empire to attend and 36 guests were present. On the king's right sat Ambassador Choate and on his left Rear Admiral Cotton.

The king was dressed in the uniform of an admiral of the British fleet. On the conclusion of the dinner his majesty in a tactful speech expressed gratification at the acceptance of his invitation and cordially welcomed Rear Admiral Cotton and his squadron to England. He asserted that what he said expressed the sentiment not only of himself, but of the whole British people, and he proposed a toast to President Roosevelt, for whom his majesty said he entertained the highest consideration and admiration.

Ambassador Choate responded and in an eloquent speech echoed the wish of the king for the maintenance and promotion of more cordial relations between the two great English speaking nations.

The king further emphasized his gratification by writing at the table a message to President Roosevelt, in which he stated that it had given him the greatest pleasure to welcome the American squadron. King Edward's cordiality made a great impression on the American officers, who left the function convinced of the desire on the part of Great Britain to maintain the closest relations with the American republic.

New Mast Stepped on Shamrock III.

New York, July 10.—The big mast of the Shamrock III was lifted out of her and the mate to it, but 3½ feet taller, was stepped in its place. The new spar was one she had used in her early trials at Weymouth, Eng., and will give an opportunity for greater sail spread, which Designer Fife evidently desires after watching the new boat's trials in the calm weather that has prevailed off Sandy Hook most of the time for the last 10 days. Both Shamrocks will be taken into drydock and cleaned and the underbody of the challenger repainted. The tuning up process will be resumed on Monday and will involve daily trials between the Shamrock I and the Shamrock III until Sir Thomas and Mr. Fife are satisfied that the challenger cannot be improved.

Convention of Christian Endeavor.

Denver, July 10.—The twenty-first annual meeting of the United Society of Christian Endeavor opened here. The attendance at the opening session, though taxing the capacity of the immense tent, which had been provided for the occasion, did not include as many delegates as had been expected on account of delayed trains. The opening of the convention was preceded by the annual business meeting of the Christian Endeavor corporation, at which the officers for the ensuing year were elected and reports of officers submitted.

Smelters Still Idle.

Denver, July 10.—The American Smelting and Refining company announced that the Globe Smelter would be reopened, but no men applied for work and the company was unable to resume operations. The strikers are orderly, but strong guards are maintained at both the Globe and Grant smelters.

For 40 years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

TO IMPROVE RURAL ROADS

County Commissioners Are Willing to Proceed With the Work.

MANY ENDORSE THE MOVE

To the residents of that portion of St. Clair township bordering on the Calcutta road is due the credit of starting a movement, tardy as it is, that will eventually result in the improvement of every country road in Columbiana county. The agitation has been persistent and the farmers in that locality now have the assurance that sooner or later, if they will perform their part, they will be enabled to drive from their homes to East Liverpool without the danger of becoming fast in the mud on the country road several miles from town.

The residents of other rural localities have watched the progress of the agitation with interest, and the result has been that the county commissioners are now very seriously considering a plan whereby the farmers in every section of the county will be benefited. The determination on the part of the board this week to improve the road leading past Hibbett's mill to Coal hollow is a good one, and indicates that the members propose to go as far as their limited means will permit in the work of road improvements. Their experience, covering a period of five years, however, has taught them that the sort of materials used during that time will not do and an effort will be made to introduce something more substantial and durable than planks. The improvement will include the repairing of the floor of the bridge over Little Yellow creek, and it may be that the planks will be replaced with new ones and that a layer of concrete will be put in.

The commissioners have been hampered in no small degree by the lack of funds with which to carry on the work of road improvement. It may not be generally known to many, but it is a fact that there has never been a specific levy for the improvement of highways. The county authorities have never had what is known as a road fund, and every cent that has been used for this purpose has been taken from the bridge fund. This would seem a trifle irregular, but it was the only way the board could see around the question.

A large number of prominent farmers and others residing in cities have been studying the problem for a long time, and can come to but one conclusion. That is, to create a fund for the purpose of grading and putting in shape for their paving or macadamizing the roads leading into the principal cities and towns of the county. The commissioners can do nothing along this line, no matter what their personal feeling might be in the matter, without funds. It has been suggested that the commissioners make a levy for road improvements, and that the fund so acquired be used for that purpose and no other. Nearly all of the counties in the state have this apportionment to draw from, and the excellent driveways in those localities will stand as evidence of the good work done.

It is admitted that Columbiana is far behind its sister counties in the matter of improved roads, and the reason is apparent when it is known there has been no fund for this specific purpose. Several members of the board of county commissioners have been interviewed, and while they are very much in favor of doing something to better the condition of the roads, assert they are unable to proceed under the present circumstances. W. K. George, one of the commissioners, made a statement last evening which will be worth hearing. Mr. George, being a farmer himself, is very much in favor of the move, and does not hesitate to express his views on the subject. He said:

"The commissioners are unanimous in their opinion that the roads should be improved, but without a special levy can do nothing. We had thought that a fund might be created by the levying of one mill. It may be that a half mill would be sufficient for the present, but there must be a fund to start with. With the money acquired in this manner grading can be done and hills cut away, so that the people can go ahead with the paving or macadamizing whenever they see fit. It could not be expected that our board would be in shape to do more than grade within the first few years, and they could only perform this work where the country roads were much traveled; in other words, those thoroughfares leading into the cities and towns. The highways less traveled could be given attention later on, but it is a fact that the main county roads are a disgrace, and will have to be fixed very soon in some manner. It is my opinion that the average taxpayer could stand the extra levy better now than at any time in many years. What we are endeavoring to ascertain just now is whether or not the people want the improvement. If they do, they will certainly expect to pay for it, and the only way this can be brought about is through a levy. If the taxpayers want the roads graded and improved we are more than willing to comply. An effort is being made to feel the public pulse, and as soon as we are satisfied that the citizens of the county are willing to stand the additional taxation there will be no further delay."

POPE MAY LIVE SEVERAL DAYS

Showed Marked Improvement Following a Second Severe Operation.

AT PRAYER WHEN FOUND

Rome, July 10.—(Special)—The pope's physicians say he may live several more days. A second operation was performed and a large quantity of serum was extracted from the pleural cavity. The pontiff bore the operation well. Respiration and heart action showed a marked improvement. After the operation he rested tranquily in the library.

Shortly after sunrise, when Dr. Lapponi approached the illustrious patient's bed, he found him with hands clasped and in the attitude of prayer. In answer to the physician's query if he needed anything his holiness replied: "Today finishes a week since I was taken ill. I am thanking God for having given me strength to still pray to Him."

A third physician, Dr. Rossoni, has been called in to consult with Drs. Lapponi and Mezzoni, the relapse of yesterday necessitating this action.

Following advices from the vatican, the cardinals throughout the world are hurrying Romeward, anticipating the holding of a conclave for the choice of the pope. These preparations are being undertaken in a spirit of profound grief and as the performance of a sacred duty.

NO MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

Held Last Evening, Although a Call Had Been Issued—Business Neglected.

Owing to the absence from the city of three members of council, President Horwell, Barlow and Cannon, the meeting called for last evening was not held. As a result the several very important questions to have been acted upon are still hanging fire, and it is possible that the city fathers will be called to task for their negligence.

It was expedient that some disposition be made of the tax levy, it being a requirement of the code that it be submitted to the county auditor by July 10. The ordinance providing for the creation of offices under the fire and police heads were due to have been passed and the report on Pennsylvania avenue is scheduled for acceptance.

UNIFORM SYSTEM

Of Accounting to Be Inaugurated. Expert Here to Explain Methods.

G. H. McKenzie, an expert accountant connected with the department of the auditor of state, arrived in the city this morning and spent most of the day at city hall.

He is here to inaugurate the uniform system of accounting among the city officials.

He started with Auditor Davidson and will continue his stay in the city until every official has learned the system.

DULL TIMES ON THE FOURTH

Will Result Hereafter If Safety Board Idea Is Carried Out.

DESTRUCTIVE EXPLOSIVES

Were Discussed by Board and Recommendations to the City Council.

MAY BE THE FINAL RESULT

Dull times on future holidays may be the fate of the little boy in the Crockery City. It is possible that there will be no more shooting of fire crackers; no more Roman candles, no more sky rockets and, in fact, a Fourth of July celebration in this city may not be again a day looked forward to by the fun-loving and innocent urchin in anticipation of the glorious, old-time demonstration. To the board of public safety can be given the credit for the agitation of the abolishment of such celebrations.

D. M. Ogilvie, a member of the board, brought up for discussion at the meeting last evening the question. He stated that something should be done, and that immediately to prevent the sale of explosives next year. It was not, however, his idea to prevent all of the pleasure generally derived from the indulgence in fire works. He simply advocates the abolishment of destructive displays. Nevertheless it having been decided by the board to have the following city ordinance rigidly enforced, there can be but one result—no fire works of any kind:

"No person or persons shall burn, set fire to or shoot off any sky rockets, Roman candles, Chinese fire crackers, or any kind of fire works of any description whatsoever or by whatever name known or cast, throw or cause to be exploded any torpedoes or any other explosive material by whatever name or names known; provided, however, that the council may by resolution permit experienced persons to make on special occasions, pyrotechnic displays at such places and under regulations as may be prescribed by council."

The above ordinance governs every explosive used on the national holiday and if enforced will surely put a stop to the customary manner of celebration. It was argued by the board that the ordinance should be enforced to prevent a repetition of the damage incurred in the city on last Saturday. The amount lost as the result of the big crackers aggregated at least $200 and numerous people were badly hurt.

For the protection of both property and lives, the board took the matter under advisement. It took no definite step and will investigate the question for another week before final action. It is thought the members will by that time decide on a recommendation to council to change the ordinance so that its enforcement will work only against the more destructive explosives.

DIFFERENT STORY TOLD BY CONSTINE

MAN BOUND OVER FOR HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Confessed to Chief Wyman While Going to Lisbon—Light on Subject.

Chief Wyman returned last evening from Lisbon, where he took John Constine, the Irish section hand, who was bound over to court by Mayor Weaver on a charge of highway robbery. The chief states that he had no trouble whatever in landing his prisoner in the county jail.

While en route Constine talked freely, and if the story he told of the robbing of H. O. Sampsell be true the latter's statement to the press and at police headquarters was concocted to shield himself irrespective of the jeopardy into which he cast Constine. Constine said that he met Sampsell early in the afternoon and that they had several drinks together at the National House. Sampsell, said he, insulted a woman at the hotel and was compelled to make a hasty exist. Constine then said:

"I followed him and we both went to the upper side of the freight station and there drank a pint of whisky which Sampsell had bought. Sampsell then asked me to walk up the track with him. I consented and upon arriving at the Spring on Thompson's green he said he would like to have another pint of liquor. I told him I would go after it and he reached in his pocket to get me the money. What caused me to do it I do not know, but when he produced his wallet I grabbed the money and started up the track. Both of us were pretty drunk and that is the only reason I can give for my foolish act. Just think, I won't get less than 15 years for the job and I could earn the amount I stole in four days."

PROBATE COURT

Lisbon, July 10.—(Special)—Anna L. Dickey, having resigned as administratrix with the will annexed, of the estate of the late David Evans, of Elkrun township, John Patterson has been appointed administrator de bonis non, with the will annexed, under bond of $1,200. There will be no appraisement.

The will of the late Philip Meister, of Franklin township, has been filed for probate and the application is set for hearing Saturday, July 18.

Circus Is Stranded.

Salem, July 10.—The H. A. Mann's circus, which exhibited here last Friday night, has stranded at Leetonia. It showed there Wednesday night to a small audience and yesterday it was still there. The show was to have exhibited at Columbiana yesterday, but owing to continued bad business on the part of those in front of the aggregation it is now on the rocks.

Population Increased.

Lisbon, July 10.—(Special)—The assessors' returns show that from April 1, 1902, to April 1, 1903, there were born in Columbiana county 612 males and 553 females a total of 1,165. During the same period there were 538 deaths, 285 being males. The births exceeded the deaths 627.

MAKING FAST PROGRESS ON DOUBLE TRACK WORK

Pittsburg, July 10.—Work on the double-tracking of the Cleveland & Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania lines west is progressing so rapidly that the officials expect to have it completed sooner than was planned when the work was begun on January 17. It was then thought that it would require 15 months for its completion. An official of the railroad company said yesterday that the entire division would be double-tracked and both tracks in service by January 1 next. The reconstruction of the Cleveland & Pittsburg has involved some exceedingly difficult engineering problems. The contracting company now engaged in the double-track work has contracts for building a second track between Rochester and Cleveland, a distance of nearly 125 miles.

There is a total of 62 bridges to be double-tracked. This is a much larger number of such structures than is usual on the same mileage as that of the Cleveland & Pittsburg. The longest bridge is across the Little Beaver river. Most of the others are short, but many of them are high above the stream beds and will require a large amount of costly masonry for the sub-structures.

The total cost of the work will aggregate nearly $8,000,000. It is the largest double-tracking contract awarded by the Pennsylvania for years. The increased and increasing traffic over the Cleveland & Pittsburg has been calling for more track facilities for two years. The Pennsylvania had completed plans for the second track in January, 1902, but owing to the evidences of the freight congestion which were then apparent it was decided to delay the beginning of the work until freight conditions had fallen back to normal.

At the present time the traffic on the division is enormous, considering the track facilities available for use. During the past two weeks a condition approaching that of an entire freight blockade prevailed for two days. This was caused partly by the necessity for a large and quick movement of freight to lake ports and partly by impediments due to the improvement work. A total of nearly 60 miles of the second track bed has been graded. Two bridges have been double-tracked, and these two are the longest bridges on the division. Unless some unexpected obstacle arises the entire division will be double-tracked by the end of the present year.

THE RECORD IS SMASHED

Three Members of Board of Public Safety Attend to Business.

LOOKING FOR POSITIONS

The board of public safety, three members strong, President Grafton, Ogilvie and Dawson, met in the council chamber, city hall, last evening and succeeded in breaking the record for the length of time in session. In less than an hour the members had disposed of the business before them. Mr. Taylor, although in the city, was not present.

The first business taken up by the board was the consideration of numerous bills. The majority of them were approved and ordered paid. In regard to the bill of H. E. Moon, councilman, who sold feed to the city to the amount of $103.20, half of which falls to the safety board for payment, no action was taken, it being the opinion of two members that the solicitor's advice should be asked for. Grafton said that he thought it should be paid because Moon had sold the feed cheaper than it could have been purchased from any other dealer in the city. Ogilvie was of the same opinion, but Dawson stated that if it is unlawful to pay the bill it should be held up and his motion to get the solicitor to make a statement carried. It will be remembered that the board of public service turned down its portion of the bill, and as yet it has not approved it. The contention is that an official of the city cannot make a contract with the city. Moon and others argue that it was no contract.

Among the big batch of bills approved were those of the police and firemen, who will receive their money in good time. Ex-Chief Thomas V. Thompson's bill of $1.50 for feeding prisoners was turned down, it having no o. k. attached. The bill will likely be paid at the next meeting.

There having been no meeting of council since the preceding meeting of the board, none of the members were able to state in what light the councilmen are looking upon the appointment of a night watchman for city hall. As a result President Grafton appointed Ogilvie and Dawson a committee to confer with the honorable body regarding the question. While discussing the matter President Grafton introduced the idea of drafting rules by which prisoners confined in the city jail must be governed. He stated that the interior of the jail is going to be placed in first-class condition and in order that prisoners be restrained from defacing the walls and cells he thought stringent rules should be made. It was finally decided to have Grafton act with the chief of police in compiling them.

There was but one committee to report. Grafton had been inspecting the East End, and in regard to the placing of a fire plug for the people who petitioned the board at the last meeting, he stated that he thought the people needed at least one plug. For one entire block the residences are absolutely without fire protection. Chief Morley was authorized to locate the plug and have it set.

Three applications for positions were accepted and filed. William E Moore wants to be a policeman; T. M. Shay would like to become a fire laddie and J. R. Turnbull is ambitious to become one of the finest.

A HEAVY RAIN AFFORDED RELIEF

To Sweltering Citizens and Cleansed the Streets—Mercury Took Tumble.

This morning's rain was perhaps the heaviest of the season and came as a great relief to sweltering citizens. Another appreciable result was the thorough cleansing of the streets and the marked drop o mercury was most welcome.

Tanyard run was on a rampage and had the rain continued for a short time longer considerable damage would have resulted. At the Armour building on West Market street the muddy waters swirled around the foundation on the eastern side, reaching almost to the windows.

The people who live along the stream are particularly thankful for the shower. In the vicinity of the West End pottery the filth, carried down the stream, as a result of it being used as a sanitary sewer, had been sending forth a sickening odor since the advent of the hot weather. Most of the foul smelling refuse was carried away by the rushing water.

Wilson's drug store in East End was flooded and slight damage resulted.

WATCH STOLEN

Huckster Reported to Officers That Miscreant Touched His Vest.

John M. Wilson, the well known huckster of Avondale street, appeared at city hall this morning and reported the loss of a gold watch. He stated that he was at work in a building in the East End yesterday and that the watch was stolen from his vest, which he had discarded, owing to the extreme heat. He did not discover the loss until nearly home last evening.

Whoever stole it wanted only the watch, as he did not disturb the chain.

THE NEWS REVIEW VOTING CONTEST

Grows in Interest and Has Already Passed the 30,000 Mark.

HOW CANDIDATES STAND

The News Review voting contest is becoming more popular every day, and the last end of the fight promises to be intensely interesting. It is conceded on every hand that there never was so generous an offer from any publication in this section of the state, and the candidates and their friends are showing their appreciation by bringing in the votes by the hundreds.

As will be noted by the figures published each day, the number of votes being received is large, and it will not be long until all the readers have passed the 30,000 mark. Since the extremely hot weather set in the candidates have redoubled their efforts, the prospects of spending a few weeks on the lakes or some days on shipboard having spurred the aspirants to harder work.

Team Has Withdrawn.

Martin's Ferry, July 10.—At the meeting of the Vigilant hose company they passed a resolution to withdraw from the Northeastern Ohio Volunteer Firemen's association. The reason for this action was that the members did not believe in paying out the membership fee when they have no running team or anything else to be benefited by remaining longer in the association.

Judge Boone in Harness.

Salem, July 10.—Ex-Probate Judge J. C. Boone is engaged in fixing up his offices over Hanna & Kridler's office with the view of again taking up his office practice. The rooms will be neatly fitted out and he will again turn his attention to business after a long rest.

PEST HOUSE MUCH WANTED

In the Opinion of Members of the Local Board of Health.

BOARD SCHEDULED TO MEET

This Evening—In Addition to Pest House Question Garbage Matter May

COME UP FOR FINAL ACTION

There will be a meeting of the board of health this evening, at which many matters of interest to the public will be discussed and possibly acted upon. The garbage question, one that has baffled the board for years, will be given another whirl. It is the intention of the board to finally dispose of the question if possible.

The members will likely decide upon a recommendation to council regarding the garbage question. They have had it under study for several weeks and are of the opinion that the only solution of the problem is to make a contract with some person to handle and dispose of every bit of garbage produced in the city. Sanitary Policeman Burgess has given the matter much careful thought and he states that the board can do nothing else. Every day he has numerous complaints from residents who want their garbage removed. They are willing to have it hauled at their own expense, but in some cases they can get no one to do the work.

If a contract is made with one person he will be compelled to haul the garbage from the residence at least once a week, and where necessary, twice. The general objection to the present manner of disposing of the filth is based upon the action of the majority of haulers. They will not cart the garbage for a long distance, and when people living in second and third stories ask for a wagon they can not get it.

Another important question to be considered is that providing for the erection of a pest house. It is argued by the members of the board that a house of the kind will pay for itself in less than a year and that it is an absolute necessity. During the present year the board has paid out enough money to build three houses, and it is tired of the proposition. The largest bill to be presented tonight will be one incurred as the result of the contagious disease in the East End, and it is stated that had the city a pest house the bill would only be half as large.

On the outskirts of the city are several locations that would be favorable for pest house sites, and they may also be considered.

WOMAN KILLED

By Train on Pennsylvania—Was Well Known in East Liverpool.

Cambridge Springs, July 10.—(Special.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Hessen was struck by train No. 5, on the Pennsylvania railroad, and almost instantly killed. Mrs. Hessen's home was at Letart, W. Va., and she was known to many in East Liverpool.

The remains were taken to Freedom to await the arrival of relatives from her home, who were at once notified of the accident.

Mrs. Spaulding Buried.

Salem, July 10.—Private funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Anna Spaulding, who was killed by a Garfield avenue street car Tuesday evening, were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home in Garfield avenue. Rev. H. W. Dewey, of the M. E. church, officiated. Burial followed in Hope cemetery.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

HAS LEFT GOODWIN'S.

A well-known trade journal has the following announcement concerning a local pottery salesman:

"J. Lee Richards, the well known traveling salesman of the Goodwin Pottery company, East Liverpool, O., has left this firm and will take charge of the china and house furnishing departments of the Bass Dry Goods company, the large wholesale dealers in Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Richards will do the buying and managing of these lines.

"The china and house furnishing departments are located on the fifth floor, but under the able supervision of the new manager they will be removed to the basement, which is being remodeled and improved in many ways. They expect this change to be completed by July 7. Their stock of dinner ware, toilet ware, bric-a-brac, etc., will be greatly enlarged, as the company intends to make this line a specialty.

"Mr. Richards is known to a large number of the trade, who wish him much success in his new position. He was with the Bennett Pottery company, of Baltimore, Md., at one time."

POTTERY AS PREMIUMS.

A number of eastern newspaper publishers are offering dinner sets, usually consisting of 46 or 48 pieces, for every new subscription that is accompanied by the payment of $1 and the additional 12 cents every week for a year. These installments represent an expenditure of $7 or $8 on the part of the subscriber, but the latter, besides being furnished for a year with a newspaper that would ordinarily cost between $3 and $4 also obtains a serviceable dinner set.

This new departure has struck the popular fancy as is evidenced by the tremendous quantity of goods being circulated through these channels. The scheme originated in Philadelphia, and the craze has spread with astonishing rapidity.

This wholesale presentation of dinner sets threatens to have an even more disastrous effect on the legitimate sale of crockery than the scheme trade of the other concerns that preceded the newspaper in the field, and is causing considerable worry in the ranks of legitimate dealers.

A LATE FAD.

London is at present passing through a craze for finger bowls. These adjuncts are more ornate in design and more dainty in appearance than ever before. And in consequence they are more fashionable than ever before. It is quite the thing now to introduce two sets of finger bowls in the course of one ceremonious dinner, one after the salad and one following the dessert. A charming idea is to float on the water contained in the finger bowls a tiny flower or two, a spring of heliotrope or a violet. Each bowl stands on a delicate little saucer of the same ware as itself.

Persian decorations, so long evident in dress trimmings, upholsteries and wall paper, are now obtaining in tableware, some beautiful dessert, entree and game plates being thus decorated. Medallions, delicate in tracery as though made of lace, adorn the newest soup plates, in color combinations of green and gold.

OUTSIDE PLANTS.

The Steubenville pottery is preparing to re-open within the next 10 days, when repairs will be completed. The fact that none of the plants will be affected by labor troubles has met with a wave of relief. The La Belle and Wheeling potteries will resume Monday, after an idleness of about two weeks for repairs. The claymakers will go to work Friday in order to have enough clay made by Monday so that the plants may be put in full blast at once. It is very likely that the Warwick plant will resume Monday also.

POTTERY BUILDING COMPLETED.

Salem, July 10.—Charles Lacy, of this city, who had the contract for the brick work on the new pottery which is being built at Carrollton by the Carrollton Pottery company, has completed his work and returned to this city. The building of this pottery is 406x128, and in places two stories in height. Mr. Lacy and his force of men were at work on the building for three months.

FILLING-IN WILL BE SLOW.

It is probable that the decorators, particularly the fillers-in, will have but little work to do until the end of the summer. At least there will not be orders enough to keep all in the trade steadily employed. The encroachments of decalcomania work is being keenly felt by the fillers-in.

WEST END WORKING.

The West End pottery has started again, being one of the first plants in the city to get under way since the loaf. There is promise of a very busy season at the West End and the improvements recently made will help materially to get the orders out on time.

SALEM PLANT TO START.

Salem, July 10.—The Salem China company will not be started until July 20. The shut down will be longer than originally intended for the reason that the company has been unable to obtain enough bricklayers to make the necessary repairs. The kilns are being repaired with arches and cut work.

AMONG THE DEALERS.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by J. J. Forsyth, Atlanta, Ga.

The firm of Rottman & Zucker, Milwaukee, Wis., is reported in financial difficulties.

Frank Kern, proprietor of the Mattoon Department store, Mattoon, Ill., has sold out.

George K. Reed & Co., Fall River, Mass., are trying to compromise with their creditors at 20 cents on the dollar.

J. W. Slater, Traverse City, Mich., has bought out C. O. Smith, of Thompsonville, Mich., and will conduct the store there as a branch of Traverse City.

A petition in bankruptcy against D. Laffler, Norfolk, Va., has been dismissed, Laffler having settled with the petitioners on a basis of 25 cents on the dollar.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by the P. H. Snook & Austin Furniture company, Atlanta, Ga. The liabilities are scheduled at between $25,000 and $30,000 and the assets at about $5,000.

H. B. Sahler, doing business under the name of the Enterprise Furniture & Carpet company at Joliet, Ill., has been succeeded by a corporation under the same name with an authorized capital stock of $25,000.

The W. T. Ladd Trading company, Fort Worth, Tex., and the Cleburne Furniture company, of Cleburne, Tex., have consolidated at Fort Worth under the name of the Ladd Furniture & Carpet company, with a paid up capital stock of $15,000.

INJUNCTION

Secured Against the C. & P. in the Jefferson County Courts.

Steubenville, July 10.—If injunctions continue to be filed against the C. & P., extra records will be necessary in the court house. Yesterday the county commissioners obtained an injunction against the C. & P., Glenn Run Coal company, T. J. Stringer and David Carpenter, to prevent the company from building a track on a county road that runs from the Ohio river to Hopewell Hill in Warren township and then from Hopewell Hill to a point near New Alexandria.

Now the company is laying stakes to put down a branch track from the Ohio river, near the mouth of Rush Run, to the New Alexandria and Smithfield turnpike, near the Franklin school house, and it threatens to grade, fill and construct tracks without any lawful authority. If the work is further prosecuted it will do irreparable damage to the county road.

The matter was presented to Judge Kerr by Prosecutor Alban and an injunction was granted preventing the contractor from grading or digging or in any way changing the course of the water way.

The road being built is for the purpose of tapping the new coal fields near New Alexandria and Smithfield.

A Pleasant Heights Boy Submitted To An Operation for Tuberculosis.

The local physicians yesterday performed a very delicate operation upon Harry, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Wood, of Pleasant Heights. The lad has been afflicted with tuberculosis for a long time. The disease fastened upon his left arm, and an operation was necessary. It was thought at first that they would have to amputate the arm, but as an experiment, the operation was gone through with.

The lad stood the ordeal fairly well, but is very ill today from the shock. In case the operation fails to prove successful, the arm will be amputated later.

The Store That Saves You Money.

Young Couples

can get their first lesson in economy by buying their outfits here.

We know exactly what we're talking about. We know our prices can not be matched in this city.

This may sound like boasting, but that does'nt alter the facts in the case. We are ready to bear out everything we say if you will come and look at the goods.

We court the fullest comparisons of prices and qualities.

On Tuesday, July 14th,

We're going to place on sale between 3 and 4 hundred salesmen's samples of Brussels, Velvets and Axminister Carpets, they are all a yard and a half long and at the price we're going to sell them they will surely interest you. If you want a good rug for little money now's your chance.

Come—have a look—ask your friends about us, they buy here.

Reasoning Power in Aufmals.

Animal intelligence, though not necessarily higher in degree when they are acting as our servants and not for their own ends, is then very much more easily approached and understood by us. The "point" is a curious example of an action in which instinct and reason meet. The stopping of the dog, however it began, has by training and heredity become instinctive. The dog, even when quite a puppy, stops when it smells the game and remains almost paralyzed, its impulse to rush in and seize it being checked by a strong instinct to stand still. Yet the dog, after he had accompanied his master and had game shot over him, is quite aware that he is a half controlled "medium," and while still under the dominating "pointing" instinct will look round imploringly to his master to urge him to hurry up if the scent tells him that the birds are moving. A border line action of a different kind is the squatting of young birds. It is a perfectly reasonable precaution. Keeping still and lying low are not characteristics peculiar only to Br'er Rabbit, but it is most remarkable to see the way in which tiny peewits or little teal, hardly bigger than a fluffy bee, lie down, put their little chins flat on the ground and remain motionless for minutes to avoid being seen.

EAST END

Leaseholds Near Marietta Increasing in Value—Big Prices Offered for Them.

Several East End people who hold leases on oil property in the Marietta oil district seem to have very profitable investments, as paying wells are being drilled in on all sides of their leaseholds. The Marietta territory is being developed very rapidly and there seems to be oil throughout that entire section, as the drillers have been almost uniformly successful.

Tom McCormick, a well known East Ender, recently returned from Marietta, where he was looking after his own leases and those held by several others. One Marietta operator made an offer of $1,000 cash for the lease owned by Dr. R. J. Marshall. The offer will not be considered, as it is thought that the lease is worth much more than the price offered.

FATAL RESULT OF WARD'S INJURIES

Sebring Lad, Injured on the Fourth, Died Yesterday from Blood Poisoning.

Earle, the 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ward, of Sebring, whose serious illness was noted in yesterday's News Review, died yesterday morning from blood poisoning. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the Presbyterian church at Sebring, and the interment will be made in Quaker Hill cemetery.

Mrs. John J. Bell, an aunt of the dead boy, left for Sebring this morning, and her husband and sister, Miss Dilcey Ward, will leave this evening to attend the services.

The lad was quite a favorite among his playmates and his frank and manly deportment won him the esteem of all. He was a member of the Sunday school of the Sebring Presbyterian church.

DISTURBED BY SHOTS

St. George Street People Thought Battle With Burglars Was in Progress.

Residents of upper St. George street were greatly alarmed at a late hour last night by a number of pistol shots that disturbed the usual quietude of the locality. From just what point the shots were fired could not be determined. Several residents thought that burglars had been detected in the act of entering some house and that a battle was in progress. The numerous depredations lately of this nature was the principal foundation for the burglar theory.

The matter has not been reported to the police, although news of it came to them unofficially. From the failure to make complaint it is thought the shots were fired by roisterers.

NO TRACK LAID

Owing to Lack of Material—Rails Are Now Being Unloaded.

Track laying on the new electric line along little Beaver creek, projected by L. W. Healy and associates, has not been commenced, although the rails are being transported to the scene. So far the necessary ties for this purpose have not been received, which accounts for the delay.

The rails are being unloaded from the cars at the foot of Broadway and deposited at the eastern terminal of the line.

Married at Huntington.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah McCormick, of Chafinville, arrived in the East End last evening from Huntington, W. Va., and are the guests of relatives until they can go to housekeeping. When Mr. McCormick left the East End before the Fourth he was a bachelor and the announcement that he had married a Huntington young lady comes as a surprise to his many friends, who are now hastening to extend congratulations.

Two Games Yesterday.

The East End Grays won a one-sided ball game yesterday afternoon from a picked nine by a score of 13 to 4. Levi Bolton pitched a good game for the Grays, while Stilwell for the other side was hit hard. Another game between a St. George street team and one from Chafinville played, the latter losing by a score of 9 to 3.

Mrs. Annie Green, an esteemed resident of Bridgeport, tried to commit suicide by taking laudanum, but a physician succeeded in saving her life. Her husband left Bridgeport two months ago and nothing has been heard from him since, and the anxiety and suspense caused her to become despondent and weary of life.

SMALLPOX

Is Spreading in Brooke County And Residents Are Alarmed at the Prospects.

Brooke county has another case of smallpox. The victim is Joseph Hukill, a son of James Hukill, of Buffalo creek. The young man had been working as mine boss at Carnegie, Pa., and came home last week to visit his parents. While at work in the harvest field Saturday the young man was taken seriously ill and Dr. Weirick, the family physician, found him to have symptoms of smallpox. Yesterday the case developed and the home was placed under quarantine this morning.

Ex-Postmaster John E. Reese, of Lezearville, is dangerously ill from paralysis. He became totally paralyzed yesterday morning and has been unable to speak or move since. Little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Job A. Lewis, of Maplewood, on Buffalo creek, has been ill for several days and showed at first symptoms of smallpox, much to the alarm of his friends and the force of state line workmen who are boarding at his home. Later the case has developed into measles and has been pronounced as such by the attending physician.

BODY FOUND

Remains of Ed Delehanty Recovered from Niagara And Are Identified.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 10.—The body found in the river below the falls yesterday was identified at Drummondsville yesterday afternoon as that of Ed Delehanty, the famous outfielder of the Washington American league team.

The body was mangled. One leg was torn off, presumably by the propeller of the Maid of the Mist, near whose landing the body was found. M. A. Green, a stockholder in the Washington team, identified the body by the teeth, two crippled fingers, and the clothing. The body was shipped to Washington last night.

Every effort will be made to investigate the death, as some of Delehanty's relatives place no stock in the suicide theory.

Years of suffering relieved in a night. Itching piles yield at once to the curative properties of Doan's Ointment. Never fails. At any drug store, 50 cents.

The Columbus Press, at present a Democratic organ, turned by hand, and which is in danger of being gobbled up by the Scripps-McRae league, after a great deal of hemming and hawing, concludes that Congressman Gill did not resign on account of ill health notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Gill says so. The chances are that Mr. Gill knows more about this matter than does the Press, and it must be admitted that all Democratic organs have more imagination than gray matter. The Press has been "off the trail" several times. Some time ago, after having "flew de coop" the paper was put back on the Democratic switch but not without great expenditure of both cash and effort. Since it has "entered the fold" the Press has carried a motto something like this nailed to its masthead: "Without a mission and with a muzzle." We may not have the words arranged exactly as the Press might wish, but are willing to guarantee they are all in the sentence and apparently more appropriate than when placed Press-fashion.

Those who did not read last evening's News Review had no means of knowing that the board of review completed its work. Incidentally speaking, there were numerous other stories of the day's doings in yesterday's News Review to be found in no other publication. All told, this paper contained at least half a dozen exclusive news stories last evening and any amount of items appearing in no other paper. The superiority of the News Review over all other local newspapers was never more strongly emphasized than last evening.

While it is always well for owners having real estate for sale to get as much as possible for it, in some cases exorbitant prices asked for property have possibly kept mighty good industries from locating here. If possible to do so it might be wise for the board of trade to secure control over land suitable for factory sites which could be used when necessary.

"One Yale students lived a year on $100," says the Ohio State Journal, "while another spent $11,000 in the same time. It is a pretty safe bet that the former has a fuller mind and the latter a bigger head."

HOME AFFAIRS

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature and of Matters About Town.

Son Is Ill—A little son of Architect A. W. Scott is seriously ill as the result of complications following measles.

Boy Improving—Willie Patterson, who had a part of his foot amputated as the result of a railroad accident, is improving.

Daughter Born—A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Rev. Curtman, of Nessley chapel, Hancock county, W. Va.

Fleet Has Passed—About the last of the Pittsburg coal fleet has passed the city and with the possible exception of several stragglers all the boats are now well on their way to southern waters.

Day in the Woods—A large picnic party was held at the home of David O'Hanlon, north of the city, yesterday. The crowd was made up of people from this city, and an enjoyable time was spent.

Board Will Meet—An important meeting of the board of public service is to be held this evening. Solicitor George E. Davidson has returned to the city and will be present. He will offer advice on many questions that the board has been afraid to tackle and will likely be instrumental in having the rules and regulations that have been drafted to govern the board adopted.

Dangerous Business—A quantity of nitro glycerine, sufficient to have shaken the entire city had it exploded, was taken past the city shortly after noon today. The fluid was in tin cans, sunk a short distance below the surface of the water. A negro in a skiff was in charge of the dangerous shipment.

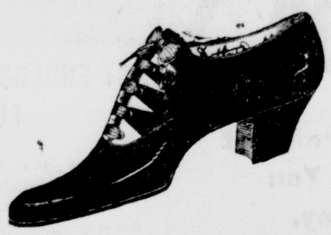

Will Attend Inquest—Dr. W. W. Hamilton left today for Pittsburg to give his testimony at the inquest over the body of Denver A. Easter, the man who was fatally injured by a train at the local passenger station. It will be remembered that Dr. Hamilton attended the injured man and was with him when he died. Detective Jewell, of the C. & P. police department, was here yesterday to notify Dr. Hamilton of the inquest.

Along the River—The river has been falling rapidly since yesterday, but plenty of water remains for a good packet stage. Business with the packets and at the local wharfboat continues good. The Lorena from Zanesville and the Greenwood from Charleston, were the up packets last night. The Greenwood had a big freight trip. She is due down tonight at 8 on the return trip. The Ben Hur for Parkersburg passed down last night.

Killed a Big Snake—Clarence Hulse, one of the members of the Wyoming Camping club, now located near Fredericktown for the summer outing, returned to town last night with the prize snake story of the season. The snake was captured and killed near the camp last night. Just how big Hulse said his snakeship was is not definitely known, but by the time the story reached the reporter he was a nine-footer.

Won First Prize—Irene Charlotte Long, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Long, of Ridgeway avenue, was awarded the prize at Dr. Cooper's baby show last evening. There were a large number of competitors, and the handsome little lady, though not old enough to appreciate the honor, will have plenty of time to look back to it in years to come.

Wrench Was Arrested — John Wrench was arrested yesterday by Constable Powell on a warrant sworn to in Justice Rose's court by W. S. Baney, a picture agent. Wrench was in Baney's employ and, it is alleged, sold a mirror and pocketed the proceeds. The defendant claims the article was sold to a relative on the installment plan. The justice held Wrench for trial, fixing the bond at $50, which he could not furnish. The case is being tried this afternoon.

WARNING

Given Business Men By Mayor Concerning the Loaning of Money on Valuables.

Mayor Weaver has given warning to the business men and all others in the city that the practice of loaning money on chattels, or valuables of any kind is against the law and that on information he will be compelled to prosecute. The state laws make this provision where there is a licensed pawn shop and prohibits any but the pawn brokers to carry on such business. The pawn brokers are compelled to keep a record and thus where articles have been stolen and pawned they may be found and recovered.

"Many business men innocently loan money on valuables as an accommodation," said the mayor. "Where there is not a pawn shop this is legal. Otherwise, as in this city, it is not. A severe penalty is attached for a violation. I believe the purpose of the law is to prevent thieves and those misappropriating valuables from disposing of them in a manner to leave no chance of tracing them back to the thief."

MILLER RELEASED; GRIM FINED $5

DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR TREATED AS A JOKE BY FRIENDS.

The 'Squire Is Criticised in Some Quarters for Leniency Shown.

Fred Grim and Andy Miller, the two young thugs who nearly killed the Italian Betchi in Chester the other day, were arraigned before Justice A. G. Pugh yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

In spite of the doubtful reputation of both boys, they had a large number of friends, who were at the hearing all determined to clear them if they could.

Nick Cennalley acted as interpreter and Betchi told his story. A number of other witnesses were examined and the testimony throughout was conflicting and unsatisfactory. Miller, through some of his friends, was able to prove an alibi, and the 'squire discharged him. Grim was not so fortunate, and though he endeavored to make the whole affair into a joke, he was fined $5 and costs, which he arranged to pay.

Grim claimed he had an errand to the Italian shanty, and that the foreigner had assaulted him before he struck a single blow. The attempt to laugh the matter off was a miserable failure, and there are a great many of the good people of Chester who believe the justice was too lenient. They assert that such lax methods will undoubtedly result in more lawlessness.

A LETTER FROM HOBBS

Former Resident of Hancock County Tells of the Wonderful Prospects for Florida.

W. A. H. Hobbs, who is well known in Chester, has written from his home in Florida, and says:

"I rejoice in the prosperity of Hancock county and especially the success of my former pupils. I am well pleased with my location in the most tropical part of the United States. We have good roads, and spring and summer weather the year round. Our groves are just coming into bearing. The eyes of winter vegetable growers are on the state of Dade as this county is called. I refrain from telling of the wonderful things of this land. The possibilities of this county are almost beyond comprehension. The insect pests are growing less with the development of the country. Storms and disasters have been very few. Indeed we have very much to be thankful for."

ANNUAL SETTLEMENT

Affairs of the Grant District Board of Education Are in Good Shape.

Sheriff C. A. Allison, of New Cumberland, as custodian of the county school fund, was in Chester today making the annual settlement with the Grant district board of education.

'Squire A. G. Pugh is secretary of the board, and he and Mr. Allison were busy the greater portion of the day with their tasks. There are 15 teachers employed in the district and the schools are in a very prosperous condition. It is likely the majority of those employed during the year will be re-engaged.

The funds are in excellent condition, and there will be a comfortable surplus in the hands of the county treasurer when the settlement is made.

The levy during the past year has been thirty-three and one-third per cent for the teachers' fund and twenty-five per cent for the general building fund. The board has prospered so well that the apportionment will hardly be changed. The sheriff and Mr. Pugh completed their task late this afternoon.

DIED OF HYDROPHOBIA

A Valuable Horse Became Ill With the Dread Disease, Dying in Agony.

A valuable horse belonging to George Hutton, a farmer residing near Asbury chapel, died last night from a very mysterious affliction. The horse was taken violently ill yesterday and though unable to move about, kept up a continual snapping and biting at every object within reach. It frothed at the mouth and there were other evidences that the animal was afflicted with hydrophobia. A veterinary was summoned as quickly as possible, but could do nothing to revive the horse, and it died a few hours later in great agony. The veterinary stated that the horse had certainly been afflicted with rabies, and that the disease had taken such a firm hold that it was impossible to do anything for its relief.

FIRST MONEY ORDER

Chester Postoffice Is Now a Full-Fledged Branch With All Accommodations.

Postmaster W. C. Johnston this morning issued the first order under the dispensation granted from the postoffice department at Washington, D. C., making the Chester office a money order branch. The order was for $47.50 and was payable at Chicago. The new order of things will be a very great convenience to the residents of the Southside, and the people of that growing city appreciate the untiring efforts of Postmaster Johnston in bringing the office to its present high standard.

TAKING OVER OPTIONS

A Big Deal in Coal Land Being Closed By New York Parties Today.

A representative of a title and trust company of New York arrived in New Cumberland today to take over the options secured by A. S. Cooper, on the coal lands on King's creek. As evidence of good faith they deposited $5,000 before the options are to be turned over. Messrs. Cooper and McElfresh hope to get the matter shaped up very soon, so the money can be paid as soon as the abstracts are turned over. The deal will bring a big lot of money into the county when once completed.

RAILROAD PICNIC

Of Panhandle Railway Employes to Be Held at Rock Springs This Year.

The outing of the Pittsburg division of the Panhandle lines this year will be held at Rock Springs park on Friday, July 31. Master Mechanic Smith, of the Dennison shops, has arranged for thirty coaches to carry the employes and their families on an excursion which promises to be the largest in the history of the road. The management of the park is making preparations for the crowd, and a pleasant time will undoubtedly result.

Going to California.

Prof. William Bambrick, principal of the Soldiers' Orphans' Industrial school at Scotland, Pa., is visiting relatives and friends in Chester and Hancock county. Mr. Bambrick will leave for California in a few days, where he will spend the remainder of his vacation.

Scott-McKim.

A quiet but happy wedding took place last week at the home of the bride, in Gas Valley. The contracting parties were Miss Lizzie, daughter of John R. Scott, of Hancock county, and Mr. T. C. McKim, a son of John McKim, the well known dairyman, of Brooke county. They immediately left for a wedding trip to Philadelphia, Atlantic City, New York and Washing-

REALM OF SPORTS

Suicide Player Had Won First Honors in Two Leagues With His Bat.

Ed. Delehanty was one of the greatest ball tossers ever turned out from Ohio, being a native of Cleveland. He began his career as an exponent of the national game at Wheeling, W. Va. It was in Philadelphia that he made his first appearance in fast company, playing second base. His remarkable quickness in getting out into field for balls out of regular fielders' reach resulted in his being made an outfielder. He was one of the mainstays of the Quakers until 1901, when he jumped his contract along with Al Orth, Harry Wolverton and Jack Townsend, and cast his fortune with the Washington team of the American league.

Delehanty's work with Washington last season was such as to cause John T. Brush, of New York city, to cast out his grappling irons. Delehanty finally signed a contract at big figures to play with the Giants. Four thousand dollars advance money was paid to Delehanty, and a winter was put in playing the ponies. Luck was against the big fellow, and when the peace committee awarded him back to Washington and to return the $4,000 advanced to New York his base ball heart must have been broken.

Nothing like the Delehanty of his past 11 years has been in evidence in his 1903 work with Washington. He was anxious to get away, but the Washington club held onto him in the hope that he would round into his old time shape. They were doomed to disappointment, however, as the big fellow has been out of the game for some time, still drawing an enormous salary. Fit and well, Delehanty had but a few peers in the matter of batting. Just once during the past 11 years has he finished lower than ninth place. In 1899 he landed the batting championship of the National league with the figures .408. Last year the American league honors in the same direction were won with .376.

It was but a short time ago that Washington tried to unload the big fellow on the Cincinnati club, but nothing came of the attempt.

JOB APPARENT

In a Race At Salem—Effort Made to Beat Cervantes.

Salem, July 10.—The races at the Salem Driving park yesterday brought out a crowd of local and visiting people and was productive of only one special feature, that being an apparent job in the last race of the day—the 2:25 trot. In the fifth heat Cervantes had two firsts to his credit and apparently to most spectators won at the wire, though closely nosed by Fred, to whom the judges gave the heat.

The summary:

2:18 pace; purse $400—

Big Boy, b. g., (G. A. Fuller)	1	1	1

SALARY ARM

Gives Maley Considerable Trouble. He Has Frequently Beaten Homestead.

From the results of the two games played this season with Homestead it seems that Larry Maley is the only local pitcher who can trim them. Last year with Maley in the box the locals won three games from the Homesteaders, with the relative strength of the teams about the same as this season.

Maley, however, will not pitch again this season. His salary arm has been giving him considerable trouble and he thinks a rest for the remainder of the season will benefit him. He has been keeping in good condition by playing other positions with local teams and is developing into quite a hitter.

MALEY WILL PLAY

With Locals Today Against Homestead if Rain Does Not Stop the Game.

Maley will make his first appearance with the locals today, providing rain does not stop the game, having been assigned to right garden by Manager Reark. Brown has replaced Nolan in left, much to the satisfaction of the fans, and Webb has been moved in from right to the second sack. The two teams will line up as follows:

Y. M. C. A. — Emmerling, catcher; Lawrence, pitcher; Gibson, short; Wallace, first; Webb, second; Mason, third, Brown, left; Maley, right.

Homestead — Coursey, catcher; Burns, pitcher; Ferguson, short; Milton, first; Cosgrove, second; Edmonston, third; McChesney, left; Violet, right.

TIGERS VICTORIOUS

In a Hotly Contested Game Played Yesterday Afternoon.

The Hilltop Tigers and the Westinghouse Juniors, two amateur baseball teams, played a hot game on the grounds of the former club yesterday afternoon. The battle was hard fought from start to finish and the score stood 12-11 in favor of the Tigers when it hand ended.

Another game will be played this afternoon and the third tomorrow. The batteries in yesterday's game were: Tigers, Brown and Stroud; Westinghouse, Mackey and DeTemple.

Morrow's Team Challenged.

The Superbas is one of the latest ball teams in the field. Terry Carman is the manager and promotor, but so far has not divulged his lineup. He has asked the sporting editor of the News Review to publish a challenge for the Superbas for a game with Billy Morrow's team. So confident are the Superbas that they want to play for $100 a side.

Went East With Horses.

T. K. Moffatt, driver of Redmond, Joan and La France, horses owned by Harrison Rinehart, left this morning for the east, where he will enter the fine bred animals in numerous races before the end of the season. Mr. Moffatt has the horses in elegant condition and will no doubt be successful on the trip.

Will Play at Empire.

The Athletics go to Empire tomorrow for a game with the team representing that town. The local team will line up as follows: L. Emmerling, catcher; McShane, pitcher; McAvoy, short; Maley, first; Stilwell, second; Davis, third; Trainer, left; Carey, middle; Bennett, right.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Wallace and Gibson failed to land a hit in yesterday's game, a rather unusual occurrence.

Cleveland has lost three straight games. The suspension of Lajoie is partly responsible.

"Wild Bill" Donovan has won the rubber from Waddell, and wants to try the trick again.

Selee has started several collegians in professional base ball, and most of them make good for him.

The efforts of the crowds fail to rattle Weimer, the cowboy pitcher Selee has signed. He recently told McGann to "Pin back your ears, people want to see the game," when Mack was trying to rattle him with the help of the crowd.

Charlie Rabb, the ex-American association player, has something on George Davis at shortstop.

The Athletics and the Second Y. M. C. A. teams will play a league game this afternoon at Rock Springs park.

According to figures offered by different compilers, at least two men lead the American league in batting at the same time.

In Cresceus and Oldfield, Ohio has two record holders, and Columbus feels good because both made records in that city.

Wallace's great catch of a foul from Tate's bat was really the feature of the game. It was a sensational play and roundly applauded.

Mason made a bad break yesterday by trying to take Emmerling's throw with one hand. He failed to hold the ball and the error cost a run.

Nolan has probably made his last appearance with the local team. With Brown in left field yesterday the result might have been different.

The Red's double defeat of Boston and Pittsburg's victory over Brooklyn gives the first named team the best margin in fourth place they have had this season.

Umpire Reark called two hits of the visitors that dropped in front of the plate fouls. Both of them looked fair and each time Emmerling could have thrown the runner out.

PREPARING FOR FIRE LADDIES

Toronto is Shaping Up to Entertain Firemen's Annual Tournament.

Toronto, July 10.—Toronto is putting on its holiday garb and making preparations to greet and entertain the people who will come next week to participate in and see the firemen's tournament and carnival.

Each year the volunteer firemen of Northeastern Ohio have a tournament, where they battle for supremacy. The active running teams of the Firemen's association embrace the following towns: Wellsville, Salem, Leetonia, Columbiana, Bridgeport, Martin's Ferry, Bellaire, Toronto, Coshocton, New Philadelphia and Canal Dover.

The tournament will take place here July 15 16 and 17, but the local firemen have arranged for an entire week of fun, commencing July 13. Business will be practically suspended during the tournament and all factories will close. The program is as follows:

July 15—Convention at 10 a. m. Parade of firemen and industrial features at 1 p. m.

July 16—Hose race 2 p. m., first prize, $125; second prize, $50; third prize, $25. Foot race, 100 yards. Hook and ladder race, first prize $50.

JURY ORDERED

To Consider Appropriation Cases Brought By Electric Railway Company.

Lisbon, July 10.—(Special.)—A preliminary hearing in the appropriation proceedings of the Stark Electric Railroad company versus Ira F. Brainard, Nellie M. Hogan and Martin and Charles Lottman was held before Judge Martin in probate court yesterday afternoon.

The land in question is situated west of Salem, and it was shown that it is needed by the plaintiff company for a right of way for the extension of its railway line from Sebring to Salem.

Judge Martin ordered that a jury of 16 persons be drawn to report in the probate court next Tuesday morning to place a valuation on the land sought to be appropriated.

Catarrh of the Stomach.

When the stomach is overloaded; when food is taken into it that fails to digest, it decays and inflames the mucous membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secret mucin, instead of the natural juices of digestion. This is called catarrh of the stomach. "For years I suffered with catarrh of the stomach, caused by indigestion. Doctors and medicines failed to benefit me until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure."—J. R. Rhea Coppell, Texas. Sold by Alvin H. Bulger.

BUSINESS AGENT WAS TURNED DOWN

He Endeavored to Square a Non-Union Job.

And Was Ordered from the Building. Owner Will Be Reported to His Organization.

Business Agent House, of the painters' union, the members of which have been on strike for many weeks, had an experience yesterday that was a good sample of the trials and tribulations of the average walking delegate, and one which is enough to make the good unionist resolve to turn non-union on the spot.

Among his other duties it is expected of the business agent that he keep tab on all contracts secured by the non-union contractors, and wherever possible secure the work for his fellows who were on strike. Yesterday he heard of a job of this character and lost no time in going after the contractor through the owner of the building. He was surprised and disgusted to learn that the man having the work done was one of the best known, and to the present, a very prominent trades unionist of the city.

The situation was explained to him and an attempt made to induce the owner to treat the painters fairly, but he refused. The walking delegate was dumbfounded, and left the job thoroughly disgusted. Not, however, before he was ordered away and had been subjected to all manner of abuse. Te so-called unionist will be reported to his organization.

EAST PALESTINE

East Palestine, July 10.—Misses Ida, Aggie and Master Eddie Garner, of College street, East Liverpool, are spending their vacation at the residence of their aunt, Mrs. R. M. Ashbaugh, on West Martin street.

Mrs. Rebecca Grosshans and Mrs. Martin Thomas and daughter Grace, of East Liverpool, have visited friends here the past week.

Miss Tillie Worth, of East Liverpool, is the guest of her brother, William Worth, on West Clark street.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ashbaugh and little daughter Pauline are visiting relatives in East Liverpool.

Rev. J. C. Taggart, wife and daughter, of East Liverpool, are spending a vacation with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davidson and daughter, Mrs. George Stevenson, and child, of East Liverpool, are spending the summer at Mill Side cottage, above Sprucevale, and drinking in health and sweet contentment near the old home farm on the creek which Mr. Davidson owns yet and which is rented. Harvey belongs to Company C, One Hundred and Fourth regiment, and he don't feel very staunch these days, but hopes much from this outing this summer.

BOGUS MONEY RACKET WORKED

Poor Counterfeits of Large Note This Time.

Banks Have Been Warned from Washington—None Found Here Yet.

Counterfeit money is again in wide circulation. Bankers in all parts of the United States have been warned by the treasury department at Washington to be on the watch for suprious coin, most of which it seems is of larger denomination than is generally placed on the market.

According to the department at the capitol city the country is being filled with counterfeit $20 national bank notes. The notes are not, however, very good imitations of the genuine and only people unaccustomed to handling money are being victimized.

The national banks of this city have received the following warning which has placed them on guard, and they do not anticipate being roped in: "New counterfeit $20 national bank note on National State bank of Metropolis, Ill. Check letter A; series of 1882; charter number, 5,254; bank number, 1,193; treasury number, 896,558; J. W. Lyons, register; Ellis H. Roberts, treasurer."

This counterfeit is a rudely executed photographic production on thin brittle paper, and no attempt has been made to imitate the silk fibre of the genuine paper. The photograph of the original numbers of the note can be plainly discerned beneath the coloring applied. The back of the note is faded; green ink has been smeared on the panel surrounding the charter number on the back of the note.

This counterfeit should not deceive the ordinarily careful handler of money.

Though local banks have not run across any of these particular counterfeits they will institute a sharp lookout for them and the warning given to the banks should be remembered by citizens in general.

Bogus dimes and nickels are still afloat, but they are not so abundant as a few months back. It is thought that they are almost entirely wiped out of this vicinity, much to the satisfaction of both the banks and street car companies.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

Johnny and the Spider

"What are you going to do?" asked the spider as Johnny crept up toward his web.

"I'm going to kill you," answered Johnny.

"Oh, it's just as well, I guess," said the spider. "I'm tired of doing everything for you and having you do nothing for me, so I might as well be done with it."

"What do you do for me?" asked Johnny in surprise.

room and perched on the foot of your bed. He had horrid green eyes and long claws all covered with sharp spikes, and his jaws were filled with teeth as sharp as needles. He said he was going to bite a piece off the end of your nose. I killed him and ate him.

"Night before last when you were asleep a long earwig crawled down the wall and jumped on your pillow. He had 10,000 legs that wriggled all the time, and he had a stinger in his tail and eyes that rolled round and round. He said he was going to crawl into your hair and go to sleep. I killed him and ate him, but he said that he had two cousins from the country who would be here to see you tomorrow night.

"Saturday morning when you were asleep a green eyed"—

"Hold on!" cried Johnny. "Hold on! You mustn't go. You mustn't leave me."

"Oh, yes, you'd better kill me, as you said you would, because then I will not have to sit up all night and fight those things."

"No, no!" exclaimed Johnny. "You dear old spider! I wouldn't harm you for all the world. You must stay here with me always, and I shall always be your friend, as you have been mine."

So they shook hands and were happy all the rest of their days. — Chicago Tribune.

WELLSVILLE

VAST CHANCE

In the "White Swan," Who Was Once Rich and Admired—Arrested Again.

Alma Waters, better known by the name of "White Swan," is again in the toils of the law, having been arrested for fighting. She was fined $25 by Mayor Fogo, and the chances are exceedingly bright for her to go to the work house at Canton.

Charles Mills was also arrested at the same time by Chief Houser and the probabilities are that he will go to Canton, too.

The Waters woman has been a local character for many years and until this time always managed to secure money to obtain her freedom when arrested. She has been in jail dozens of times, but her luck seems to have deserted her at last. She was once considered the most beautiful woman in the upper Ohio valley and men fairly showered her with gold and diamonds. Of late she has been on the decline and as her beauty faded so her admirers failed and now she faces a workhouse sentence.

CARE FOR ROADS

Will Wellsville's City Officials—Some Projected Improvements

It is the purpose of Mayor Fogo and the city council to take good care of all the roads leading into Wellsville before snow flies, and paving on the Lisbon road from the county bridge to the corporation line and the Steubenville road from Clark avenue to the railroad tracks in the West End, will soon be commenced.

The county commissioners have promised to pave a mile of the Lisbon road after the city extends the paving to the city's limits, and this, too, it is thought, will be completed by early fall.

The tax payers of both the city and county are in favor of this needed improvement and there will be no let up from now on until it is finished.

SERENADED

Newly Married Couple—Marriage Was To Have Been Kept a Secret.

Barney Rand and bride were fairly overwhelmed by the arrival of a large number of friends at their summer home at Spring Grove camp grounds Thursday afternoon, soon after their return from the Methodist parsonage, where Rev. C. E. Clark united them in the holy bonds of wedlock.

After congratulations the friends organized an old fashioned "belling" and gave the couple a serenade that was greatly appreciated and enjoyed.

It was the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Rand to keep their wedding a secret, but some valuable friend let the cat out of the bag and in a little while it was town talk.

RAY ARRESTED

For Beating Perri and Gave Bond For Appearance At Trial.

Chief Houser has arrested Frank Ray, a sub-boss under Contractor Charles A. Sims, for brutally beating Antonio Perri, mention of which was made in this paper yesterday. He claimed to have been justified in fighting with the Italian and left $25 cash security for his appearance at the day of trial.

The injured man is still under the care of a physician and the hearing will not likely take place before the first of the week, as it will be necessary to get several witnesses here from Port Homer and other places along the C. & P.

The Millionaire Malady.

Men who have sacrificed health and youth, scrimped their families and injured their digestion in the acquirement of a "pile" often think they are public benefactors and that humanity in general owes them a debt of gratitude for being so rich. In consequence they resent as cruel injustice the fatigue, chagrin and newspaper notoriety that money invariably brings in its trail. It would be about as consistent for a little boy who had gorged himself on purloined apples to feel injured when an avenging stomach ache followed gluttony.—Eliot Gregory in Century.

Our Eccentric Phrases.

Why do we always talk of putting on a coat and vest? Who puts on a coat before a vest? We also say putting on shoes and stockings? Who puts on shoes before the stockings? We also put up signs telling people to wipe their feet when we mean their boots or shoes. And a father tells a boy he will warm his jacket when he means to warm his pantaloons. We are a little eccentric in our phrases at times.

Friends In Need.

"I don't put much faith in proverbs," said Brown to Jones. "For instance, look at the oft quoted one, 'A friend in need is a friend indeed.' Now, most of my experience with friends in need has been that they wanted to borrow. Give me the friends that are not in need."

ANNUAL REUNION OF EIGHTH OHIO

To Be Held in Detroit Instead of in East Liverpool as Previously Arranged

CASE IN SUPREME COURT

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, July 10.—The annual reunion of those who served in the Eighth Ohio volunteers, "The President's Own," during the Spanish war, will be held in Detroit, Mich., instead of at East Liverpool as intended.

The latter city was selected for the gathering at last year's reunion which was held at Canton, but on account of threatened labor troubles, which happily have since been averted, the East Liverpool members held a meeting and voted unanimously in favor of transferring the reunion to Detroit, where the Society of the Army of Santiago will hold its first reunion on Thursday and Friday of next week, which is the date fixed for the reunion of the Eighth. Will H. Kinney, acting secretary of the Spanish War Veterans' society, at East Liverpool, advised Colonel Charles C. Weybrecht, of Alliance, of the Eighth regiment, who was a major in the Eighth Ohio, of the action taken by the East Liverpool members. He concurred in the proposal and authorized Secretary McKinney to issue an official call providing for the holding of the reunion at Detroit on the date mentioned. The change meets with the general approval of the old Eighth members, as it will give them an opportunity of attending the meeting of the Society of the Army of Santiago in which many of them are enrolled as members.

Major General Shafter, who commanded the Santiago expedition, is president of this society, and President Roosevelt and General Joe Wheeler are vice presidents. Congressman Charles Dick, now major general of the Ohio National Guard, who was lieutenant colonel of the Eighth Ohio, is a national officer.

To adhere to the original plan of holding the reunion of the Eighth at East Liverpool would mean a decreased attendance, as many would be at the Detroit gathering. Steubenville, Empire, Toronto, Wellsville and other towns adjacent to East Liverpool were represented in Company E, of that city, which was in the Eighth Ohio Volunteer regiment. Those of these cities who contemplate attending the reunion will probably receive notice to assemble in East Liverpool, from whence a number will leave in a body for some lake point and thence proceed to Detroit by boat. By following this plan it will be possible to secure special railroad rates.

A Columbiana county case styled Alex McBane, administrator of the estate of Christian McGill, deceased, against William Swart, guardian of John Russell, a minor, has been filed in the supreme court. P. M. Smith, of Wellsville, is attorney for the plaintiff in error and Charles S. Speaker, of Lisbon, for the defendant in error.

Young Russell sued the estate for 78 month's work at $20 per month, amounting to $1,560, and won in both of the lower courts. He lived at the home of Christian McGill and claimed he rendered her this service. Her administrator claims she boarded Russell and sent him to school and that on this account he should be paid nothing for what work he did.

SOCIAL EVENTS

SPLENDID PROGRAM RENDERED IN ABLE MANNER.

Rev. M. B. Pratt Spoke at Length On Live Subject—Address Well Received.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church gave a very pleasant social in the Sunday school room of the church last evening. In honor of the occasion the room was prettily decorated with numerous Epworth League flags. The young people had worked faithfully to make the affair a success, and the event proved that their efforts were by no means in vain.

Much of the pleasure of the evening was due to the entertainment committee, of which Miss Maude Baum is president. The program, which was largely of a musical nature, was very interesting and as follows: Solo, Prof. R. H. Jennings; piono solo, Mrs. Gertrude Dix; duet, Mrs. Homer J. Taylor and Prof. Jennings; address, "John Wesley," Rev. M. B. Pratt; solo, Mr. C. L. Gray; duet, Miss Olive Dickey and Mr. Tallis Blount; selection, ladies' quartet.

Every number was splendidly rendered, and received not a little merited applause from the audience. The address of Rev. Pratt on "John Wesley—His Life and Works," was especially well received, it being both interesting and instructive. Rev. Pratt spoke in part as follows:

"John Wesley was born immediately after the death of Oliver Cromwell. On both sides he came of parentage distinguished alike for scholarship patriotism and piety. Inheriting all these traits he became a great scholar, graduating with the degree of M. A. at the early age of 24 years. He then became assistant to his father who was rector of a rural church, but was neither happy nor successful. Later he came to Georgia as chaplain for the new colony but his stay was short and on his return to England he met some very gentle and spiritual Christians who led him to a new experience.

"In that experience, Methodism was born. Preaching this new gospel of the witness of the spirit of God to our spirits, and summoning the people back to God, he was soon condemned and compelled to preach outside their churches. It was the old story, because he would not put new wine in old vessels, he was condemned. In fact, today if one wishes to satisfy the 'Keepers of the Ark,' one must say nothing that has not already been said ten thousand times.

"Wesley early became a great scholar, and created an important literature for his followers. Lecky says that the literature he created has not yet been adequately appreciated. But he saved his movement from mere emotional vaporing by the might of a mind trained and consecrated to his work. His movement was essentially a spiritual movement. The young people of our day should learn to cultivate their minds and this is a simpler task than some presume. A few moments each day of serious study for a few years and one may become liberally educated."

The purpose of the entertainment was to bring the young people together and interest them in social work. The affair was largely attended.

Will Hold Picnic.

A meeting of McCoy Circle was held last evening by the ladies of the G. A. R. at the rooms in the Exchange building. Besides the regular work of the evening it was decided to hold a picnic in the near future at Rock Springs park. The exact date was not decided upon. Arrangements were discussed pertaining to the encampment to be held in August at San Francisco. Mrs. Fannie Wyllie has been elected delegate-at-large from this order.

The Magnet.

Thousands of years ago a mineral having the strange power of attracting iron was found in the country anciently called Magnesia, in Asia Minor. The name of this country has given us the word "magnet." This mineral, which is now called the lodestone (not loadstone), attracted the attention of the curious, and it was discovered that a piece of iron which had been rubbed with the lodestone acquired the same power of attracting iron. In other words, the piece of iron became a magnet. It was afterward found that such an iron or artificial magnet could be used like the lodestone itself to convert other pieces of iron into magnets by rubbing. Still more recently a mode of making magnets by means of electricity was discovered—that is, by wrapping a piece of insulated wire many times around the bar and then causing a current of electricity to pass through the wire. The familiar small toy magnets are simply steel bars which have been rubbed a few times against powerful magnets.—St. Nicholas.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

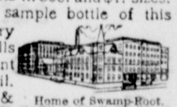

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghampton, N. Y., on every bottle.

HONESTY Is the Best Policy

WHY is it that this store is constantly forging ahead? Why is it that customers always express their satisfaction over purchases made here? The answer is not hard to find. We believe in unswerving adherence to the truth; we have but one price to everybody alike; we mark our goods, as a whole, cheaper than any store in town, nor is this all; we do not try to deceive; no false "dissolution sales" or "fake" Half Price Sales here. We do our best to intelligently supply your wants, and to give you extra values for every dollar without resorting to imaginary reasons for a motive. We take this occasion to thank our many customers for the confidence they have reposed in us and in the future we shall strive to give even better service than in the past.

Crushing an Actor.

A brother actor famous for his pomposity and his inordinate ambition was regaling Sir Henry Irving with a forecast of his plans for the future.

"I shall begin the season," he announced, "with such and such a part, and after that I shall appear as Hamlet."

"Um!" drawled Irving. "As—eh—Hamlet, did you say?"

The other, incensed by the tone of the query, bridled up at once.

"Do you think, Sir Henry," he demanded indignantly, "that you are the only man who can play Hamlet?"

"Oh, no," rejoined Irving blandly, "but I am quite sure that you are the only man who can't."—Harper's Weekly.

How Pausanius Died.

Pausanius, the Greek general, died by self administered poison. When hotly pursued by those sent to apprehend him on a charge of treason and sacrilege he took refuge in the sanctuary of a temple. Unable to remove him by force and also unwilling to violate the sanctuary, the officers walled up the entrance and began to unroof the building. When he could be seen they noticed that he was chewing something which proved to be a quill filled with poison. By the time the work had sufficiently advanced to admit of their entrance he was in a dying condition.

BATTING RALLY WON SECOND GAME

When the Locals Had the Game Won and Then Got on the Stupid Cart. Excellent Opportunity to Win the Game Was Sacrificed.

Wail after wail went up from the dry and dusty throats of the disappointed fans when a batting rally, coupled with stupid playing, allowed the Homesteaders to tie the score in the eighth inning. Half of the crowd had their hammers out and echoes of the anvil chorus could be heard all over the West End. Umpire Reark and half the players on the team came in for a share of the maledictions, unjustly for the most part.

While the error column does not show it, the locals played ball like wooden Indians, particularly when head work would have pulled them out of the hole. After six innings had been played the score stood 6 to 1 with the former numeral on the right side of the ledger. The visitors had but three measly hits off Miller, the south paw slab artist, but in their last three turns at the bat they landed on him good and hard, 9 hits, good for 14 bases and 7 runs, being the noxious figures.

Miller had all the best of the argument with the celebrated Buck Washer, late of the Wheeling leaguers, up to the seventh, in spite of his wildness. He did not have the proper command and his curves failed to break properly. His drop ball, so effective in other games, could not be used owing to his lack of control.

The angry and disappointed fans, when they come to calmly peruse the score, will see that Homestead's clean and consecutive hitting in the last three innings was the principal factor in their victory.

The entire Homestead bunch kept up a fusilade against Umpire Reark when they were getting a shade the best of the decisions, considering them in the aggregate. "Red" Violet was particularly obnoxious in this respect and it drew to him an enfilading fire of hot shots from the spectators.

The first four innings were productive of six runs for the locals, after which they failed to score. After the fourth Washer allowed them but one hit. Gibson walked in the first and Mason sacrificed him to second and he scored on Brown's single after Wallace had fanned. In the second with two down Emmerling drew a pass and scored from first on Miller's scorching two bagger. Three more were added in the third. Mason opened with a rattling three base hit to right, scoring on a fumble of Violet's throw to catch him at third. Ferguson fumbled Brown's grounder after Wallace had been given free transportation and Webb brought them over the pan with a clean two sacker. Tally No. 6 came in the fourth. Miller had all the outer gardeners chasing his long drive and when it was finally fielded in he was perched on third. Gibson drew his second free pass and tried for second on the next ball pitched. Coursey and Cosgrove forgot that Miller was on third and he scored while Gibson was being murdered on the throw to second.

The visitors started their run getting where the locals left off. In their half of the sixth Miller passed Cosgrove to first and hit McChesney a jolt in the ribs. Milton hit for a single and Cosgrove counted.

Buck, the brave, wore a large smile when he came to bat in the seventh and it broadened when Mason and Gibson let his punk hit drop safe. Violet worried a walk out of Miller but was forced at second on Edmundson's grounder, Buck moving up to third. Tate sent a screecher along the third base line. Mason standing on the bag, stabbed for it but didn't reach and to the majority of the spectators it looked foul. Umpire Reark thought otherwise and when the excitement subsided Buck had crossed the rubber, followed closely by Edmundson.

McChesney was passed to first on four wide ones as a starter in the eighth. Ferguson skied out to Reark but Coursey spanked one to left for two sacks. Buck, the brave, was the next willow artist with McChesney at third and Coursey on second looking longingly toward home. The way Buck swatted it was something awful. The impact sounded like a "down yander" swain kissing his best girl good night out in Jethro Hollow. It was a base cleaner but Buck rested on third until he had easy sailing home on Violet's single. His run tied the score.

Nolan was working overtime fielding in the base hits. He showed a lack of judgment in returning the ball that made the crowd groan. His poor judgment in the eighth was only excelled by his similar exhibition in the ninth. Cosgrove started the inning with a rattling three bagger but got his dates mixed and was caught off the bag. Milton singled past short. McChesney hit for two in the same direction, scoring Milton. Ferguson found the same opening through short for a hit. McChesney had not turned third when Nolan fielded the ball but he threw to Mason instead of the plate and McChesney scampered home. Mason threw to Brown and Ferguson was nailed at second. But the damage was done. The score:

LETTER FROM WILL REED

Will Sign Bond to Refund Money Unless Mi-o-na Restores Health.

To the Editor of the News Review:

Dear Sir:—Having heard that some people question the sincereity of my offer to refund a purchaser's money if Mi-o-na does not cure dyspepsia, increase the flesh and restore health, I am writing you this letter to say over my own signature that this offer is made in good faith and will be lived up to by me both in the spirit and the letter.

I will give the following bond with every 50 cent box of Mi-o-na I sell. There is no risk in buying Mi-o-na.

GUARANTEE BOND.

I hereby agree to refund the price paid for Mi-o-na, if the purchaser tells me that it has not increased flesh and given freedom from stomach troubles. WILL REED.

So many of my customers have told me of the great good Mi-o-na has done them, that I am more thoroughly convinced than ever that there is but little risk in selling Mi-o-na under this guarantee.

The demand for Mi-o-na is increasing rapidly and it is the most popular of all medicines we sell for the cure of stomach troubles. If it did not have unusual merit I could not afford to guarantee it.

Your readers can see that they run no risk whatever in buying Mi-o-na.

Respectfully yours,

WILL REED.

LIFE SLOWLY EBBING

Demise of Pope a Question of Days at Most and Probably Only Hours.

PHYSICAL VIGOR IS UNBROKEN

No Second Operation Performed—Dr. Rossini Called in Consultation. Cardinals Throughout the World Hurrying Romeward.

Rome, July 10—6:10 a. m.—It is reported that when, shortly after sunrise this morning, Dr. Lapponi went to see the pope he found him with his hands together in the attitude of prayer. On the doctor inquiring whether he required anything his holiness replied:

"Today finishes a week since I was taken ill. I am thanking God for having given me strength to still pray to Him."

Rome, July 10—2 a. m.—Another day of alternate hopes and fears has passed and Pope Leo's life still hangs in the balance. Beginning with renewed hopes, the day closed with the scales tending slowly, but surely, downwards. How long this agonizing period of suspense will last not even the attending doctors dare to say.

No night bulletin was issued, but at 12:15 this morning it was learned from Dr. Mazzoni that the condition of the pontiff had not changed since the issue of the evening bulletin at 7:30 o'clock, which announced that the patient's state was grave, and at which hour Dr. Lapponi had declared his fear that there was no hope, but that the end might not come during this night.

Dr. Mazzoni Interviewed.

At midnight a report coming from the vatican itself gained currency that Dr. Mazzoni had again operated on the pope and extracted serum which had again gathered in the pleural cavity. The representative of the Associated Press immediately went to see the illustrious surgeon and found him at his home at 1:30 this morning. Although extremely tired, Dr. Mazzoni allowed himself to be interviewed and said:

"It is untrue that a new operation has been performed. I was with the pope from 11 p. m. until after midnight and found his general condition stationary, no change having taken place since this afternoon, when the consultation with Dr. Rossini was held. To strengthen the patient's heart and help the circulation of the blood I injected camphor and caffeine, after which the pope, who seemed somewhat relieved, said he remembered being treated with raspail water on a camphor basis when he was nuncio at Brussels, 60 years ago."

In reply to a question Dr. Mazzoni replied:

New Operation May Be Necessary.

"I really cannot say whether the serum in the pleural cavity has increased since the consultation this afternoon, as I did not examine his holiness for such a purpose. It must be understood that the pope is too frail to be handled like other people. Besides, his thorax, through old age, has become bent in such a way that the right side, where pneumonia was first detected, curves out in a very pronounced manner, while the left side curves in. In tomorrow's visit attention will be especially centered on the progress in the secretion of serum. Then a decision will be taken as to whether a new operation is necessary."

Dr. Mazzoni ended by ridiculing the criticisms, objections and advice which he said people, most of whom are famous only for never having been heard of, allow themselves to advance, even from abroad, many of these persons having only seen the pope in photographs. The greatest accusation is that pleurisy was not discovered in time. I visited the pope for the first time on Sunday. On Monday evening I discovered the fluid and on Tuesday removed it. "Any student of medicine knows," concluded Dr. Mazzoni, "that sometimes weeks pass before the presence of serum is detected. I myself once had pleurisy, which the doctor only discovered 15 days after I was taken ill."

The condition of Pope Leo at times yesterday morning seemed so favorable that the hopeful Dr. Mazzoni and the more conservative Dr. Lapponi united in expressing the belief that there was some slight prospect of recovery, but within a few hours these brighter prospects disappeared before the most alarming conclusions reached after the lengthy consultation of doctors. The earlier hopes had been inspired largely by the pontiff's outward evidence of vigor, as he was able to rise, walk and command all his faculties, but the latter consultation disclosed that these outward evidences of strength were entirely deceptive, as the real danger consisted in the gradual internal progress of the insidious disease.

Condition Beyond Hope.

The mere fact of the consultation in itself gave rise to the gloomiest forebodings. Indeed, this was the first actual consultation, as the previous frequent meetings of the doctors were not regarded as formal consultations. Dr. Rossini, the distinguished specialist of the Raccelli school, was called into a consultation lasting two hours, during which every phase of the patient's case was minutely gone over. The conclusions announced in the 7:30 o'clock bulletin showed that liquid is again rapidly gathering in the pleural cavity and that the pope's general condition is very grave.

Following the issuance of this bulletin the doctors expressed their convictions regarding the extreme gravity of the case. Dr. Lapponi said, without qualification, that the patient's condition was beyond hope. He did not expect a final collapse at once, but rather a gradual sinking until the end came. How long the sufferer will last the doctors will not venture any prediction. Ordinary calculations, they say, fail to apply to this extraordinary case. One of them remarked:

"Here is a man almost a hundred years old retaining all his mental and most of his physical faculties and bravely combatting the approach of death. Although the conditions change from hour to hour, the essential conditions of mental alertness and physical vigor continue unbroken. Never yet has there been the slightest lapse into incoherency."

Arranging to Elect Successor.

Whatever may be the outcome the vatican world has fully made up its mind that the demise of the pope is only a question of days at the most and probably only of hours. With this being the prevalent view, every detail for conducting the affairs of the church during the interregnum and for carrying out the election of Pope Leo's successor is being systematically arranged. Following advices from the vatican, the cardinals throughout the world are hurrying Romeward, anticipating the holding of a conclave for the choice of a pope. These preparations are being undertaken in a spirit of profound grief and as the performance of a sacred duty.

The court of the vatican leading to the pope's apartments has been thronged with distingiushed visitors seeking information as to the pope's condition. Practically the entire diplomatic corps accredited to the vatican was among the inquirers and many cardinals were also among the groups. The popular solicitude for the pope's condition has led to an amelioration of the rigid rules closing the entrances. High and low coming to ask about the pope's condition were equally admitted to the inner court, where the bulletins signed by the doctors were conspicuously exhibited.

Pope in Ignorance of Volponi's Death.

One of the most remarkable features of the sick room is the absolute simplicity and the entire absence of the usual elaborate equipment found in the sick rooms of distinguished patients. There are no trained nurses, the only attendants besides the doctors being the pope's valets, Centra and De Castro. The doctors are without a corps of assistants and there are none of the modern appliances for refrigeration and other means of ameliorating the condition of patients.

The tragic death of Monsignor Volponi was carefully kept from the pope throughout the day. It was at first feared that it would be necessary to inform the pope in order that Monsignor Volponi's successor to the office of secretary of the consistory might be nominated, but after discussion by the vatican authorities it was decided that the precedents admitted of the nomination of a secretary without the intervention of the pope.

EDITORS DISCUSS MANY TOPICS

Newspapers Err and Sin Rather by Things Suppressed Rather Than by What Is Published.

Omaha, July 10.—B. B. Herbert, of the National Editorial association gave an account of a journalistic association in England which has met with success under the name of the Institutive Journalists of England. One of its objects is the protection of its members against libel suits and other difficulties common to journalism. Out of it has grown the World's Press Congress, which will be held in St. Louis next year. Mr. Herbert recommended that a committee be appointed to represent the editorial association at that congress, and the suggestion was adopted.

"Relation of the Newspaper to the State" was the subject of an address by F. C. Raney, of Fort Scott, Kan.

Edward Rosewater spoke on the "Ethics of Journalism." He criticised doctors and lawyers for seeking advertising in newspapers. The editor, he said, erred and sinned rather by the things he suppressed than by what he published.

A number of other papers were read, one of which was by Mrs. Georgiana Raby, of St. Louis, who spoke on "Fraternity and the World's Fair," reviewing the elaborate arrangements for the meeting of fraternal orders at the world's fair in 1904.

WHISKY LABELS ON HER BAGGAG.

Jokers Decorate Trunk of Mrs. Carrie Nation While Ticket Agent Is Lectured on Evils of Smoking.

McKeesport, Pa., July 10.—Mrs. Carrie Nation arrived in town and immediately went to the Baltimore and Ohio depot for the purpose of purchasing a ticket for Olympia park, where she gave two lectures during the day. The ticket agent did not know Mrs. Nation and appeared at the window smoking a cigar. Immediately Mrs. Nation saw the blue and white smoke, the young man lost favor in her eyes. She pointed out to him, in strenuous language, the error of his ways, and intimated that it would end in his death. The agent was at first somewhat surprised at the outburst, but when he had a chance to get in a word, told her he was there to sell tickets and he wanted no lectures except from his superior officer.

While the lecture was in progress Mrs. Nation's enemies were losing no time. Some procured a large quantity of whisky labels of a certain brand and liberally pasted them on her baggage. When the light of Mrs. Nation's eyes apprehended what had been done she almost fainted. Reviving without the aid of a stimulant, however, she made the depot lively for a time and then made a vain search for a policeman. Returning, she did her best at destroying the hated labels, but when her train came along not half of them had been dislodged, so she proceeded to the park, advertising the traffic which she so much hated.

Lime Burns Sound Steamer.

Anacortes, Wash., July 10.—The sound steamer Laconner has been destroyed by fire in Burroughs bay. The vessel was bringing 1,800 barrels of lime and 129 barrels of salt salmon from San Juan island when she sprang a leak. As soon as the water struck the lime the vessel caught fire. Captain Ira Myers headed her for the beach, which she reached in time to allow the officers and crew to get ashore. The loss is about $20,000.

CHRONIC SORES

Signs of Polluted Blood.

There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the SSS polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.

S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health. If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

The Ethics of Fiction

By ANNE FITZHUGH MACLEAN

III.—Difficult Moral Situations.

WITH the rapid growth of our modern habit of self analysis arose the moral dilemma as a motive in fiction, replacing or complicating the old motives of love, intrigue and adventure.

This in its turn has developed so rapidly that from a robust, obvious dilemma like that of Rochester and Jane in "Jane Eyre" it has already become in the hands of many writers subtilized beyond the recognition of the ordinary mind.

Even Mrs. Ward's Eleanor would, a hundred years ago, have spared herself most of her spiritual agonizings. The case between her and Lucy would have been a plain case of take who can, or Eleanor would have made a noble and immediate sacrifice of her claims, living happy ever after in the consciousness of well doing or else dying of a broken heart without any preliminary pains of self struggle. But the modernness of this treatment of an ancient situation is a very different thing from the decadent modernness of certain books—for instance, "The Column," where the dilemma is so vague that the everyday reader merely concludes that the young married pair were hard put to it for something to make themselves wretched about.

The two elements, one of which nearly always constitutes the difficulty in the moral situation, are, first, the necessity for deceit, either in word or in a course of action; second, the necessity of a decision between fearful self sacrifice and the ruin of another.

Generally all that is needed is a little of that wisdom of which Margaret Deland is our chief apostle, the wisdom that we call common sense. In most novels the lack of this quality on the part of personages caught in moral complications is either irritating or laughable, according as the author has or has not succeeded in gaining our sympathy. We feel that they know they are in a story and must keep up the plot, else they would surely speak the word or do the simple thing that would untangle the intricacies that are making them miserable or bringing the innocent to ruin.

Sir Gilbert Parker.

[Who built up a hopeless complication of difficult situations in "The Right of Way."]

From such it is restful to turn to a book in which the situation would be considered equally difficult in real life. Out of many "Jane Field" is a good example. The yielding to the temptation was to her despairing mother love made diabolically easy by the lawyer's mistake in assuming her to be her sister, of whose death he was ignorant. She meant to take from the estate only the sum that was rightfully due her. Even the most self conscious integrity might tremble at the power and plausibility of her temptation. She yields, yet in a life of falsehood she shrinks from a spoken lie and constantly risks all by refusing to utter one. Marvelous is the consistency of this old woman—rigid, unlovely, yet a glowing fire of maternal passion.

In the end her conscience triumphs—the conscience which, though, as the story says, "all her traditions were purely orthodox, made of her a fetich worshiper in a time of trouble," and when her daughter falls ill drives her to church "to propitiate a terrifying deity." When her tortured brain gives way as she makes confession of her sin, one cannot help the gentle human wish that she might first have realized the happiness of the child for whom she believed she had forfeited salvation.

A very different but also extremely interesting book whose motive is maternal passion in excess is "Mrs. Keith's Crime." So appealing is the situation of the woman who finally kills her adored child that there is danger of the reader's condemnation of her crime weakening under the influence of his sympathy. Or was it crime? Since killing for self defense is allowed by all, is it permissible to kill the helpless in his own defense?

This is Mrs. Clifford's problem in the story of Mrs. Keith, and shudderingly real has she made the presentment of it.

A hopeless complication of difficult situations is found in Gilbert Parker's fine book, "The Right of Way." Yet even in this the Gordian knot method would have been the right thing, and Steele would best have followed the obvious and sensible course—to go home, avow himself, let everybody involved take the consequences, including a divorce for his wife, who had married again, and then return to marry his Rosalie.

The distress to his wife would have been temporary, and surely the innocent Rosalie should not have had all the suffering put upon her. But that is the way. The person who sacrifices himself generally at the same time offers up another victim and one who deserves to be shielded quite as much as the one for whom the sacrifice is made. Mrs. Deland takes this for a text in "Sally," a wholesome short story for people in whose natures the quality of self renunciation is out of drawing.

In "A Tale of Two Cities" Dickens suggests no question as to whether Sydney Carton had a right to give up his life for his friend. Do we, then, belong to ourselves, or are we responsible to God for our bodies as well as our souls? Carton's act was suicide, and does any cause justify suicide? Certainly no cause could justify self degradation such as is illustrated in the means by which William Black's Yolande proposed to cure her mother of the habit of eating opium. Here we have an extreme case of the perversion of self sacrifice, but it does not require extreme cases to work grave injury to the moral vision of young or unthinking readers.

Says Mr. Howell, "The self sacrifice painted in most novels is nothing but psychical suicide and is as wholly immoral as the spectacle of a man falling upon a sword."

False and morbid sentiment in fiction is responsible for much false and morbid sentiment in real life. On the other hand, it could not have so permeated fiction had it not first existed widely in life.

Fiction exaggerates it, as a thing must be exaggerated, by the emphasis of its selection to the exclusion of most of the modifying elements of real life, but in the face of the spread of correct ethical principles it is fast assuming its true relation and proportion. Undoubtedly our public enlightenment has gone beyond the approval of such acts as that of Ewan, the clergyman in "The Deemster," who, by falsely acknowledging as his the signature which his cousin had forged, took upon himself, besides the lie, the burden of the debt and the stigma of disobedience to the church.

Many readers of "The Honorable Peter Stirling" regarded his lie told to save his friend, or, rather, his friend's wife, as the sole blot upon an ideal character. The lie was an indulgence the temptation to which was great, but he would have been a stronger man to have resisted. He does what the self sacrificing novel hero usually does—puts his wisdom above the wisdom of God, who, however we conceive him, must be a God of truth and cannot require a lie as a foundation for ultimate good. Stirling's words, however, at the moment of crisis, "Ask John, and he will say I am the father of the child," are read by some persons as no lie, but an ingenious statement of fact, to be interpreted thus, "Ask John, and he will say, 'I am the father of the child.'"

Mr. Crawford's "Corleone" has a moral situation at once so dramatic and so probable that it deserves to be the pivot of a story rather than an incident. The inviolacy of the confessional is turned by a murderer to his own advantage in such a way as to put under suspicion of the crime the priest to whom he has confessed it and who is thereby left without means of proving his innocence.

Hippolyte, the priest, sees no dilemma in his situation, nothing to be solved, for he does not for a moment consider breaking the seal of the confessional as an alternative to silently accepting an ignominious death.

The great novelists of the early nineteenth century did not make an ethical situation the keynote of a story, though they made subordinate use of such elements. Scott's notable exception is "The Fair Maid of Perth," of which he tells us he "conceived the case of one constitutionally weak of nerve being supported by feelings of honor and jealousy up to a certain point and then suddenly giving way under circumstances to which the bravest heart could hardly refuse compassion." In this conception Scott was in advance of his time. Since then many stories have been built upon the idea that physical fear is not always proof of a cowardly soul, and I know nothing that shows more clearly than the popular acceptance of this motive the great increase in our knowledge of human nature and the consequent increase of sympathy and forbearance.

A dangerous doctrine still to be weeded out of fiction is that a bad life can be atoned for toward its end by one heroic act. The woman who has wrecked lives appears in such romances to wipe out the score against her when, having experienced the hollowness of her mode of life, she turns sick nurse or devotes her remaining years to work among the poor.

The fascinating debauchee, with years of wasted or actively bad life behind him, rescues his enemy or does something equally dramatic, and the author strikes an attitude as if to assure us that his past is now clean.

What the novelist needs in dealing with moral dilemmas—and what the best novelists have already found—is, first, common sense, and, second, a just standard of right and wrong. Thus equipped, false or exaggerated sentiment may be required in the actions of his personages, but his presentment will show these things in their true significance. Such writers are the most valuable of moral teachers, for their audience is the largest in the world, and they teach the truth so subtly that it is absorbed by the spirit as the pure air is drunk in by the skin.

The Things That Need Not Happen

From "The Power of Truth," Published by Brentano's

THIS world would be a delightful place to live in if it were not for the people. They really cause all the trouble. Man's worst enemy is always man. He began to throw the responsibility of his transgressions on some one else in the garden of Eden, and he has been doing so ever since.

The greater part of the pain, sorrow and misery in life is purely a human invention, yet man, with cowardly irreverence, dares to throw the responsibility on God. It comes through breaking laws—laws natural, physical, civic, mental or moral. These are laws which man knows, but he disregards. He takes chances. He thinks he can dodge results in some way. But nature says, "He who breaks pays." There are no dead letter laws on the divine statute books of life. When a man permits a torchlight procession to parade through a powder magazine, it is not courteous for him to refer to the subsequent explosion as "one of the mysterious workings of Providence."

Nine-tenths of the world's sorrow, misfortune and unhappiness is preventable. The daily newspapers are the great chroniclers of the dominance of the unnecessary. Paragraph after paragraph, column after column and page after page of the dark story—accidents, disasters, crime, scandal, human weakness and sin—might be checked off with the word "preventable." In each instance, were our information full enough, our analysis keen enough, we could trace each back to its cause, to the weakness or the wrong from which it emanated. Sometimes it is carelessness, inattention, neglect of duty, avarice, anger, jealousy, dissipation, betrayal of trust, selfishness, hypocrisy, revenge, dishonesty, any of a hundred phases of the preventable.

That which can be prevented should be prevented. It all rests with the individual. The "preventable" exists in three degrees—first, that which is due to the individual solely and directly; second, that which he suffers through the wrongdoing of those around him, other individuals; third, those instances wherein he is the unnecessary victim of the wrongs of society, the innocent legatee of the folly of humanity—and society is but the massing of thousands of individuals with the heritage of manners, customs and laws they have received from the past.

We sometimes feel heartsick and weary in facing failure when the fortune that seemed almost in our fingers slips away because of the envy, malice or treachery of some one else. We bow under the weight of a sorrow that makes all life grow dark and the star of hope fade from our vision, or we meet some unnecessary misfortune with a dumb, helpless despair. "It is all wrong," we say, "it is cruel, it is unjust. Why is it permitted?" And in the very intensity of our feeling we half unconsciously repeat the words over and over again in monotonous iteration, as if in some way the very repetition might bring relief, might somehow soothe us. Yet in most instances it could be prevented. No suffering is caused in the world by right. Whatever sorrow there is that is preventable comes from inharmony or wrong of some kind.

In the divine economy of the universe most of the evil, pain and suffering are unnecessary, even when overruled for good, and perhaps if our knowledge were perfect it would be seen that none is necessary; that all is preventable. The fault is mine or yours or the fault of the world. It is always individual. The world itself is but the cohesive, united force of the thoughts, words and deeds of millions who have lived or who are living like you and me. By individuals has the great wrong that causes our preventable sorrow been built up; by individuals must it be weakened and transformed to right. And in this, too, it is to a great degree our fault; we care so little about rousing public sentiment, of lashing it into activity unless it concerns us individually.

The old Greek fable of Atlas, the African king who supported the world on his shoulders, has a modern application. The individual is the Atlas upon whom the fate of the world rests today. Let each individual do his best, and the result is foreordained. It is but a matter of the unconquerable massing of the units. Let each individual bear his part as faithfully as though all the responsibility rested on him, yet as calmly, as gently and as unworried as though all the responsibility rested on others.

Most accidents are preventable—as at Balaklava, "some one has blundered." One of the great disasters of the nineteenth century was the Johnstown flood, where the bursting of a dam caused the loss of more than 6,000 lives. The flood was not a mere accident; it was a crime. A leaking dam, for more than a year known to be unsafe, known to be unable to withstand any increased pressure, stood at the head of the valley. Below it lay a chain of villages containing over 45,000 persons in the direct line of the flood. When the heavy rains came, the weakened dam gave way. Had there been one individual, one member of the South Fork Fishing club, brave enough to have done merely his duty, one member with the courage to so move his fellows and to stir up public action to make the barrier safe over 6,000 murders could have been prevented.

When a tired engineer, sleepy from overwork, can no longer cheat nature of her needed rest and, drowsing for a moment in his cab, fails to see the red signal light of danger or to heed the exploding of the warning torpedo, the wreck that follows is not chargeable to the Almighty. It is but an awful memorial of a railroad corporation's struggle to save $2. One ounce of prevention is worth six pounds of coroner's inquest. It is a crime to balance the safety and sacredness of human life in the scales with the petty saving that comes from transforming a man into a mechanism and forgetting he has either a soul or a body. True, just and wise labor laws are part of society's weapon for fighting the preventable.

When a terrible fire makes a city desolate and a nation mourn, the investigation that follows usually shows that a little human foresight could have prevented it, or at least lessened the horror of it all. If chemicals or dynamite are stored in any building in excess of what wise legislation declares is safe, some one has been cruelly careless. Perhaps it is some inspector who has been disloyal to his trust by permitting bribes to chloroform his sense of duty. If the lack of fire escapes adds its quota to the list of deaths or if the avarice of the owner has made his building a fire trap, public feeling becomes intense, the newspapers are justly loud in their protests and in demands that the guilty ones be punished. "If the laws already on the statute books do not cover the situation," we hear from day to day, "new laws will be framed to make a repetition of the tragedy impossible." We are promised all kinds of reforms; the air seems filled with a spirit of regeneration; the mercury of public indignation rises to the point where "fever heat" seems a mild, inadequate term.

Then, as the horror begins to fade in the perspective of the past, men go quietly back to their own personal cares and duties, and the mighty wave of righteous protest that threatened so much dies in gentle lapping on the shore. What has been all men's concern seems soon to concern no one. The tremendous energy of the authorities seems like the gesture of a drunken man that starts from his shoulder with a force that would almost fell an ox, but when it reaches the hand it has expended itself, and the hand drops listlessly in the air with hardly power enough to disturb the serenity of a butterfly. There is always a little progress, a slight advance, and it is only the constant accumulation of these steps that is giving to the world greater dominion over the preventable.

By WILLIAM GEORGE JORDAN

Let us not seek to fit the whole world with shoes from our individual last. If we think that all music ceased to be written when Wagner laid down the pen, let us not condemn those who find enjoyment in light opera. Perhaps they may some time rise to our heights of artistic appreciation and learn the proper parts to applaud. If their lighter music satisfies their souls, is our Wagner doing more for us? It is not fair to take from a child its rag doll in order to raise it to the appreciation of the Venus de Milo. The rag doll is its Venus. It may require a long series of increasingly better dolls to lead it to realize the beauties of the marble woman of Melos.

Intolerance makes its great mistakes in measuring the needs of others from its own standpoint. Intolerance ignores the personal equation in life. What would be an excellent book for a man of forty might be worse than useless for a boy of thirteen. The line of activity in life that we would choose as our highest dream of bliss, as our paradise, might if forced on another be to him worse than the after death fate of the wicked according to the old fashioned theologians. What would be a very acceptable breakfast for a sparrow would be a very poor meal for an elephant.

When we sit in solemn judgment of the acts and characters of those around us and condemn them with the easy nonchalance of our ignorance, yet with the assumption of omniscience, we reveal our intolerance. Tolerance ever leads us to recognize and respect the differences in the natures of those who are near to us, to make allowance for differences in training, in opportunities, in ideals, in motives, in tastes, in opinions, in temperaments and in feelings. Intolerance seeks to live other people's lives for them: sympathy helps us to live their lives with them. We must accept humanity with all its weakness, sin and folly and seek to make the best of it, just as humanity must accept us. We learn this lesson as we grow older, and with the increase of our knowledge of the world we see how much happier life would have been for us and for others if we had been more tolerant, more charitable, more generous. From "The Power of Truth," Published by Brentano's.

Yankee Yacht Experts

Our Marine Designers and Builders Lead World ⁘ The Magic Name of Herreshoff ⁘ Famous Bristol Boats ⁘ Captain Nat.

With Sir Thomas Lipton again in the field as a challenger for the America's cup all the world is getting in trim to give the deepest attention to the next races for that trophy, to be sailed for off Sandy Hook in August.

For more than half a century this cup has remained in the custody of the New York Yacht club in spite of the admitted fact that the seamanship of the men across the water is equal to that of the men who have sailed the various successive cup defenders to their victories. This same state of affairs exists as far as the coming races are concerned, and it is upon the question of yacht designing and building that the real test between the English and the Americans depends. This question and this alone, it is firmly believed by yachtsmen, will decide the coming contest between the Shamrock III. and the cup defender.

American yacht designers concededly are the best in the world, and Sir Thomas, on the occasion of his last unsuccessful effort to lift the cup, half in humor and half in despair, said he was afraid he never would be able to land the cup unless the Herreshoffs would consent to build a cup challenger for his use. It is the work of these American designers that has kept the cup safely on these shores since the America first brought it over, despite the fact that the best designers and sailors in the United Kingdom have made repeated efforts to win it back, spending millions of dollars in their attempts.

The name Herreshoff is a magic one in the world of yachting. It was Herreshoff who designed and built the Vigilant, the craft that defeated Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie in 1893; it was Herreshoff who designed and built the Defender, which lowered the earl's colors in 1895, when he made his second attempt to win the cup with the Valkyrie III., and it was Herreshoff also who designed and built the Columbia, which defeated the first Shamrock in 1899 and which again was relied upon to defeat the Shamrock II. two years ago, after the new Herreshoff yacht, the Constitution, had proved to be a little inferior to the cup defender of the previous race, called upon for a second time to protect the trophy. These and many other famous yachts have been built by the Herreshoffs, upon whom the yachtsmen of this country have once more to depend.

is a direct descendant of the noted Charles Brown, the colleague of Roger Williams. John B. Herreshoff was born in 1841 and was educated at Brown university. He was an enthusiast on the subject of boats in his boyhood, and he entered the business as a designer and builder in 1864. He lost his sight shortly after, but kept right on building boats, and today can explain the intricacies of machinery and the values of lines of construction as accurately as though he saw everything. Nathaniel Greene Herreshoff, the youngest brother of John B., however, is the member of the firm who is responsible for the almost unvarying success of the yachts built by the firm. He practically has lived on the water all his life and from the age of nine on has been considered an expert at handling sailing craft. He was graduated from the Institute of Technology and in 1869 went into the Corliss engine works in Providence and there worked and studied for eight years, after which he joined his brother in business.

Much of the attention of the Bristol firm was given to steam craft until a few years ago. Nathaniel Herreshoff does the actual designing, but John B. always is consulted. He runs his hands over the models, and his sensitive fingers find lumps and hollows that would be impossible for less educated digits to discover. Then he makes suggestions, calls attention to the slightest imperfections and tells how they may best be remedied. In this manner the two brothers evolved the Wasp, the Gloriana, Colonia, Vigilant, Defender, Columbia, Rainbow, Mineola, Yankee, Virginia and a host of other racing yachts that have made history. Yachtsmen of America, while admitting the great genius of Herreshoff, especially in designing big cutters, do not concede that all the brains in this particular direction are stowed away in one head. There are others who have held their own in the construction of smaller single stickers and in large schooners.

BOWDOIN B. CROWNINSHIELD.

For instance, there is William Gardner, a young man who has made a reputation among the marine architects of America. He began his career in the office of Stephen Roach's shipbuilding yard and thoroughly learned the manner of shipbuilding on the Delaware.

Charles D. Mosher is another thoroughly practical engineer and designer.

A. Cary Smith is a marine painter whose works on canvas have attracted no small amount of attention, but at the present time he is turning out more yachts than pictures. He designed the big steel schooner Tampa, now owned by Emperor William of Germany, but probably the best known racing craft from his board is the Amorita, owned by Richard Mansfield.

He also designed the Iroquois, which safely sailed through the great blizzard of 1888 without having a spar carried away; the seventy footer Titania, the schooner Lasca, a craft that later was bought by a German nobleman; the Ariel, and many others. It was Cary Smith who transformed the Herreshoff keel cutter Colonia into a centerboard schooner, which under the flag of Commodore Postley of the Larchmont (N. Y.) Yacht club was seldom defeated during the many years of its activity. Mr. Smith also designed some fast sound steamers and other steam craft.

The Boston designer, A. G. McVey, is a newspaper writer who has had charge of the yachting departments of various Boston papers for years. He has designed several thirty footers and forty footers and stands well in the ranks of the marine architects. Then there is George Stewart, who designed the cup defender Pilgrim in 1893; also E. Binney, C. Purdan and B. B. Crowninshield of Boston, who designed Thomas W. Lawson's Independence and a whole fleet of small craft; W. P. Stephens, Charles G. Davis, C. D. Mower, Clinton H. Crane, Larry Huntington, and many others who hail from New York. Proof is not wanting of the strength of America in marine architects.

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism.

"My mother has been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pa. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried, in fact, she is never without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with." For sale by Alvin & Bulger.

EXPENSIVE KISSES.

Two That Helped to Make Eighteenth Century History.

In the year 1794 the beautiful and charming Duchess of Gordon raised that famous regiment of soldiers called "the Gordon highlanders" by giving each recruit a guinea in gold and a kiss from her own lips. It is notorious that the regiment was raised to a full complement quicker than any other regiment in the British service. But the highlanders paid well for their kiss. They were sent immediately to fight the French, and in their first engagement 500 fell, killed and wounded.

In the year 1703 a stray kiss was the means of bringing about a bloody and expensive war. Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria was journeying in a neighboring state. One day he visited "the royal household," and while there his eye caught sight of a most beautiful maiden who happened to be near him. He was so bewitched with her charming personality that he impulsively and thoughtlessly implanted a kiss upon her fair cheek. She was a princess of the royal household, which the prince knew not, neither did he know that she was an affianced bride and that her betrothed was near by and saw the whole affair. Angry words and blows followed. A duel was fought and both principals were severely wounded. Diplomatic relations between the two kingdoms were suspended, and a long and bloody war ensued, all on account of a kiss which was paid for most dearly in blood and treasure.

Dangerous Symptoms.

The story is told of a Scotch preacher who gave his people long, strong sermons and delivered them in a remarkably deliberate manner. One Sunday he asked a friend who was visiting him to occupy his pulpit in the morning.

"An' were you satisfied wi' my preaching?" asked his friend as they walked home from the kirk.

"Weel," said his host slowly, "it was a fair discoorse, Will'm; a fair discoorse, but it pained me at the last to see the folk looking so fresh and wide-awake. I mistrust 'twasna sae long nor sae sound as it should hae been."

The Dictionary Habit.

Friend—What queer language your husband uses! He pronounces every word half a dozen different ways.

Wife—Yes, he has half a dozen different dictionaries.

Uncle Sam the Greatest Mail Carrier In the World

OWING to the recent sweeping changes in the personnel of the staff of Postmaster General Henry C. Payne, public attention is directed to Uncle Sam's postal establishment, the greatest business concern in the world. It handles more pieces, employs more men, spends more money, brings more revenue, uses more agencies, reaches more homes, involves more details and touches more interests than any other human organization, public or private, governmental or corporate.

The postal services of England, France and Germany include the telegraph, which is a private enterprise here, and yet the aggregate figures of the postal business in this country surpass both post and telegraph in any of those lands. The receipts and expenditures of one system, of combined railroads and of the United States Steel corporation, perhaps, equal those of the postal service, but the only equality is in monetary figures and not in the extent and ramifications of organization.

POSTMASTER GENERAL PAYNE.

The post office department directed last year 75,924 post offices, mustered an army of 200,000 employees, spent $124,809,217, and its receipts were $121,848,047.

The delivery system of letters has been carried to a high state of perfection. Those residents of cities and large towns who accept as a matter of course the frequent rounds of the gray coated messengers of the post office find it difficult to recall that prior to 1863 the letter carrier service had no existence in the United States.

Rural free delivery is a much more recent addition to the carrier service, but is already well established. The estimates of the department are to the effect that the available territory for this service embraces about 1,000,000 square miles. The 11,650 routes now in operation cover about one-third of the available territory. From this it will be seen that it will require about 25,000 additional employees to take care of this territory. It is believed that within the next three years the extension of this service will have been completed.

In connection with the transportation of mails it may be a matter of interest to know how the bags and pouches used in carrying the billions of pieces of mail matter deposited in more than 80,000 post offices and postal cars are distributed and how they find their way back. Practically they are furnished by contract, and nearly all get in circulation through the New York office.

MRS. HENRY C. PAYNE.

The great trend of the mail is from east to west and from the large commercial centers to the less populous districts. How to recover the mail bags sent to remote sections and have them promptly returned to the large centers long ago became a serious problem. This was solved by designating certain cities, with adequate railroad facilities and ample storage room, as depositories for all surplus mail bags finding their way to offices in the surrounding states.

The money order division is one of the greatest of international clearing houses. Through its machinery remittances may be sent all over the world at the smallest expense and in the safest manner. The number of money orders issued is still, however, much below the business done by either Germany or England. The former country does a postal money order business nearly four times the volume of that done in this country, while England overtops us at least 200 per cent. The postal order has been far longer established in those countries, and there is little competition on the part of private enterprises, as here.

The advance of the foreign mail service has kept pace, so far as the conditions would allow, with the domestic service. It is only since 1874 that the postal union has existed which established uniform rates and conditions. Prior to that time the mails with foreign countries were regulated by separate treaties, providing different rates with almost every nation. Then the letter writer had to consult numerous schedules to learn how much he must prepay and what conditions must be fulfilled to secure the earliest dispatch.

Now, with the uniform foreign rate as well known as the domestic, he can drop his letter into the first box he comes to with the assurance that it will go by the quickest route to its destination, though at the ends of the earth, and all for the sum of 5 cents.

The first head of the postal department was Samuel Osgood of Massachusetts, under President Washington in 1789. It was not until 1829, however, that the postmaster general was considered a cabinet officer, when William T. Barry of Kentucky held that post under President Jackson. In all there have been just forty postmaster generals.

Henry C. Payne, the head of the postal department, is a New Englander by birth, and his first job with a salary attachment was as assistant to the post office at Shelburne, Mass., a fitting start in life for the man who was destined in later years to become the head of the department. When the civil war broke out young Payne wanted to enlist, but was rejected on account of his size. Early in the sixties he went to Milwaukee, which is still his home, and where he became a millionaire.

Mrs. Payne, who as the wife of a cabinet officer is one of the notable figures in Washington society, has in no small degree contributed to her husband's success in life. For many years she has been prominent in the Daughters of the Revolution and the Colonial Dames. Before her marriage she was Miss Lydia Van Dyke of an old New York colonial family. The Paynes were married in 1867.

Among all the thousands of Uncle Sam's post offices probably the most curious is the one in Beebe Plain, a town that stands half in Vermont and half in the province of Quebec, Canada. The old post office was built about seventy-five years ago exactly on the line between the United States and Canada, so that it stands in two countries and serves in the postal service of two nations. This combination post office is now being run by parent and child, the father being postmaster for Canada while the daughter is the postmistress for the Vermonters.

With all its great income the postal service is run at a loss, the expenditures since 1882 having been greater than the receipts. This is explained by the fact that whenever the receipts exceed or approach the expenditures it is the policy of congress to extend postal facilities and cheapen the cost of the service to the public. This was the case in 1882, when the letter postage was reduced from 3 cents per half ounce to 2 cents per ounce. Americans have every reason to be proud of the work done by Uncle Sam's post office department, for it is of the highest order of merit.

Nuremberg.

Nuremberg, whose walls are reported to be showing signs of rapid decay, was once almost the richest and most famous town in Europe. The well known saying of Pope Pius II.—that a Nuremberg citizen was better off than a Scottish king—was justified by the accounts that have been preserved of the town and its burghers. In the fifteenth century there came from Nuremberg the first watches known as "Nuremberg eggs;" the first cannon, the first gun lock, the first wire drawing machine, the clarinet, certain descriptions of pottery and the art of painting on glass. For 800 years its now decaying walls defended the valley of the Pegnitz against all enemies. Four hundred towers once topped the walls, but only about a third of them now remain.

European Tattooers.

Tattooing is not by any means confined to savage peoples. There are races in Europe which make it a regular practice, and men, women and children bear on their bodies ornamentations that are as ornate and queer, although not as extensive, as are markings on the bodies of the south sea savages.

These European tattooers are among the Albanians and Bosnians, who live in the famous and notorious Balkan peninsula.

NERVOUS HEADACHE BREEDS INSANITY

Many a person's whole pleasure in life is ruined by the fear of nervous headaches. Any little excitement, no matter what, business or social, brings them on. The feet and hands grow cold, the head is hot, the eyes stiff, the temples throb, and only in the quiet of a darkened room is relief found. This condition must be checked or it means complete mental ruin. To those people Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills come as a blessing. They do not stop, they cure the headaches. They do not blanket, they build up. They put the nervous system in a strong, vigorous, sturdy condition—a condition that gives one resistive power and enables them to again enjoy life's pleasures.

Mrs. George Hall, of No. 389 West Market Street, East Liverpool, Ohio, says: "I was bilious—had nervous headaches, hard and constant—there was a general feeling of weakness and depression. I was asked to try Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and did so, getting them at Larkins' drug store. The result was very good indeed as the biliousness overcome—the headaches cured and bodily and nerve strength furnished."

IF YOU HAVE PAIN IN YOUR BACK

Do Not Be Deceived. You have Kidney Trouble, and You Do Not Need a Physician to Tell You So.

Pain in the back is an almost infallible sign of kidney disease; a surer sign is the condition of your urine. If you have a pain in the back, then look to the condition of your urine. It is easily done. Take a glass or tumbler and fill it with urine; after it has stood 24 hours, if it has a sediment, if it is milky or cloudy, if it is pale or discolored, stringy or ropy, your kidneys and bladder are in a dangerous condition and need immediate attention, or the consequences may prove fatal. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the one medicine that really cures all diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood, rheumatism, dyspepsia and chronic constipation, and it will take you but a short trial to convince yourself of its wonderful curative power.

G. F. Sammer of No. 409 Tioga street, Syracuse, N. Y., in a recent letter says:

"I was afflicted for years with severe pains in my back and kidneys. I tried many doctors and many medicines, but got no relief. I bought a bottle of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and it has entirely cured me."

It is for sale by all druggists in the New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles—less than a cent a dose.

Sample bottle—enough for trial, free by mail.

HARVEST OF DEATH

Intense Heat Throughout the Country Results Fatally to Many.

DOZEN DIE IN GREATER NEW YORK

Hottest Weather in Two Years—Temperature Almost Unendurable and Prostrations Numerous — Evening Brings but Little Relief.

Pittsburg, July 10.—Instead of the cooling showers predicted for this section yesterday by the weather man Pittsburg residents experienced the hottest day so far this summer. The minimum temperature was 92 degrees and was registered at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. From this hour till 6 o'clock the mercury was stationary and the intense heat of the day caused people to swelter till long after midnight. The long list of fatalities caused by the torrid weather during the past week was increased yesterday by the deaths of seven persons from heat and the prostration of four others.

The Dead.

Frank Menet, aged 40, a mill worker of Duquesne.

Jane Humphrey, 8 months old, 7131 Idlewild street.

Mrs. Winifred Carr, aged 53, of South Twenty-second street, died at South Side hospital.

George Schiller, aged 83, died of heart disease, aggravated by the heat, at his home, rear 1731 Fifth avenue.

Zella L. Kimmel, 7 months old, 121 Edmond street.

George Norris, aged 22, of Wilmerding, went bathing in Monongahela river to escape the heat and was drowned.

Frank Meszaro, aged 30, a laborer, found dead in the cellar of his boarding house.

New York, July 10.—There were six deaths from heat in New York, six in Brooklyn, and fully two score of prostrations. It was the hottest day in two years, or since July 2, 1901, which was the hottest day in the hottest month since the local weather bureau opened in 1871. The official record is that day, two years ago, was 99 degrees. Yesterday it ran to 94 degrees at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Down the streets humanity suffered terrible. In the tenements the heat seemed to be almost unendurable. Little children suffered extremely. This state of affairs continued from early morning until late at night. In the evening the scorched inhabitants sought relief on roofs, at the nearby beaches, or by taking car rides.

Philadelphia, July 10.—This vicinity experienced the hottest weather in two years, the maximum temperature registering 96 degrees at 5 p. m. One death, one person rendered insane and a dozen prostrations, all due to the hot weather, were reported by the police.

Chicago, July 10.—Two deaths and 10 prostrations resulted from the heat. A heavy thunderstorm sent the temperature down from 90 to 72. During the storm a number of buildings in the business portion of the city were flooded by the heavy rainfall.

Springfield, Ill., July 10.—Thursday broke the heat record for the year. The government thermometer on top of the federal building recorded a maximum of 97 degrees, while on the streets thermometers ranged all the way from 98 to 104 in the shade.

Cincinnati, July 10.—Thursday was the hottest day of the year, the thermometer registering 95 degrees. Twelve prostrations were reported, three of the victims being in a serious condition.

St. Louis, July 10.—The excessive heat continues here, the weather bureau reporting 97 degrees. A number of prostrations occurred, but no case has resulted fatally.

Lincoln, Neb., July 10.—The mercury stood at 99 degrees Thursday. This was the hottest of the year. One man was prostrated by the heat and may die.

Burlington, Ia., July 10.—The thermometer has stood at 100 degrees for two days. There has been one prostration from the heat.

FOUR FATALITIES AT CROSSING

Wagon Containing Nine People Struck by Pennsylvania Train Near Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, July 10.—A westbound Pennsylvania train struck a wagon containing nine people at a crossing eight miles east of this city, killing four, fatally injuring three and seriously injuring two of the occupants of the wagon.

Robert Copenhagen, with his wife and two children, aged 8 and 2 years respectively, were going from Red Comb junction to Madisonville. A daughter of a neighbor and four of their boarders accompanied them. They did not observe the train which was coming at high speed. When the engineer saw them he blew his whistle, but it was too late to reverse or stop the train. The mules on hearing the whistle stopped and could not be moved. The animals were across the track and escaped unhurt, while the wagon was wrecked and all the occupants either killed or injured. The train brought the victims to this city.

Wheat Yield of New South Wales.

Sydney, N. S. W., July 10.—The Morning Herald says the estimated wheat yield of the colony is 13,418,400 bushels.

What Shall We Have for Dessert?

This question arises in the family every day. Let us answer it to-day. Try

Jell-O,

a delicious and healthful dessert. Prepared in two minutes. No boiling! no baking! add boiling water and set to cool. Flavors:—Lemon, Orange, Raspberry and Strawberry. Get a package at your grocers to-day. 10 cts.

New Rural Routes.

Washington, July 10.—Two rural free delivery routes will be established July 15 at Orville, Wayne county, O. The routes cover an area of 48 square miles, containing a population of 1,185. On Aug. 1 an additional route will be established at Kane, McKean county, Pa. The route covers an area of 12 square miles, containing a population of 422.

Six Years for Overissuing Stock.

Berlin, July 10.—The court at Duisburg, Rhenish Prussia, has sentenced former Company Director Terrinden, of Oberhausen, to six years' confinement in the penitentiary for overissuing stock and other offenses. Terrinden fled to the United States upon the discovery of his irregularities in the summer of 1901 and later was extradited.

Bids for New Court House.

Greensburg, Pa., July 10.—The bids for the new court house were opened. Miller & Sons, of Pittsburg, are the lowest bidders. Their bid was for granite, $846,000, and for stone, $760,000. It is likely they will be awarded the contract.

Mrs. Blaine Dying.

Augusta, Me., July 10.—There is little change in the condition of Mrs. James G. Blaine, her physicians saying that life is simply wearing away. The end may come suddenly or she may live several days.

Drank Wood Alcohol.

Sewickley, Pa., July 10.—Anne Foley, aged about 50 years, died from drinking wood alcohol at the residence of Mrs. T. W. Fitch, on Maple avenue, where she was employed as a domestic.

Pittsburger Drowned in Gull Lake.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 10.—Elmer McGibbney, aged 21, of Pittsburg, Pa., was drowned in Gull lake while swimming. McGibbney was an employe of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie railroad.

Vessel and Cargo Lost.

Portland, Me., July 10.—The total destruction of the steamship Heathford at Colombo, island of Ceylon, is reported. The Heathford had put into Colombo with her cargo of 30,000 half chests of tea on fire and both vessel and cargo were lost.

Naval Deserter Arrested.

Kansas City, July 10.—Byron West, of this city, who deserted from the naval training ship Charleston at Charleston, S. C., last November, was arrested here and placed in the county jail.

A Surgical Operation

is always dangerous—do not submit to the surgeon's knife until you have tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It will cure when everything else fails—it has done this in thousands of cases. Here is one of them: "I suffered from bleeding and protruding piles for 20 years. Was treated by different specialists and used many remedies, but obtained no relief until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Two boxes of this salve cured me 18 months ago and I have not had a touch of the piles since."—H. A. Tisdale, Summerton, S. C. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy equals DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by Alvin H. Bulger.

"A TALE OF TWO CITIES"

Leaving Detroit at 4 in the afternoon, aboard the palatial steamer "Eastern States" or "Western States" of the famous Detroit & Buffalo Line, passengers are afforded an interesting and panoramic view of Detroit's harbor, teeming with the commerce of the Great Lakes, and bordered with its countless evidences of manufacturing wealth and activity. Passing down the river, Fort Wayne appears, bristling with its war-like aspects, and crowned with "old glory" gently curling in the breeze, seemingly waving adieus to passing travelers.

Again, we are among scenes of simple country life—beautiful farms and artistic rural homes dotting the banks on either side and the verdant islands mid-stream—and, as we float peacefully out upon the bosom of "Old Erie," one feels that the cares of life have lagged behind.

Now the varying course of the ship from time to time brings to view the silvery moon and its rippling reflections in the vessel's wake, while the strains of some dreamy waltz, enchantingly rendered, soothes the ear, and cool, invigorating breezes fan the brow as the traveler is borne along, almost regretting that nature demands its sweet repose.

It is sunrise and we are soon to end our journey. As we pass the breakwater the harbor seems stretching out to welcome our noble vessel, and the tourist, to Buffalo's hospitable environs. Once again we are among scenes of activity, but so refreshed that our journey seems like a fairy's legend.

DELEHANTY'S BODY IDENTIFIED

Remains of Famous Ball Player Are Shipped to Washington—Death Being Investigated.

Buffalo, July 10.—The body found in the river below the falls was identified at Drummondville as that of Ed Delehanty, the famous outfielder of the Washington American league team.

The body was mangled. One leg was torn off, presumably by the propeller of the Maid of the Mist, near whose landing the body was found. M. A. Green, a stockholder in the Washington team, identified the body by the teeth, two crippled fingers and the clothing. The body was shipped to Washington.

Mr. Green identified the luggage left by Delehanty on the train at the bridge last Thursday night when he was put off. In it was a pass to the Washington grounds made out to Mrs. Delehanty. Delehanty's effects have been sent to his wife by the Pullman people.

Frank Delehanty, of the Syracuse team, and E. J. McGuire, a brother-in-law from Cleveland, are here investigating the death of the player. They do not believe that Delehanty committed suicide or that he had been on a spree in Detroit.

Raid on Betting Ring.

Chicago, July 10.—Shortly after the sixth race at Washington park a number of constables, who had been held at bay all afternoon, were admitted to the betting ring. Seven bookmakers for whom the constables had warrants were placed under arrest on a charge of gambling. The men arrested were: James O'Leary, Joseph Yeager, Fred Pesch, Marcus Cartwright, M. Riordan, Bernard J. (Kid) Weller and Samuel Summerfield. They gave bonds of $200 each pending a hearing. The raid was made at the instance of a local attorney. The move is said to have been brought about by several horse owners who were ruled off the track recently at Highland park.

Poisoned by Eating Ice Cream.

FAVOR CLOSER TIES

United States and Great Britain to Act in Interest of Peace of the World.

DECLARATION OF KING EDWARD

Ministers Heartily Approve of Monroe Doctrine—American Officers Royally Welcomed at Buckingham Palace. Toast Drank to President Roosevelt.

London, July 10.—In formally welcoming the American naval officers to England King Edward took occasion to make an emphatic declaration in favor of closer relations between the United States and Great Britain. His majesty did not speak of an alliance or even an understanding, but the impression was clear from his remarks that he desired that the two nations move together in the interests of the peace of the world. Some of the king's ministers also took advantage of the occasion to impress on the American officers their cordial approval of the Monroe doctrine and their desire that it be supported by American influences in a way which would place it above all criticism.

The royal welcome was extended to the American officers at Buckingham palace, where, at 8:30 p. m., commenced the dinner given in their honor by King Edward. The table was decorated by Marechal Neil roses and gold plate brought from Windsor was used. The king commanded the most distinguished of the empire to attend and 36 guests were present. On the king's right sat Ambassador Choate and on his left Rear Admiral Cotton.

The king was dressed in the uniform of an admiral of the British fleet. On the conclusion of the dinner his majesty in a tactful speech expressed gratification at the acceptance of his invitation and cordially welcomed Rear Admiral Cotton and his squadron to England. He asserted that what he said expressed the sentiment not only of himself, but of the whole British people, and he proposed a toast to President Roosevelt, for whom his majesty said he entertained the highest consideration and admiration.

Ambassador Choate responded and in an eloquent speech echoed the wish of the king for the maintenance and promotion of more cordial relations between the two great English speaking nations.

The king further emphasized his gratification by writing at the table a message to President Roosevelt, in which he stated that it had given him the greatest pleasure to welcome the American squadron. King Edward's cordiality made a great impression on the American officers, who left the function convinced of the desire on the part of Great Britain to maintain the closest relations with the American republic.

New Mast Stepped on Shamrock III.

New York, July 10.—The big mast of the Shamrock III was lifted out of her and the mate to it, but 3½ feet taller, was stepped in its place. The new spar was one she had used in her early trials at Weymouth, Eng., and will give an opportunity for greater sail spread, which Designer Fife evidently desires after watching the new boat's trials in the calm weather that has prevailed off Sandy Hook most of the time for the last 10 days. Both Shamrocks will be taken into drydock and cleaned and the underbody of the challenger repainted. The tuning up process will be resumed on Monday and will involve daily trials between the Shamrock I and the Shamrock III until Sir Thomas and Mr. Fife are satisfied that the challenger cannot be improved.

Convention of Christian Endeavor.

Denver, July 10.—The twenty-first annual meeting of the United Society of Christian Endeavor opened here. The attendance at the opening session, though taxing the capacity of the immense tent, which had been provided for the occasion, did not include as many delegates as had been expected on account of delayed trains. The opening of the convention was preceded by the annual business meeting of the Christian Endeavor corporation, at which the officers for the ensuing year were elected and reports of officers submitted.

Smelters Still Idle.

Denver, July 10.—The American Smelting and Refining company announced that the Globe Smelter would be reopened, but no men applied for work and the company was unable to resume operations. The strikers are orderly, but strong guards are maintained at both the Globe and Grant smelters.

For 40 years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

TO IMPROVE RURAL ROADS

County Commissioners Are Willing to Proceed With the Work.

MANY ENDORSE THE MOVE

To the residents of that portion of St. Clair township bordering on the Calcutta road is due the credit of starting a movement, tardy as it is, that will eventually result in the improvement of every country road in Columbiana county. The agitation has been persistent and the farmers in that locality now have the assurance that sooner or later, if they will perform their part, they will be enabled to drive from their homes to East Liverpool without the danger of becoming fast in the mud on the country road several miles from town.

The residents of other rural localities have watched the progress of the agitation with interest, and the result has been that the county commissioners are now very seriously considering a plan whereby the farmers in every section of the county will be benefited. The determination on the part of the board this week to improve the road leading past Hibbett's mill to Coal hollow is a good one, and indicates that the members propose to go as far as their limited means will permit in the work of road improvements. Their experience, covering a period of five years, however, has taught them that the sort of materials used during that time will not do and an effort will be made to introduce something more substantial and durable than planks. The improvement will include the repairing of the floor of the bridge over Little Yellow creek, and it may be that the planks will be replaced with new ones and that a layer of concrete will be put in.

The commissioners have been hampered in no small degree by the lack of funds with which to carry on the work of road improvement. It may not be generally known to many, but it is a fact that there has never been a specific levy for the improvement of highways. The county authorities have never had what is known as a road fund, and every cent that has been used for this purpose has been taken from the bridge fund. This would seem a trifle irregular, but it was the only way the board could see around the question.

A large number of prominent farmers and others residing in cities have been studying the problem for a long time, and can come to but one conclusion. That is, to create a fund for the purpose of grading and putting in shape for their paving or macadamizing the roads leading into the principal cities and towns of the county. The commissioners can do nothing along this line, no matter what their personal feeling might be in the matter, without funds. It has been suggested that the commissioners make a levy for road improvements, and that the fund so acquired be used for that purpose and no other. Nearly all of the counties in the state have this apportionment to draw from, and the excellent driveways in those localities will stand as evidence of the good work done.

It is admitted that Columbiana is far behind its sister counties in the matter of improved roads, and the reason is apparent when it is known there has been no fund for this specific purpose. Several members of the board of county commissioners have been interviewed, and while they are very much in favor of doing something to better the condition of the roads, assert they are unable to proceed under the present circumstances. W. K. George, one of the commissioners, made a statement last evening which will be worth hearing. Mr. George, being a farmer himself, is very much in favor of the move, and does not hesitate to express his views on the subject. He said:

"The commissioners are unanimous in their opinion that the roads should be improved, but without a special levy can do nothing. We had thought that a fund might be created by the levying of one mill. It may be that a half mill would be sufficient for the present, but there must be a fund to start with. With the money acquired in this manner grading can be done and hills cut away, so that the people can go ahead with the paving or macadamizing whenever they see fit. It could not be expected that our board would be in shape to do more than grade within the first few years, and they could only perform this work where the country roads were much traveled; in other words, those thoroughfares leading into the cities and towns. The highways less traveled could be given attention later on, but it is a fact that the main county roads are a disgrace, and will have to be fixed very soon in some manner. It is my opinion that the average taxpayer could stand the extra levy better now than at any time in many years. What we are endeavoring to ascertain just now is whether or not the people want the improvement. If they do, they will certainly expect to pay for it, and the only way this can be brought about is through a levy. If the taxpayers want the roads graded and improved we are more than willing to comply. An effort is being made to feel the public pulse, and as soon as we are satisfied that the citizens of the county are willing to stand the additional taxation there will be no further delay."

POPE MAY LIVE SEVERAL DAYS

Showed Marked Improvement Following a Second Severe Operation.

AT PRAYER WHEN FOUND

Rome, July 10.—(Special)—The pope's physicians say he may live several more days. A second operation was performed and a large quantity of serum was extracted from the pleural cavity. The pontiff bore the operation well. Respiration and heart action showed a marked improvement. After the operation he rested tranquily in the library.

Shortly after sunrise, when Dr. Lapponi approached the illustrious patient's bed, he found him with hands clasped and in the attitude of prayer. In answer to the physician's query if he needed anything his holiness replied: "Today finishes a week since I was taken ill. I am thanking God for having given me strength to still pray to Him."

A third physician, Dr. Rossoni, has been called in to consult with Drs. Lapponi and Mezzoni, the relapse of yesterday necessitating this action.

Following advices from the vatican, the cardinals throughout the world are hurrying Romeward, anticipating the holding of a conclave for the choice of the pope. These preparations are being undertaken in a spirit of profound grief and as the performance of a sacred duty.

NO MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

Held Last Evening, Although a Call Had Been Issued—Business Neglected.

Owing to the absence from the city of three members of council, President Horwell, Barlow and Cannon, the meeting called for last evening was not held. As a result the several very important questions to have been acted upon are still hanging fire, and it is possible that the city fathers will be called to task for their negligence.

It was expedient that some disposition be made of the tax levy, it being a requirement of the code that it be submitted to the county auditor by July 10. The ordinance providing for the creation of offices under the fire and police heads were due to have been passed and the report on Pennsylvania avenue is scheduled for acceptance.

UNIFORM SYSTEM

Of Accounting to Be Inaugurated. Expert Here to Explain Methods.

G. H. McKenzie, an expert accountant connected with the department of the auditor of state, arrived in the city this morning and spent most of the day at city hall.

He is here to inaugurate the uniform system of accounting among the city officials.

He started with Auditor Davidson and will continue his stay in the city until every official has learned the system.

DULL TIMES ON THE FOURTH

Will Result Hereafter If Safety Board Idea Is Carried Out.

DESTRUCTIVE EXPLOSIVES

Were Discussed by Board and Recommendations to the City Council.

MAY BE THE FINAL RESULT

Dull times on future holidays may be the fate of the little boy in the Crockery City. It is possible that there will be no more shooting of fire crackers; no more Roman candles, no more sky rockets and, in fact, a Fourth of July celebration in this city may not be again a day looked forward to by the fun-loving and innocent urchin in anticipation of the glorious, old-time demonstration. To the board of public safety can be given the credit for the agitation of the abolishment of such celebrations.

D. M. Ogilvie, a member of the board, brought up for discussion at the meeting last evening the question. He stated that something should be done, and that immediately to prevent the sale of explosives next year. It was not, however, his idea to prevent all of the pleasure generally derived from the indulgence in fire works. He simply advocates the abolishment of destructive displays. Nevertheless it having been decided by the board to have the following city ordinance rigidly enforced, there can be but one result—no fire works of any kind:

"No person or persons shall burn, set fire to or shoot off any sky rockets, Roman candles, Chinese fire crackers, or any kind of fire works of any description whatsoever or by whatever name known or cast, throw or cause to be exploded any torpedoes or any other explosive material by whatever name or names known; provided, however, that the council may by resolution permit experienced persons to make on special occasions, pyrotechnic displays at such places and under regulations as may be prescribed by council."

The above ordinance governs every explosive used on the national holiday and if enforced will surely put a stop to the customary manner of celebration. It was argued by the board that the ordinance should be enforced to prevent a repetition of the damage incurred in the city on last Saturday. The amount lost as the result of the big crackers aggregated at least $200 and numerous people were badly hurt.

For the protection of both property and lives, the board took the matter under advisement. It took no definite step and will investigate the question for another week before final action. It is thought the members will by that time decide on a recommendation to council to change the ordinance so that its enforcement will work only against the more destructive explosives.

DIFFERENT STORY TOLD BY CONSTINE

MAN BOUND OVER FOR HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Confessed to Chief Wyman While Going to Lisbon—Light on Subject.

Chief Wyman returned last evening from Lisbon, where he took John Constine, the Irish section hand, who was bound over to court by Mayor Weaver on a charge of highway robbery. The chief states that he had no trouble whatever in landing his prisoner in the county jail.

While en route Constine talked freely, and if the story he told of the robbing of H. O. Sampsell be true the latter's statement to the press and at police headquarters was concocted to shield himself irrespective of the jeopardy into which he cast Constine. Constine said that he met Sampsell early in the afternoon and that they had several drinks together at the National House. Sampsell, said he, insulted a woman at the hotel and was compelled to make a hasty exist. Constine then said:

"I followed him and we both went to the upper side of the freight station and there drank a pint of whisky which Sampsell had bought. Sampsell then asked me to walk up the track with him. I consented and upon arriving at the Spring on Thompson's green he said he would like to have another pint of liquor. I told him I would go after it and he reached in his pocket to get me the money. What caused me to do it I do not know, but when he produced his wallet I grabbed the money and started up the track. Both of us were pretty drunk and that is the only reason I can give for my foolish act. Just think, I won't get less than 15 years for the job and I could earn the amount I stole in four days."

PROBATE COURT

Lisbon, July 10.—(Special)—Anna L. Dickey, having resigned as administratrix with the will annexed, of the estate of the late David Evans, of Elkrun township, John Patterson has been appointed administrator de bonis non, with the will annexed, under bond of $1,200. There will be no appraisement.

The will of the late Philip Meister, of Franklin township, has been filed for probate and the application is set for hearing Saturday, July 18.

Circus Is Stranded.

Salem, July 10.—The H. A. Mann's circus, which exhibited here last Friday night, has stranded at Leetonia. It showed there Wednesday night to a small audience and yesterday it was still there. The show was to have exhibited at Columbiana yesterday, but owing to continued bad business on the part of those in front of the aggregation it is now on the rocks.

Population Increased.

Lisbon, July 10.—(Special)—The assessors' returns show that from April 1, 1902, to April 1, 1903, there were born in Columbiana county 612 males and 553 females a total of 1,165. During the same period there were 538 deaths, 285 being males. The births exceeded the deaths 627.

MAKING FAST PROGRESS ON DOUBLE TRACK WORK

Pittsburg, July 10.—Work on the double-tracking of the Cleveland & Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania lines west is progressing so rapidly that the officials expect to have it completed sooner than was planned when the work was begun on January 17. It was then thought that it would require 15 months for its completion. An official of the railroad company said yesterday that the entire division would be double-tracked and both tracks in service by January 1 next. The reconstruction of the Cleveland & Pittsburg has involved some exceedingly difficult engineering problems. The contracting company now engaged in the double-track work has contracts for building a second track between Rochester and Cleveland, a distance of nearly 125 miles.

There is a total of 62 bridges to be double-tracked. This is a much larger number of such structures than is usual on the same mileage as that of the Cleveland & Pittsburg. The longest bridge is across the Little Beaver river. Most of the others are short, but many of them are high above the stream beds and will require a large amount of costly masonry for the sub-structures.

The total cost of the work will aggregate nearly $8,000,000. It is the largest double-tracking contract awarded by the Pennsylvania for years. The increased and increasing traffic over the Cleveland & Pittsburg has been calling for more track facilities for two years. The Pennsylvania had completed plans for the second track in January, 1902, but owing to the evidences of the freight congestion which were then apparent it was decided to delay the beginning of the work until freight conditions had fallen back to normal.

At the present time the traffic on the division is enormous, considering the track facilities available for use. During the past two weeks a condition approaching that of an entire freight blockade prevailed for two days. This was caused partly by the necessity for a large and quick movement of freight to lake ports and partly by impediments due to the improvement work. A total of nearly 60 miles of the second track bed has been graded. Two bridges have been double-tracked, and these two are the longest bridges on the division. Unless some unexpected obstacle arises the entire division will be double-tracked by the end of the present year.

THE RECORD IS SMASHED

Three Members of Board of Public Safety Attend to Business.

LOOKING FOR POSITIONS

The board of public safety, three members strong, President Grafton, Ogilvie and Dawson, met in the council chamber, city hall, last evening and succeeded in breaking the record for the length of time in session. In less than an hour the members had disposed of the business before them. Mr. Taylor, although in the city, was not present.

The first business taken up by the board was the consideration of numerous bills. The majority of them were approved and ordered paid. In regard to the bill of H. E. Moon, councilman, who sold feed to the city to the amount of $103.20, half of which falls to the safety board for payment, no action was taken, it being the opinion of two members that the solicitor's advice should be asked for. Grafton said that he thought it should be paid because Moon had sold the feed cheaper than it could have been purchased from any other dealer in the city. Ogilvie was of the same opinion, but Dawson stated that if it is unlawful to pay the bill it should be held up and his motion to get the solicitor to make a statement carried. It will be remembered that the board of public service turned down its portion of the bill and as yet it has not approved it. The contention is that an official of the city cannot make a contract with the city. Moon and others argue that it was no contract.

Among the big batch of bills approved were those of the police and firemen, who will receive their money in good time. Ex-Chief Thomas V. Thompson's bill of $1.50 for feeding prisoners was turned down, it having no o. k. attached. The bill will likely be paid at the next meeting.

There having been no meeting of council since the preceding meeting of the board, none of the members were able to state in what light the councilmen are looking upon the appointment of a night watchman for city hall. As a result President Grafton appointed Ogilvie and Dawson a committee to confer with the honorable body regarding the question. While discussing the matter President Grafton introduced the idea of drafting rules by which prisoners confined in the city jail must be governed. He stated that the interior of the jail is going to be placed in first-class condition and in order that prisoners be restrained from defacing the walls and cells he thought stringent rules should be made. It was finally decided to have Grafton act with the chief of police in compiling them.

There was but one committee to report. Grafton had been inspecting the East End, and in regard to the placing of a fire plug for the people who petitioned the board at the last meeting, he stated that he thought the people needed at least one plug. For one entire block the residences are absolutely without fire protection. Chief Morley was authorized to locate the plug and have it set.

Three applications for positions were accepted and filed. William E. Moore wants to be a policeman; T. M. Shay would like to become a fire laddie and J. R. Turnbull is ambitious to become one of the finest.

A HEAVY RAIN AFFORDED RELIEF

To Sweltering Citizens and Cleansed the Streets—Mercury Took Tumble.

This morning's rain was perhaps the heaviest of the season and came as a great relief to sweltering citizens. Another appreciable result was the thorough cleansing of the streets and the marked drop o mercury was most welcome.

Tanyard run was on a rampage and had the rain continued for a short time longer considerable damage would have resulted. At the Armour building on West Market street the muddy waters swirled around the foundation on the eastern side, reaching almost to the windows.

The people who live along the stream are particularly thankful for the shower. In the vicinity of the West End pottery the filth, carried down the stream, as a result of it being used as a sanitary sewer, had been sending forth a sickening odor since the advent of the hot weather. Most of the foul smelling refuse was carried away by the rushing water.

Wilson's drug store in East End was flooded and slight damage resulted.

WATCH STOLEN

Huckster Reported to Officers That Miscreant Touched His Vest.

John M. Wilson, the well known huckster of Avondale street, appeared at city hall this morning and reported the loss of a gold watch. He stated that he was at work in a building in the East End yesterday and that the watch was stolen from his vest, which he had discarded, owing to the extreme heat. He did not discover the loss until nearly home last evening.

Whoever stole it wanted only the watch, as he did not disturb the chain.

THE NEWS REVIEW VOTING CONTEST

Grows in Interest and Has Already Passed the 30,000 Mark.

HOW CANDIDATES STAND

The News Review voting contest is becoming more popular every day, and the last end of the fight promises to be intensely interesting. It is conceded on every hand that there never was so generous an offer from any publication in this section of the state, and the candidates and their friends are showing their appreciation by bringing in the votes by the hundreds.

As will be noted by the figures published each day, the number of votes being received is large, and it will not be long until all the readers have passed the 30,000 mark. Since the extremely hot weather set in the candidates have redoubled their efforts, the prospects of spending a few weeks on the lakes or some days on shipboard having spurred the aspirants to harder work.

Team Has Withdrawn.

Martin's Ferry, July 10.—At the meeting of the Vigilant hose company they passed a resolution to withdraw from the Northeastern Ohio Volunteer Firemen's association. The reason for this action was that the members did not believe in paying out the membership fee when they have no running team or anything else to be benefited by remaining longer in the association.

Judge Boone in Harness.

Salem, July 10.—Ex-Probate Judge J. C. Boone is engaged in fixing up his offices over Hanna & Kridler's office with the view of again taking up his office practice. The rooms will be neatly fitted out and he will again turn his attention to business after a long rest.

PEST HOUSE MUCH WANTED

In the Opinion of Members of the Local Board of Health.

BOARD SCHEDULED TO MEET

This Evening—In Addition to Pest House Question Garbage Matter May

COME UP FOR FINAL ACTION

There will be a meeting of the board of health this evening, at which many matters of interest to the public will be discussed and possibly acted upon. The garbage question, one that has baffled the board for years, will be given another whirl. It is the intention of the board to finally dispose of the question if possible.

The members will likely decide upon a recommendation to council regarding the garbage question. They have had it under study for several weeks and are of the opinion that the only solution of the problem is to make a contract with some person to handle and dispose of every bit of garbage produced in the city. Sanitary Policeman Burgess has given the matter much careful thought and he states that the board can do nothing else. Every day he has numerous complaints from residents who want their garbage removed. They are willing to have it hauled at their own expense, but in some cases they can get no one to do the work.

If a contract is made with one person he will be compelled to haul the garbage from the residence at least once a week, and where necessary, twice. The general objection to the present manner of disposing of the filth is based upon the action of the majority of haulers. They will not cart the garbage for a long distance, and when people living in second and third stories ask for a wagon they can not get it.

Another important question to be considered is that providing for the erection of a pest house. It is argued by the members of the board that a house of the kind will pay for itself in less than a year and that it is an absolute necessity. During the present year the board has paid out enough money to build three houses, and it is tired of the proposition. The largest bill to be presented tonight will be one incurred as the result of the contagious disease in the East End, and it is stated that had the city a pest house the bill would only be half as large.

On the outskirts of the city are several locations that would be favorable for pest house sites, and they may also be considered.

By Train on Pennsylvania—Was Well Known in East Liverpool.

Cambridge Springs, July 10.—(Special.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Hessen was struck by train No. 5, on the Pennsylvania railroad, and almost instantly killed. Mrs. Hessen's home was at Letart, W. Va., and she was known to many in East Liverpool.

The remains were taken to Freedom to await the arrival of relatives from her home, who were at once notified of the accident.

Mrs. Spaulding Buried.

Salem, July 10.—Private funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Anna Spaulding, who was killed by a Garfield avenue street car Tuesday evening, were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home in Garfield avenue. Rev. H. W. Dewey, of the M. E. church, officiated. Burial followed in Hope cemetery.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

HAS LEFT GOODWIN'S.

A well-known trade journal has the following announcement concerning a local pottery salesman:

"J. Lee Richards, the well known traveling salesman of the Goodwin Pottery company, East Liverpool, O., has left this firm and will take charge of the china and house furnishing departments of the Bass Dry Goods company, the large wholesale dealers in Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Richards will do the buying and managing of these lines.

"The china and house furnishing departments are located on the fifth floor, but under the able supervision of the new manager they will be removed to the basement, which is being remodeled and improved in many ways. They expect this change to be completed by July 7. Their stock of dinner ware, toilet ware, bric-a-brac, etc., will be greatly enlarged, as the company intends to make this line a specialty.

"Mr. Richards is known to a large number of the trade, who wish him much success in his new position. He was with the Bennett Pottery company, of Baltimore, Md., at one time."

POTTERY AS PREMIUMS.

A number of eastern newspaper publishers are offering dinner sets, usually consisting of 46 or 48 pieces, for every new subscription that is accompanied by the payment of $1 and the additional 12 cents every week for a year. These installments represent an expenditure of $7 or $8 on the part of the subscriber, but the latter, besides being furnished for a year with a newspaper that would ordinarily cost between $3 and $4 also obtains a serviceable dinner set.

This new departure has struck the popular fancy as is evidenced by the tremendous quantity of goods being circulated through these channels. The scheme originated in Philadelphia, and the craze has spread with astonishing rapidity.

This wholesale presentation of dinner sets threatens to have an even more disastrous effect on the legitimate sale of crockery than the scheme trade of the other concerns that preceded the newspaper in the field, and is causing considerable worry in the ranks of legitimate dealers.

A LATE FAD.

London is at present passing through a craze for finger bowls. These adjuncts are more ornate in design and more dainty in appearance than ever before. And in consequence they are more fashionable than ever before. It is quite the thing now to introduce two sets of finger bowls in the course of one ceremonious dinner, one after the salad and one following the dessert. A charming idea is to float on the water contained in the finger bowls a tiny flower or two, a spring of heliotrope or a violet. Each bowl stands on a delicate little saucer of the same ware as itself.

Persian decorations, so long evident in dress trimmings, upholsteries and wall paper, are now obtaining in tableware, some beautiful dessert, entree and game plates being thus decorated. Medallions, delicate in tracery as though made of lace, adorn the newest soup plates, in color combinations of green and gold.

OUTSIDE PLANTS.

The Steubenville pottery is preparing to re-open within the next 10 days, when repairs will be completed. The fact that none of the plants will be affected by labor troubles has met with a wave of relief. The La Belle and Wheeling potteries will resume Monday, after an idleness of about two weeks for repairs. The claymakers will go to work Friday in order to have enough clay made by Monday so that the plants may be put in full blast at once. It is very likely that the Wavwick plant will resume Monday also.

POTTERY BUILDING COMPLETED.

Salem, July 10.—Charles Lacy, of this city, who had the contract for the brick work on the new pottery which is being built at Carrollton by the Carrollton Pottery company, has completed his work and returned to this city. The building of this pottery is 406x128, and in places two stories in height. Mr. Lacy and his force of men were at work on the building for three months.

FILLING-IN WILL BE SLOW.

It is probable that the decorators, particularly the fillers-in, will have but little work to do until the end of the summer. At least there will not be orders enough to keep all in the trade steadily employed. The encroachments of decalcomania work is being keenly felt by the fillers-in.

WEST END WORKING.

The West End pottery has started again, being one of the first plants in the city to get under way since the loaf. There is promise of a very busy season at the West End and the improvements recently made will help materially to get the orders out on time.

SALEM PLANT TO START.

Salem, July 10.—The Salem China company will not be started until July 20. The shut down will be longer than originally intended for the reason that the company has been unable to obtain enough bricklayers to make the necessary repairs. The kilns are being repaired with arches and cut work.

AMONG THE DEALERS.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by J. J. Forsyth, Atlanta, Ga.

The firm of Rottman & Zucker, Milwaukee, Wis., is reported in financial difficulties.

Frank Kern, proprietor of the Mattoon Department store, Mattoon, Ill., has sold out.

George K. Reed & Co., Fall River, Mass., are trying to compromise with their creditors at 20 cents on the dollar.

J. W. Slater, Traverse City, Mich., has bought out C. O. Smith, of Thompsonville, Mich., and will conduct the store there as a branch of Traverse City.

A petition in bankruptcy against D. Laffler, Norfolk, Va., has been dismissed, Laffler having settled with the petitioners on a basis of 25 cents on the dollar.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by the P. H. Snook & Austin Furniture company, Atlanta, Ga. The liabilities are scheduled at between $25,000 and $30,000 and the assets at about $5,000.

H. B. Sahler, doing business under the name of the Enterprise Furniture & Carpet company at Joliet, Ill., has been succeeded by a corporation under the same name with an authorized capital stock of $25,000.

The W. T. Ladd Trading company, Fort Worth, Tex., and the Cleburne Furniture company, of Cleburne, Tex., have consolidated at Fort Worth under the name of the Ladd Furniture & Carpet company, with a paid up capital stock of $15,000.

INJUNCTION

Secured Against the C. & P. in the Jefferson County Courts.

Steubenville, July 10.—If injunctions continue to be filed against the C. & P., extra records will be necessary in the court house. Yesterday the county commissioners obtained an injunction against the C. & P., Glenn Run Coal company, T. J. Stringer and David Carpenter, to prevent the company from building a track on a county road that runs from the Ohio river to Hopewell Hill in Warren township and then from Hopewell Hill to a point near New Alexandria.

Now the company is laying stakes to put down a branch track from the Ohio river, near the mouth of Rush Run, to the New Alexandria and Smithfield turnpike, near the Franklin school house, and it threatens to grade, fill and construct tracks without any lawful authority. If the work is further prosecuted it will do irreparable damage to the county road.

The matter was presented to Judge Kerr by Prosecutor Alban and an injunction was granted preventing the contractor from grading or digging or in any way changing the course of the water way.

The road being built is for the purpose of tapping the new coal fields near New Alexandria and Smithfield.

A Pleasant Heights Boy Submitted To An Operation for Tuberculosis.

The local physicians yesterday performed a very delicate operation upon Harry, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Wood, of Pleasant Heights. The lad has been afflicted with tuberculosis for a long time. The disease fastened upon his left arm, and an operation was necessary. It was thought at first that they would have to amputate the arm, but as an experiment, the operation was gone through with.

The lad stood the ordeal fairly well, but is very ill today from the shock. In case the operation fails to prove successful, the arm will be amputated later.

The Store That Saves You Money.

Young Couples

can get their first lesson in economy by buying their outfits here.

We know exactly what we're talking about. We know our prices can not be matched in this city.

This may sound like boasting, but that does'nt alter the facts in the case. We are ready to bear out everything we say if you will come and look at the goods.

We court the fullest comparisons of prices and qualities.

On Tuesday, July 14th,

We're going to place on sale between 3 and 4 hundred salesmen's samples of Brussels, Velvets and Axminister Carpets, they are all a yard and a half long and at the price we're going to sell them they will surely interest you. If you want a good rug for little money now's your chance.

Come—have a look—ask your friends about us, they buy here.

Reasoning Power In Aufmals.

Animal intelligence, though not necessarily higher in degree when they are acting as our servants and not for their own ends, is then very much more easily approached and understood by us. The "point" is a curious example of an action in which instinct and reason meet. The stopping of the dog, however it began, has by training and heredity become instinctive. The dog, even when quite a puppy, stops when it smells the game and remains almost paralyzed, its impulse to rush in and seize it being checked by a strong instinct to stand still. Yet the dog, after he had accompanied his master and had game shot over him, is quite aware that he is a half controlled "medium," and while still under the dominating "pointing" instinct will look round imploringly to his master to urge him to hurry up if the scent tells him that the birds are moving. A border line action of a different kind is the squatting of young birds. It is a perfectly reasonable precaution. Keeping still and lying low are not characteristics peculiar only to Br'er Rabbit, but it is most remarkable to see the way in which tiny peewits or little teal, hardly bigger than a fluffy bee, lie down, put their little chins flat on the ground and remain motionless for minutes to avoid being seen.

EAST END

Leaseholds Near Marietta Increasing in Value—Big Prices Offered for Them.

Several East End people who hold leases on oil property in the Marietta oil district seem to have very profitable investments, as paying wells are being drilled in on all sides of their leaseholds. The Marietta territory is being developed very rapidly and there seems to be oil throughout that entire section, as the drillers have been almost uniformly successful.

Tom McCormick, a well known East Ender, recently returned from Marietta, where he was looking after his own leases and those held by several others. One Marietta operator made an offer of $1,000 cash for the lease owned by Dr. R. J. Marshall. The offer will not be considered, as it is thought that the lease is worth much more than the price offered.

FATAL RESULT OF WARD'S INJURIES

Sebring Lad, Injured on the Fourth, Died Yesterday from Blood Poisoning.

Earle, the 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ward, of Sebring, whose serious illness was noted in yesterday's News Review, died yesterday morning from blood poisoning. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the Presbyterian church at Sebring, and the interment will be made in Quaker Hill cemetery.

Mrs. John J. Bell, an aunt of the dead boy, left for Sebring this morning, and her husband and sister, Miss Dilcey Ward, will leave this evening to attend the services.

The lad was quite a favorite among his playmates and his frank and manly deportment won him the esteem of all. He was a member of the Sunday school of the Sebring Presbyterian church.

DISTURBED BY SHOTS

St. George Street People Thought Battle With Burglars Was in Progress.

Residents of upper St. George street were greatly alarmed at a late hour last night by a number of pistol shots that disturbed the usual quietude of the locality. From just what point the shots were fired could not be determined. Several residents thought that burglars had been detected in the act of entering some house and that a battle was in progress. The numerous depredations lately of this nature was the principal foundation for the burglar theory.

The matter has not been reported to the police, although news of it came to them unofficially. From the failure to make complaint it is thought the shots were fired by roisterers.

NO TRACK LAID

Owing to Lack of Material—Rails Are Now Being Unloaded.

Track laying on the new electric line along little Beaver creek, projected by L. W. Healy and associates, has not been commenced, although the rails are being transported to the scene. So far the necessary ties for this purpose have not been received, which accounts for the delay.

The rails are being unloaded from the cars at the foot of Broadway and deposited at the eastern terminal of the line.

Married at Huntington.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah McCormick, of Chafinville, arrived in the East End last evening from Huntington, W. Va., and are the guests of relatives until they can go to housekeeping. When Mr. McCormick left the East End before the Fourth he was a bachelor and the announcement that he had married a Huntington young lady comes as a surprise to his many friends, who are now hastening to extend congratulations.

Two Games Yesterday.

The East End Grays won a one-sided ball game yesterday afternoon from a picked nine by a score of 13 to 4. Levi Bolton pitched a good game for the Grays, while Stilwell for the other side was hit hard. Another game between a St. George street team and one from Chafinville played, the latter losing by a score of 9 to 3.

Mrs. Annie Green, an esteemed resident of Bridgeport, tried to commit suicide by taking laudanum, but a physician succeeded in saving her life. Her husband left Bridgeport two months ago and nothing has been heard from him since, and the anxiety and suspense caused her to become despondent and weary of life.

SMALLPOX

Is Spreading in Brooke County And Residents Are Alarmed at the Prospects.

Brooke county has another case of smallpox. The victim is Joseph Hukill, a son of James Hukill, of Buffalo creek. The young man had been working as mine boss at Carnegie, Pa., and came home last week to visit his parents. While at work in the harvest field Saturday the young man was taken seriously ill and Dr. Weirick, the family physician, found him to have symptoms of smallpox. Yesterday the case developed and the home was placed under quarantine this morning.

Ex-Postmaster John E. Reese, of Lazearville, is dangerously ill from paralysis. He became totally paralyzed yesterday morning and has been unable to speak or move since. Little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Job A. Lewis, of Maplewood, on Buffalo creek, has been ill for several days and showed at first symptoms of smallpox, much to the alarm of his friends and the force of state line workmen who are boarding at his home. Later the case has developed into measles and has been pronounced as such by the attending physician.

BODY FOUND

Remains of Ed Delehanty Recovered from Niagara And Are Identified.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 10.—The body found in the river below the falls yesterday was identified at Drummondsville yesterday afternoon as that of Ed Delehanty, the famous outfielder of the Washington American league team.

The body was mangled. One leg was torn off, presumably by the propeller of the Maid of the Mist, near whose landing the body was found. M. A. Green, a stockholder in the Washington team, identified the body by the teeth, two crippled fingers, and the clothing. The body was shipped to Washington last night.

Every effort will be made to investigate the death, as some of Delehanty's relatives place no stock in the suicide theory.

Years of suffering relieved in a night. Itching piles yield at once to the curative properties of Doan's Ointment. Never fails. At any drug store, 50 cents.

The Columbus Press, at present a Democratic organ, turned by hand, and which is in danger of being gobbled up by the Scripps-McRae league, after a great deal of hemming and hawing, concludes that Congressman Gill did not resign on account of ill health notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Gill says so. The chances are that Mr. Gill knows more about this matter than does the Press, and it must be admitted that all Democratic organs have more imagination than gray matter. The Press has been "off the trail" several times. Some time ago, after having "flew de coop" the paper was put back on the Democratic switch but not without great expenditure of both cash and effort. Since it has "entered the fold" the Press has carried a motto something like this nailed to its masthead: "Without a mission and with a muzzle." We may not have the words arranged exactly as the Press might wish, but are willing to guarantee they are all in the sentence and apparently more appropriate than when placed Press-fashion.

Those who did not read last evening's News Review had no means of knowing that the board of review completed its work. Incidentally speaking, there were numerous other stories of the day's doings in yesterday's News Review to be found in no other publication. All told, this paper contained at least half a dozen exclusive news stories last evening and any amount of items appearing in no other paper. The superiority of the News Review over all other local newspapers was never more strongly emphasized than last evening.

While it is always well for owners having real estate for sale to get as much as possible for it, in some cases exorbitant prices asked for property have possibly kept mighty good industries from locating here. If possible to do so it might be wise for the board of trade to secure control over land suitable for factory sites which could be used when necessary.

"One Yale students lived a year on $100," says the Ohio State Journal, "while another spent $11,000 in the same time. It is a pretty safe bet that the former has a fuller mind and the latter a bigger head."

HOME AFFAIRS

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature and of Matters About Town.

Son Is Ill—A little son of Architect A. W. Scott is seriously ill as the result of complications following measles.

Boy Improving—Willie Patterson, who had a part of his foot amputated as the result of a railroad accident, is improving.

Daughter Born—A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Rev. Curtman, of Nessley chapel, Hancock county, W. Va.

Fleet Has Passed—About the last of the Pittsburg coal fleet has passed the city and with the possible exception of several stragglers all the boats are now well on their way to southern waters.

Day in the Woods—A large picnic party was held at the home of David O'Hanlon, north of the city, yesterday. The crowd was made up of people from this city, and an enjoyable time was spent.

Board Will Meet—An important meeting of the board of public service is to be held this evening. Solicitor George E. Davidson has returned to the city and will be present. He will offer advice on many questions that the board has been afraid to tackle and will likely be instrumental in having the rules and regulations that have been drafted to govern the board adopted.

Dangerous Business—A quantity of nitro glycerine, sufficient to have shaken the entire city had it exploded, was taken past the city shortly after noon today. The fluid was in tin cans, sunk a short distance below the surface of the water. A Negro in a skiff was in charge of the dangerous shipment.

Will Attend Inquest—Dr. W. W. Hamilton left today for Pittsburg to give his testimony at the inquest over the body of Denver A. Easter, the man who was fatally injured by a train at the local passenger station. It will be remembered that Dr. Hamilton attended the injured man and was with him when he died. Detective Jewell, of the C. & P. police department, was here yesterday to notify Dr. Hamilton of the inquest.

Along the River—The river has been falling rapidly since yesterday, but plenty of water remains for a good packet stage. Business with the packets and at the local wharfboat continues good. The Lorena from Zanesville and the Greenwood from Charleston, were the up packets last night. The Greenwood had a big freight trip. She is due down tonight at 8 on the return trip. The Ben Hur for Parkersburg passed down last night.

Killed a Big Snake—Clarence Hulse, one of the members of the Wyoming Camping club, now located near Fredericktown for the summer outing, returned to town last night with the prize snake story of the season. The snake was captured and killed near the camp last night. Just how big Hulse said his snakeship was is not definitely known, but by the time the story reached the reporter he was a nine-footer.

Won First Prize—Irene Charlotte Long, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Long, of Ridgeway avenue, was awarded the prize at Dr. Cooper's baby show last evening. There were a large number of competitors, and the handsome little lady, though not old enough to appreciate the honor, will have plenty of time to look back to it in years to come.

Wrench Was Arrested — John Wrench was arrested yesterday by Constable Powell on a warrant sworn to in Justice Rose's court by W. S. Baney, a picture agent. Wrench was in Baney's employ and, it is alleged, sold a mirror and pocketed the proceeds. The defendant claims the article was sold to a relative on the installment plan. The justice held Wrench for trial, fixing the bond at $50, which he could not furnish. The case is being tried this afternoon.

WARNING

Given Business Men By Mayor Concerning the Loaning of Money on Valuables.

Mayor Weaver has given warning to the business men and all others in the city that the practice of loaning money on chattels, or valuables of any kind is against the law and that on information he will be compelled to prosecute. The state laws make this provision where there is a licensed pawn shop and prohibits any but the pawn brokers to carry on such business. The pawn brokers are compelled to keep a record and thus where articles have been stolen and pawned they may be found and recovered.

"Many business men innocently loan money on valuables as an accommodation," said the mayor. "Where there is not a pawn shop this is legal. Otherwise, as in this city, it is not. A severe penalty is attached for a violation. I believe the purpose of the law is to prevent thieves and those misappropriating valuables from disposing of them in a manner to leave no chance of tracing them back to the thief."

MILLER RELEASED; GRIM FINED $5

DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR TREATED AS A JOKE BY FRIENDS.

The 'Squire Is Criticised in Some Quarters for Leniency Shown.

Fred Grim and Andy Miller, the two young thugs who nearly killed the Italian Betchi in Chester the other day, were arraigned before Justice A. G. Pugh yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. In spite of the doubtful reputation of both boys, they had a large number of friends, who were at the hearing all determined to clear them if they could.

Nick Cennalley acted as interpreter and Betchi told his story. A number of other witnesses were examined and the testimony throughout was conflicting and unsatisfactory. Miller, through some of his friends, was able to prove an alibi, and the 'squire discharged him. Grim was not so fortunate, and though he endeavored to make the whole affair into a joke, he was fined $5 and costs, which he arranged to pay.

Grim claimed he had an errand to the Italian shanty, and that the foreigner had assaulted him before he struck a single blow. The attempt to laugh the matter off was a miserable failure, and there are a great many of the good people of Chester who believe the justice was too lenient. They assert that such lax methods will undoubtedly result in more lawlessness.

A LETTER FROM HOBBS

Former Resident of Hancock County Tells of the Wonderful Prospects for Florida.

W. A. H. Hobbs, who is well known in Chester, has written from his home in Florida, and says:

"I rejoice in the prosperity of Hancock county and especially the success of my former pupils. I am well pleased with my location in the most tropical part of the United States. We have good roads, and spring and summer weather the year round. Our groves are just coming into bearing. The eyes of winter vegetable growers are on the state of Dade as this county is called. I refrain from telling of the wonderful things of this land. The possibilities of this county are almost beyond comprehension. The insect pests are growing less with the development of the country. Storms and disasters have been very few. Indeed we have very much to be thankful for."

ANNUAL SETTLEMENT

Affairs of the Grant District Board of Education Are in Good Shape.

Sheriff C. A. Allison, of New Cumberland, as custodian of the county school fund, was in Chester today making the annual settlement with the Grant district board of education.

'Squire A. G. Pugh is secretary of the board, and he and Mr. Allison were busy the greater portion of the day with their tasks. There are 15 teachers employed in the district and the schools are in a very prosperous condition. It is likely the majority of those employed during the year will be re-engaged.

The funds are in excellent condition, and there will be a comfortable surplus in the hands of the county treasurer when the settlement is made.

The levy during the past year has been thirty-three and one-third per cent for the teachers' fund and twenty-five per cent for the general building fund. The board has prospered so well that the apportionment will hardly be changed. The sheriff and Mr. Pugh completed their task late this afternoon.

DIED OF HYDROPHOBIA

A Valuable Horse Became Ill With the Dread Disease, Dying in Agony.

A valuable horse belonging to George Hutton, a farmer residing near Asbury chapel, died last night from a very mysterious affliction. The horse was taken violently ill yesterday and though unable to move about, kept up a continual snapping and biting at every object within reach. It frothed at the mouth and there were other evidences that the animal was afflicted with hydrophobia. A veterinary was summoned as quickly as possible, but could do nothing to revive the horse, and it died a few hours later in great agony. The veterinary stated that the horse had certainly been afflicted with rabies, and that the disease had taken such a firm hold that it was impossible to do anything for its relief.

FIRST MONEY ORDER

Chester Postoffice Is Now a Full-Fledged Branch With All Accommodations.

Postmaster W. C. Johnston this morning issued the first order under the dispensation granted from the postoffice department at Washington, D. C., making the Chester office a money order branch. The order was for $47.50 and was payable at Chicago. The new order of things will be a very great convenience to the residents of the Southside, and the people of that growing city appreciate the untiring efforts of Postmaster Johnston in bringing the office to its present high standard.

TAKING OVER OPTIONS

A Big Deal in Coal Land Being Closed By New York Parties Today.

A representative of a title and trust company of New York arrived in New Cumberland today to take over the options secured by A. S. Cooper, on the coal lands on King's creek. As evidence of good faith they deposited $5,000 before the options are to be turned over. Messrs. Cooper and McElfresh hope to get the matter shaped up very soon, so the money can be paid as soon as the abstracts are turned over. The deal will bring a big lot of money into the county when once completed.

RAILROAD PICNIC

Of Panhandle Railway Employes to Be Held at Rock Springs This Year.

The outing of the Pittsburg division of the Panhandle lines this year will be held at Rock Springs park on Friday, July 31. Master Mechanic Smith, of the Dennison shops, has arranged for thirty coaches to carry the employes and their families on an excursion which promises to be the largest in the history of the road. The management of the park is making preparations for the crowd, and a pleasant time will undoubtedly result.

Going to California.

Prof. William Bambrick, principal of the Soldiers' Orphans' Industrial school at Scotland, Pa., is visiting relatives and friends in Chester and Hancock county. Mr. Bambrick will leave for California in a few days, where he will spend the remainder of his vacation.

Scott-McKim.

A quiet but happy wedding took place last week at the home of the bride, in Gas Valley. The contracting parties were Miss Lizzie, daughter of John R. Scott, of Hancock county, and Mr. T. C. McKim, a son of John McKim, the well known dairyman, of Brooke county. They immediately left for a wedding trip to Philadelphia Atlantic City, New York and Washing-

REALM OF SPORTS

Suicide Player Had Won First Honors in Two Leagues With His Bat.

Ed. Delehanty was one of the greatest ball tossers ever turned out from Ohio, being a native of Cleveland. He began his career as an exponent of the national game at Wheeling, W. Va. It was in Philadelphia that he made his first appearance in fast company, playing second base. His remarkable quickness in getting out into field for balls out of regular fielders' reach resulted in his being made an outfielder. He was one of the mainstays of the Quakers until 1901, when he jumped his contract along with Al Orth, Harry Wolverton and Jack Townsend, and cast his fortune with the Washington team of the American league.

Delehanty's work with Washington last season was such as to cause John T. Brush, of New York city, to cast out his grappling irons. Delehanty finally signed a contract at big figures to play with the Giants. Four thousand dollars advance money was paid to Delehanty, and a winter was put in playing the ponies. Luck was against the big fellow, and when the peace committee awarded him back to Washington and to return the $4,000 advanced to New York his base ball heart must have been broken.

Nothing like the Delehanty of his past 11 years has been in evidence in his 1903 work with Washington. He was anxious to get away, but the Washington club held onto him in the hope that he would round into his old time shape. They were doomed to disappointment, however, as the big fellow has been out of the game for some time, still drawing an enormous salary. Fit and well, Delehanty had but a few peers in the matter of batting. Just once during the past 11 years has he finished lower than ninth place. In 1899 he landed the batting championship of the National league with the figures .408. Last year the American league honors in the same direction were won with .376.

It was but a short time ago that Washington tried to unload the big fellow on the Cincinnati club, but nothing came of the attempt.

JOB APPARENT

In a Race At Salem—Effort Made to Beat Cervantes.

Salem, July 10.—The races at the Salem Driving park yesterday brought out a crowd of local and visiting people and was productive of only one special feature, that being an apparent job in the last race of the day—the 2:25 trot. In the fifth heat Cervantes had two firsts to his credit and apparently to most spectators won at the wire, though closely nosed by Fred, to whom the judges gave the heat.

The summary:

SALARY ARM

Gives Maley Considerable Trouble. He Has Frequently Beaten Homestead.

From the results of the two games played this season with Homestead it seems that Larry Maley is the only local pitcher who can trim them. Last year with Maley in the box the locals won three games from the Homesteaders, with the relative strength of the teams about the same as this season.

Maley, however, will not pitch again this season. His salary arm has been giving him considerable trouble and he thinks a rest for the remainder of the season will benefit him. He has been keeping in good condition by playing other positions with local teams and is developing into quite a hitter.

MALEY WILL PLAY

With Locals Today Against Homestead if Rain Does Not Stop the Game.

Maley will make his first appearance with the locals today, providing rain does not stop the game, having been assigned to right garden by Manager Reark. Brown has replaced Nolan in left, much to the satisfaction of the fans, and Webb has been moved in from right to the second sack. The two teams will line up as follows:

Y. M. C. A. — Emmerling, catcher; Lawrence, pitcher; Gibson, short; Wallace, first; Webb, second; Mason, third, Brown, left; Maley, right.

Homestead — Coursey, catcher; Burns, pitcher; Ferguson, short; Milton, first; Cosgrove, second; Edmonston, third; McChesney, left; Violet, right.

TIGERS VICTORIOUS

In a Hotly Contested Game Played Yesterday Afternoon.

The Hilltop Tigers and the Westinghouse Juniors, two amateur baseball teams, played a hot game on the grounds of the former club yesterday afternoon. The battle was hard fought from start to finish and the score stood 12-11 in favor of the Tigers when it hand ended.

Another game will be played this afternoon and the third tomorrow. The batteries in yesterday's game were: Tigers, Brown and Stroud; Westinghouse, Mackey and DeTemple.

Morrow's Team Challenged.

The Superbas is one of the latest ball teams in the field. Terry Carman is the manager and promotor, but so far has not divulged his lineup. He has asked the sporting editor of the News Review to publish a challenge for the Superbas for a game with Billy Morrow's team. So confident are the Superbas that they want to play for $100 a side.

Went East With Horses.

T. K. Moffatt, driver of Redmond, Joan and La France, horses owned by Harrison Rinehart, left this morning for the east, where he will enter the fine bred animals in numerous races before the end of the season. Mr. Moffatt has the horses in elegant condition and will no doubt be successful on the trip.

Will Play at Empire.

The Athletics go to Empire tomorrow for a game with the team representing that town. The local team will line up as follows: L. Emmerling, catcher; McShane, pitcher; McAvoy, short; Maley, first; Stillwell, second; Davis, third; Trainer, left; Carey, middle; Bennett, right.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Wallace and Gibson failed to land a hit in yesterday's game, a rather unusual occurrence.

Cleveland has lost three straight games. The suspension of Lajoie is partly responsible.

"Wild Bill" Donovan has won the rubber from Waddell, and wants to try the trick again.

Selee has started several collegians in professional base ball, and most of them make good for him.

The efforts of the crowds fail to rattle Weimer, the cowboy pitcher Selee has signed. He recently told McGann to "Pin back your ears, people want to see the game," when Mack was trying to rattle him with the help of the crowd.

Charlie Rabb, the ex-American association player, has something on George Davis at shortstop.

The Athletics and the Second Y. M. C. A. teams will play a league game this afternoon at Rock Springs park.

According to figures offered by different compilers, at least two men lead the American league in batting at the same time.

In Cresceus and Oldfield, Ohio has two record holders, and Columbus feels good because both made records in that city.

Wallace's great catch of a foul from Tate's bat was really the feature of the game. It was a sensational play and roundly applauded.

Mason made a bad break yesterday by trying to take Emmerling's throw with one hand. He failed to hold the ball and the error cost a run.

Nolan has probably made his last appearance with the local team. With Brown in left field yesterday the result might have been different.

The Red's double defeat of Boston and Pittsburg's victory over Brooklyn gives the first named team the best margin in fourth place they have had this season.

Umpire Reark called two hits of the visitors that dropped in front of the plate fouls. Both of them looked fair and each time Emmerling could have thrown the runner out.

PREPARING FOR FIRE LADDIES

Toronto is Shaping Up to Entertain Firemen's Annual Tournament.

Toronto, July 10.—Toronto is putting on its holiday garb and making preparations to greet and entertain the people who will come next week to participate in and see the firemen's tournament and carnival.

Each year the volunteer firemen of Northeastern Ohio have a tournament, where they battle for supremacy. The active running teams of the Firemen's association embrace the following towns: Wellsville, Salem, Leetonia, Columbiana, Bridgeport, Martin's Ferry, Bellaire, Toronto, Coshocton, New Philadelphia and Canal Dover.

The tournament will take place here July 15 16 and 17, but the local firemen have arranged for an entire week of fun, commencing July 13. Business will be practically suspended during the tournament and all factories will close. The program is as follows:

July 15—Convention at 10 a. m. Parade of firemen and industrial features at 1 p. m.

July 16—Hose race 2 p. m., first prize, $125; second prize, $50; third prize, $25. Foot race, 100 yards. Hook and ladder race, first prize $50.

July 17—Hose race, free for all, purse $200. Hub to hub race, purse $50.

JURY ORDERED

To Consider Appropriation Cases Brought By Electric Railway Company.

Lisbon, July 10.—(Special.)—A preliminary hearing in the appropriation proceedings of the Stark Electric Railroad company versus Ira F. Brainard, Nellie M. Hogan and Martin and Charles Lottman was held before Judge Martin in probate court yesterday afternoon.

The land in question is situated west of Salem, and it was shown that it is needed by the plaintiff company for a right of way for the extension of its railway line from Sebring to Salem.

Judge Martin ordered that a jury of 16 persons be drawn to report in the probate court next Tuesday morning to place a valuation on the land sought to be appropriated.

Catarrh of the Stomach.

When the stomach is overloaded; when food is taken into it that fails to digest, it decays and inflames the mucous membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secret mucin, instead of the natural juices of digestion. This is called catarrh of the stomach. "For years I suffered with catarrh of the stomach, caused by indigestion. Doctors and medicines failed to benefit me until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure."—J. R. Rhea Coppell, Texas. Sold by Alvin H. Bulger.

BUSINESS AGENT WAS TURNED DOWN

He Endeavored to Square a Non-Union Job.

And Was Ordered from the Building. Owner Will Be Reported to His Organization.

Business Agent House, of the painters' union, the members of which have been on strike for many weeks, had an experience yesterday that was a good sample of the trials and tribulations of the average walking delegate, and one which is enough to make the good unionist resolve to turn non-union on the spot.

Among his other duties it is expected of the business agent that he keep tab on all contracts secured by the non-union contractors, and wherever possible secure the work for his fellows who were on strike. Yesterday he heard of a job of this character and lost no time in going after the contractor through the owner of the building. He was surprised and disgusted to learn that the man having the work done was one of the best known, and to the present, a very prominent trades unionist of the city.

The situation was explained to him and an attempt made to induce the owner to treat the painters fairly, but he refused. The walking delegate was dumbfounded, and left the job thoroughly disgusted. Not, however, before he was ordered away and had been subjected to all manner of abuse. Te so called unionist will be reported to his organization.

EAST PALESTINE

East Palestine, July 10.—Misses Ida, Aggie and Master Eddie Garner, of College street, East Liverpool, are spending their vacation at the residence of their aunt, Mrs. R. M. Ashbaugh, on West Martin street.

Mrs. Rebecca Grosshans and Mrs. Martin Thomas and daughter Grace, of East Liverpool, have visited friends here the past week.

Miss Tillie Worth, of East Liverpool, is the guest of her brother, William Worth, on West Clark street.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ashbaugh and little daughter Pauline are visiting relatives in East Liverpool.

Rev. J. C. Taggart, wife and daughter, of East Liverpool, are spending a vacation with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davidson and daughter, Mrs. George Stevenson, and child, of East Liverpool, are spending the summer at Mill Side cottage, above Sprucevale, and drinking in health and sweet contentment near the old home farm on the creek which Mr. Davidson owns yet and which is rented. Harvey belongs to Company C, One Hundred and Fourth regiment, and he don't feel very staunch these days, but hopes much from this outing this summer.

BOGUS MONEY RACKET WORKED

Poor Counterfeits of Large Note This Time.

Banks Have Been Warned from Washington—None Found Here Yet.

Counterfeit money is again in wide circulation. Bankers in all parts of the United States have been warned by the treasury department at Washington to be on the watch for suprious coin, most of which it seems is of larger denomination than is generally placed on the market.

According to the department at the capitol city the country is being filled with counterfeit $20 national bank notes. The notes are not, however, very good imitations of the genuine and only people unaccustomed to handling money are being victimized.

The national banks of this city have received the following warning which has placed them on guard, and they do not anticipate being roped in: "New counterfeit $20 national bank note on National State bank of Metropolis, Ill. Check letter A; series of 1882; charter number, 5,254; bank number, 1,193; treasury number, 896,558; J. W. Lyons, register; Ellis H. Roberts, treasurer."

This counterfeit is a rudely executed photographic production on thin brittle paper, and no attempt has been made to imitate the silk fibre of the genuine paper. The photograph of the original numbers of the note can be plainly discerned beneath the coloring applied. The back of the note is faded; green ink has been smeared on the panel surrounding the charter number on the back of the note.

This counterfeit should not deceive the ordinarily careful handler of money.

Though local banks have not run across any of these particular counterfeits they will institute a sharp lookout for them and the warning given to the banks should be remembered by citizens in general.

Bogus dimes and nickels are still afloat, but they are not so abundant as a few months back. It is thought that they are almost entirely wiped out of this vicinity, much to the satisfaction of both the banks and street car companies.

The Foundation of Health.

Nourishment is the foundation of health—life—strength. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the one great medicine that enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest, assimilate and transform all foods into the kind of blood that nourishes the nerves and feeds the tissues. Kodol lays the foundation for health. Nature does the rest. Indigestion, dyspepsia, and all disorders of the stomach and digestive organs are cured by the use of Kodol. Sold by Alvin H. Bulger.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

Johnny and the Spider

"What are you going to do?" asked the spider as Johnny crept up toward his web.

"I'm going to kill you," answered Johnny.

"Oh, it's just as well, I guess," said the spider. "I'm tired of doing everything for you and having you do nothing for me, so I might as well be done with it."

"What do you do for me?" asked Johnny in surprise.

room and perched on the foot of your bed. He had horrid green eyes and long claws all covered with sharp spikes, and his jaws were filled with teeth as sharp as needles. He said he was going to bite a piece off the end of your nose. I killed him and ate him.

"Night before last when you were asleep a long earwig crawled down the wall and jumped on your pillow. He had 10,000 legs that wriggled all the time, and he had a stinger in his tail and eyes that rolled round and round. He said he was going to crawl into your hair and go to sleep. I killed him and ate him, but he said that he had two cousins from the country who would be here to see you tomorrow night.

"Saturday morning when you were asleep a green eyed"—

"Hold on!" cried Johnny. "Hold on! You mustn't go. You mustn't leave me."

"Oh, yes, you'd better kill me, as you said you would, because then I will not have to sit up all night and fight those things"

"No, no!" exclaimed Johnny. "You dear old spider! I wouldn't harm you for all the world. You must stay here with me always, and I shall always be your friend as you have been mine."

So they shook hands and were happy all the rest of their days.—Chicago Tribune.

WELLSVILLE

VAST CHANGE

In the "White Swan," Who Was Once Rich and Admired—Arrested Again.

Alma Waters, better known by the name of "White Swan," is again in the toils of the law, having been arrested for fighting. She was fined $25 by Mayor Fogo, and the chances are exceedingly bright for her to go to the work house at Canton.

Charles Mills was also arrested at the same time by Chief Houser and the probabilities are that he will go to Canton, too.

The Waters woman has been a local character for many years and until this time always managed to secure money to obtain her freedom when arrested. She has been in jail dozens of times, but her luck seems to have deserted her at last. She was once considered the most beautiful woman in the upper Ohio valley and men fairly showered her with gold and diamonds. Of late she has been on the decline and as her beauty faded so her admirers failed and now she faces a workhouse sentence.

CARE FOR ROADS

Will Wellsville's City Officials—Some Projected Improvements

It is the purpose of Mayor Fogo and the city council to take good care of all the roads leading into Wellsville before snow flies, and paving on the Lisbon road from the county bridge to the corporation line and the Steubenville road from Clark avenue to the railroad tracks in the West End, will soon be commenced.

The county commissioners have promised to pave a mile of the Lisbon road after the city extends the paving to the city's limits, and this, too, it is thought, will be completed by early fall.

The tax payers of both the city and county are in favor of this needed improvement and there will be no let up from now on until it is finished.

SERENADED

Newly Married Couple—Marriage Was To Have Been Kept a Secret.

Barney Rand and bride were fairly overwhelmed by the arrival of a large number of friends at their summer home at Spring Grove camp grounds Thursday afternoon, soon after their return from the Methodist parsonage, where Rev. C. E. Clark united them in the holy bonds of wedlock.

After congratulations the friends organized an old fashioned "belling" and gave the couple a serenade that was greatly appreciated and enjoyed.

It was the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Rand to keep their wedding a secret, but some valuable friend let the cat out of the bag and in a little while it was town talk.

RAY ARRESTED

For Beating Perri and Gave Bond For Appearance At Trial.

Chief Houser has arrested Frank Ray, a sub-boss under Contractor Charles A. Sims, for brutally beating Antonio Perri, mention of which was made in this paper yesterday. He claimed to have been justified in fighting with the Italian and left $25 cash security for his appearance at the day of trial.

The injured man is still under the care of a physician and the hearing will not likely take place before the first of the week, as it will be necessary to get several witnesses here from Port Homer and other places along the C. & P.

The Millionaire Malady.

Men who have sacrificed health and youth, scrimped their families and injured their digestion in the acquirement of a "pile" often think they are public benefactors and that humanity in general owes them a debt of gratitude for being so rich. In consequence they resent as cruel injustice the fatigue, chagrin and newspaper notoriety that money invariably brings in its trail. It would be about as consistent for a little boy who had gorged himself on purloined apples to feel injured when an avenging stomach ache followed gluttony.—Eliot Gregory in Century.

Our Eccentric Phrases.

Why do we always talk of putting on a coat and vest? Who puts on a coat before a vest? We also say putting on shoes and stockings? Who puts on shoes before the stockings? We also put up signs telling people to wipe their feet when we mean their boots or shoes. And a father tells a boy he will warm his jacket when he means to warm his pantaloons. We are a little eccentric in our phrases at times.

Friends In Need.

"I don't put much faith in proverbs," said Brown to Jones. "For instance, look at the oft quoted one, 'A friend in need is a friend indeed.' Now, most of my experience with friends in need has been that they wanted to borrow. Give me the friends that are not in need."

Where Diplomacy Is Needful.

To Be Held in Detroit Instead of in East Liverpool as Previously Arranged

CASE IN SUPREME COURT

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, July 10.—The annual reunion of those who served in the Eighth Ohio volunteers, "The President's Own," during the Spanish war, will be held in Detroit, Mich., instead of at East Liverpool as intended.

The latter city was selected for the gathering at last year's reunion which was held at Canton, but on account of threatened labor troubles, which happily have since been averted, the East Liverpool members held a meeting and voted unanimously in favor of transferring the reunion to Detroit, where the Society of the Army of Santiago will hold its first reunion on Thursday and Friday of next week, which is the date fixed for the reunion of the Eighth. Will H. Kinney, acting secretary of the Spanish War Veterans' society, at East Liverpool, advised Colonel Charles C. Weybrecht, of Alliance, of the Eighth regiment, who was a major in the Eighth Ohio, of the action taken by the East Liverpool members. He concurred in the proposal and authorized Secretary McKinney to issue an official call providing for the holding of the reunion at Detroit on the date mentioned. The change meets with the general approval of the old Eighth members, as it will give them an opportunity of attending the meeting of the Society of the Army of Santiago in which many of them are enrolled as members.

Major General Shafter, who commanded the Santiago expedition, is president of this society, and President Roosevelt and General Joe Wheeler are vice presidents. Congressman Charles Dick, now major general of the Ohio National Guard, who was lieutenant colonel of the Eighth Ohio, is a national officer.

To adhere to the original plan of holding the reunion of the Eighth at East Liverpool would mean a decreased attendance, as many would be at the Detroit gathering. Steubenville, Empire, Toronto, Wellsville and other towns adjacent to East Liverpool were represented in Company E, of that city, which was in the Eighth Ohio Volunteer regiment. Those of these cities who contemplate attending the reunion will probably receive notice to assemble in East Liverpool, from whence a number will leave in a body for some lake point and thence proceed to Detroit by boat. By following this plan it will be possible to secure special railroad rates.

A Columbiana county case styled Alex McBane, administrator of the estate of Christian McGill, deceased, against William Swart, guardian of John Russell, a minor, has been filed in the supreme court. P. M. Smith, of Wellsville, is attorney for the plaintiff in error and Charles S. Speaker, of Lisbon, for the defendant in error.

Young Russell sued the estate for 78 month's work at $20 per month, amounting to $1,560, and won in both of the lower courts. He lived at the home of Christian McGill and claimed he rendered her this service. Her administrator claims she boarded Russell and sent him to school and that on this account he should be paid nothing for what work he did.

SOCIAL EVENTS

SPLENDID PROGRAM RENDERED IN ABLE MANNER.

Rev. M. B. Pratt Spoke at Length On Live Subject—Address Well Received.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church gave a very pleasant social in the Sunday school room of the church last evening. In honor of the occasion the room was prettily decorated with numerous Epworth League flags. The young people had worked faithfully to make the affair a success, and the event proved that their efforts were by no means in vain.

Much of the pleasure of the evening was due to the entertainment committee, of which Miss Maude Baum is president. The program, which was largely of a musical nature, was very interesting and as follows: Solo, Prof. R. H. Jennings; piono solo, Mrs. Gertrude Dix; duet, Mrs. Homer J. Taylor and Prof. Jennings; address, "John Wesley," Rev. M. B. Pratt; solo, Mr. C. L. Gray; duet, Miss Olive Dickey and Mr. Tallis Blount; selection, ladies' quartet.

Every number was splendidly rendered, and received not a little merited applause from the audience. The address of Rev. Pratt on "John Wesley—His Life and Works," was especially well received, it being both interesting and instructive. Rev. Pratt spoke in part as follows:

"John Wesley was born immediately after the death of Oliver Cromwell. On both sides he came of parentage distinguished alike for scholarship patriotism and piety. Inheriting all these traits he became a great scholar, graduating with the degree of M. A. at the early age of 24 years. He then became assistant to his father who was rector of a rural church, but was neither happy nor successful. Later he came to Georgia as chaplain for the new colony but his stay was short and on his return to England he met some very gentle and spiritual Christians who led him to a new experience.

"In that experience, Methodism was born. Preaching this new gospel of the witness of the spirit of God to our spirits, and summoning the people back to God, he was soon condemned and compelled to preach outside their churches. It was the old story, because he would not put new wine in old vessels, he was condemned. In fact, today if one wishes to satisfy the 'Keepers of the Ark,' one must say nothing that has not already been said ten thousand times.

"Wesley early became a great scholar, and created an important literature for his followers. Lecky says that the literature he created has not yet been adequately appreciated. But he saved his movement from mere emotional vaporing by the might of a mind trained and consecrated to his work. His movement was essentially a spiritual movement. The young people of our day should learn to cultivate their minds and this is a simpler task than some presume. A few moments each day of serious study for a few years and one may become liberally educated."

The purpose of the entertainment was to bring the young people together and interest them in social work. The affair was largely attended.

Will Hold Picnic.

A meeting of McCoy Circle was held last evening by the ladies of the G. A. R. at the rooms in the Exchange building. Besides the regular work of the evening it was decided to hold a picnic in the near future at Rock Springs park. The exact date was not decided upon. Arrangements were discussed pertaining to the encampment to be held in August at San Francisco. Mrs. Fannie Wyllie has been elected delegate-at-large from this order.

The Magnet.

Thousands of years ago a mineral having the strange power of attracting iron was found in the country anciently called Magnesia, in Asia Minor. The name of this country has given us the word "magnet." This mineral, which is now called the lodestone (not loadstone), attracted the attention of the curious, and it was discovered that a piece of iron which had been rubbed with the lodestone acquired the same power of attracting iron. In other words, the piece of iron became a magnet. It was afterward found that such an iron or artificial magnet could be used like the lodestone itself to convert other pieces or iron into magnets by rubbing. Still more recently a mode of making magnets by means of electricity was discovered—that is, by wrapping a piece of insulated wire many times around the bar and then causing a current of electricity to pass through the wire. The familiar small toy magnets are simply steel bars which have been rubbed a few times against powerful magnets.—St. Nicholas.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

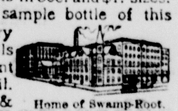

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghampton, N. Y., on every bottle.

HONESTY Is the Best Policy

WHY is it that this store is constantly forging ahead? Why is it that customers always express their satisfaction over purchases made here? The answer is not hard to find. We believe in unswerving adherence to the truth; we have but one price to everybody alike; we mark our goods, as a whole, cheaper than any store in town, nor is this all; we do not try to deceive; no false "dissolution sales" or "fake" Half Price Sales here. We do our best to intelligently supply your wants, and to give you extra values for every dollar without resorting to imaginary reasons for a motive. We take this occasion to thank our many customers for the confidence they have reposed in us and in the future we shall strive to give even better service than in the past.

Crushing an Actor.

A brother actor famous for his pomposity and his inordinate ambition was regaling Sir Henry Irving with a forecast of his plans for the future.

"I shall begin the season," he announced, "with such and such a part, and after that I shall appear as Hamlet."

"Um!" drawled Irving. "As—eh—Hamlet, did you say?"

The other, incensed by the tone of the query, bridled up at once.

"Do you think, Sir Henry," he demanded indignantly, "that you are the only man who can play Hamlet?"

"Oh, no," rejoined Irving blandly, "but I am quite sure that you are the only man who can't."—Harper's Weekly.

How Pausanius Died.

Pausanius, the Greek general, died by self administered poison. When hotly pursued by those sent to apprehend him on a charge of treason and sacrilege he took refuge in the sanctuary of a temple. Unable to remove him by force and also unwilling to violate the sanctuary, the officers walled up the entrance and began to unroof the building. When he could be seen they noticed that he was chewing something which proved to be a quill filled with poison. By the time the work had sufficiently advanced to admit of their entrance he was in a lying condition.

BATTING RALLY WON SECOND GAME

When the Locals Had the Game Won and Then Got on the Stupid Cart. Excellent Opportunity to Win the Game Was Sacrificed.

Wail after wail went up from the dry and dusty throats of the disappointed fans when a batting rally, coupled with stupid playing, allowed the Homesteaders to tie the score in the eighth inning. Half of the crowd had their hammers out and echoes of the anvil chorus could be heard all over the West End. Umpire Reark and half the players on the team came in for a share of the maledictions, unjustly for the most part.

While the error column does not show it, the locals played ball like wooden Indians, particularly when head work would have pulled them out of the hole. After six innings had been played the score stood 6 to 1 with the former numeral on the right side of the ledger. The visitors had but three measly hits off Miller, the south paw slab artist, but in their last three turns at the bat they landed on him good and hard, 9 hits, good for 14 bases and 7 runs, being the noxious figures.

Miller had all the best of the argument with the celebrated Buck Washer, late of the Wheeling leaguers, up to the seventh, in spite of his wildness. He did not have the proper command and his curves failed to break properly. His drop ball, so effective in other games, could not be used owing to his lack of control.

The angry and disappointed fans, when they come to calmly peruse the score, will see that Homestead's clean and consecutive hitting in the last three innings was the principal factor in their victory.

The entire Homestead bunch kept up a fusilade against Umpire Reark when they were getting a shade the best of the decisions, considering them in the aggregate. "Red" Violet was particularly obnoxious in this respect and it drew to him an enfilading fire of hot shots from the spectators.

The first four innings were productive of six runs for the locals, after which they failed to score. After the fourth Washer allowed them but one hit. Gibson walked in the first and Mason sacrificed him to second and he scored on Brown's single after Wallace had fanned. In the second with two down Emmerling drew a pass and scored from first on Miller's scorching two bagger. Three more were added in the third. Mason opened with a rattling three base hit to right, scoring on a fumble of Violet's throw to catch him at third. Ferguson fumbled Brown's grounder after Wallace had been given free transportation and Webb brought them over the pan with a clean two sacker. Tally No. 6 came in the fourth. Miller had all the outer gardeners chasing his long drive and when it was finally fielded in he was perched on third. Gibson drew his second free pass and tried for second on the next ball pitched. Coursey and Cosgrove forgot that Miller was on third and he scored while Gibson was being murdered on the throw to second.

The visitors started their run getting where the locals left off. In their half of the sixth Miller passed Cosgrove to first and hit McChesney a jolt in the ribs. Milton hit for a single and Cosgrove counted.

Buck, the brave, wore a large smile when he came to bat in the seventh and it broadened when Mason and Gibson let his punk hit drop safe. Violet worried a walk out of Miller but was forced at second on Edmundson's grounder, Buck moving up to third. Tate sent a screecher along the third base line. Mason standing on the bag, stabbed for it but didn't reach and to the majority of the spectators it looked foul. Umpire Reark thought otherwise and when the excitement subsided Buck had crossed the rubber, followed closely by Edmundson.

McChesney was passed to first on four wide ones as a starter in the eighth. Ferguson skied out to Reark but Coursey spanked one to left for two sacks. Buck, the brave, was the next willow artist with McChesney at third and Coursey on second looking longingly toward home. The way Buck swatted it was something awful. The impact sounded like a "down yander" swain kissing his best girl good night out in Jethro Hollow. It was a base cleaner but Buck rested on third until he had easy sailing home on Violet's single. His run tied the score.

Nolan was working overtime fielding in the base hits. He showed a lack of judgment in returning the ball that made the crowd groan. His poor judgment in the eighth was only excelled by his similar exhibition in the ninth. Cosgrove started the inning with a rattling three bagger but got his dates mixed and was caught off the bag. Milton singled past short. McChesney hit for two in the same direction, scoring Milton. Ferguson found the same opening through short for a hit. McChesney had not turned third when Nolan fielded the ball but he threw to Mason instead of the plate and McChesney scampered home. Mason threw to Brown and Ferguson was nailed at second. But the damage was done. The score:

LETTER FROM WILL REED

Will Sign Bond to Refund Money Unless Mi-o-na Restores Health.

To the Editor of the News Review:

Dear Sir:—Having heard that some people question the sincereity of my offer to refund a purchaser's money if Mi-o-na does not cure dyspepsia, increase the flesh and restore health, I am writing you this letter to say over my own signature that this offer is made in good faith and will be lived up to by me both in the spirit and the letter.

I will give the following bond with every 50 cent box of Mi-o-na I sell. There is no risk in buying Mi-o-na.

GUARANTEE BOND.

I hereby agree to refund the price paid for Mi-o-na, if the purchaser tells me that it has not increased flesh and given freedom from stomach troubles. WILL REED.

So many of my customers have told me of the great good Mi-o-na has done them, that I am more thoroughly convinced than ever that there is but little risk in selling Mi-o-na under this guarantee.

The demand for Mi-o-na is increasing rapidly and it is the most popular of all medicines we sell for the cure of stomach troubles. If it did not have unusual merit I could not afford to guarantee it.

Your readers can see that they run no risk whatever in buying Mi-o-na.

Respectfully yours,
WILL REED.

LIFE SLOWLY EBBING

Demise of Pope a Question of Days at Most and Probably Only Hours.

PHYSICAL VIGOR IS UNBROKEN

No Second Operation Performed—Dr. Rossini Called in Consultation. Cardinals Throughout the World Hurrying Romeward.

Rome, July 10—6:10 a. m.—It is reported that when, shortly after sunrise this morning, Dr. Lapponi went to see the pope he found him with his hands together in the attitude of prayer. On the doctor inquiring whether he required anything his holiness replied:

"Today finishes a week since I was taken ill. I am thanking God for having given me strength to still pray to Him."

Rome, July 10—2 a. m.—Another day of alternate hopes and fears has passed and Pope Leo's life still hangs in the balance. Beginning with renewed hopes, the day closed with the scales tending slowly, but surely, downwards. How long this agonizing period of suspense will last not even the attending doctors dare to say.

No night bulletin was issued, but at 12:15 this morning it was learned from Dr. Mazzoni that the condition of the pontiff had not changed since the issue of the evening bulletin at 7:30 o'clock, which announced that the patient's state was grave, and at which hour Dr. Lapponi had declared his fear that there was no hope, but that the end might not come during this night.

Dr. Mazzoni Interviewed.

At midnight a report coming from the vatican itself gained currency that Dr. Mazzoni had again operated on the pope and extracted serum which had again gathered in the pleural cavity. The representative of the Associated Press immediately went to see the illustrious surgeon and found him at his home at 1:30 this morning. Although extremely tired, Dr. Mazzoni allowed himself to be interviewed and said:

"It is untrue that a new operation has been performed. I was with the pope from 11 p. m. until after midnight and found his general condition stationary, no change having taken place since this afternoon, when the consultation with Dr. Rossini was held. To strengthen the patient's heart and help the circulation of the blood I injected camphor and caffeine, after which the pope, who seemed somewhat relieved, said he remembered being treated with raspail water on a camphor basis when he was nuncio at Brussels, 60 years ago."

In reply to a question Dr. Mazzoni replied:

New Operation May Be Necessary.

"I really cannot say whether the serum in the pleural cavity has increased since the consultation this afternoon, as I did not examine his holiness for such a purpose. It must be understood that the pope is too frail to be handled like other people. Besides, his thorax, through old age, has become bent in such a way that the right side, where pneumonia was first detected, curves out in a very pronounced manner, while the left side curves in. In tomorrow's visit attention will be especially centered on the progress in the secretion of serum. Then a decision will be taken as to whether a new operation is necessary."

Dr. Mazzoni ended by ridiculing the criticisms, objections and advice which he said people, most of whom are famous only for never having been heard of, allow themselves to advance, even from abroad, many of these persons having only seen the pope in photographs. The greatest accusation is that pleurisy was not discovered in time. I visited the pope for the first time on Sunday. On Monday evening I discovered the fluid and on Tuesday removed it. "Any student of medicine knows," concluded Dr. Mazzoni, "that sometimes weeks pass before the presence of serum is detected. I myself once had pleurisy, which the doctor only discovered 15 days after I was taken ill."

The condition of Pope Leo at times yesterday morning seemed so favorable that the hopeful Dr. Mazzoni and the more conservative Dr. Lapponi united in expressing the belief that there was some slight prospect of recovery, but within a few hours these brighter prospects disappeared before the most alarming conclusions reached after the lengthy consultation of doctors. The earlier hopes had been inspired largely by the pontiff's outward evidence of vigor, as he was able to rise, walk and command all his faculties, but the latter consultation disclosed that these outward evidences of strength were entirely deceptive, as the real danger consisted in the gradual internal progress of the insidious disease.

Condition Beyond Hope.

The mere fact of the consultation in itself gave rise to the gloomiest forebodings. Indeed, this was the first actual consultation, as the previous frequent meetings of the doctors were not regarded as formal consultations. Dr. Rossini, the distinguished specialist of the Raccelli school, was called into a consultation lasting two hours, during which every phase of the patient's case was minutely gone over. The conclusions announced in the 7:30 o'clock bulletin showed that liquid is again rapidly gathering in the pleural cavity and that the pope's general condition is very grave.

Following the issuance of this bulletin the doctors expressed their convictions regarding the extreme gravity of the case. Dr. Lapponi said, without qualification, that the patient's condition was beyond hope. He did not expect a final collapse at once, but rather a gradual sinking until the end came. How long the sufferer will last the doctors will not venture any prediction. Ordinary calculations, they say, fail to apply to this extraordinary case. One of them remarked:

"Here is a man almost a hundred years old retaining all his mental and most of his physical faculties and bravely combatting the approach of death. Although the conditions change from hour to hour, the essential conditions of mental alertness and physical vigor continue unbroken. Never yet has there been the slightest lapse into incoherency."

Arranging to Elect Successor.

Whatever may be the outcome the vatican world has fully made up its mind that the demise of the pope is only a question of days at the most and probably only of hours. With this being the prevalent view, every detail for conducting the affairs of the church during the interregnum and for carrying out the election of Pope Leo's successor is being systematically arranged. Following advices from the vatican, the cardinals throughout the world are hurrying Romeward, anticipating the holding of a conclave for the choice of a pope. These preparations are being undertaken in a spirit of profound grief and as the performance of a sacred duty.

The court of the vatican leading to the pope's apartments has been thronged with distingiushed visitors seeking information as to the pope's condition. Practically the entire diplomatic corps accredited to the vatican was among the inquirers and many cardinals were also among the groups. The popular solicitude for the pope's condition has led to an amelioration of the rigid rules closing the entrances. High and low coming to ask about the pope's condition were equally admitted to the inner court, where the bulletins signed by the doctors were conspicuously exhibited.

Pope in Ignorance of Volponi's Death.

One of the most remarkable features of the sick room is the absolute simplicity and the entire absence of the usual elaborate equipment found in the sick rooms of distinguished patients. There are no trained nurses, the only attendants besides the doctors being the pope's valets, Centra and De Castro. The doctors are without a corps of assistants and there are none of the modern appliances for refrigeration and other means of ameliorating the condition of patients.

The tragic death of Monsignor Volponi was carefully kept from the pope throughout the day. It was at first feared that it would be necessary to inform the pope in order that Monsignor Volponi's successor to the office of secretary of the consistory might be nominated, but after discussion by the vatican authorities it was decided that the precedents admitted of the nomination of a secretary without the intervention of the pope.

EDITORS DISCUSS MANY TOPICS

Newspapers Err and Sin Rather by Things Suppressed Rather Than by What Is Published.

Omaha, July 10.—B. B. Herbert, of the National Editorial association gave an account of a journalistic association in England which has met with success under the name of the Institutive Journalists of England. One of its objects is the protection of its members against libel suits and other difficulties common to journalism. Out of it has grown the World's Press Congress, which will be held in St. Louis next year. Mr. Herbert recommended that a committee be appointed to represent the editorial association at that congress, and the suggestion was adopted.

"Relation of the Newspaper to the State" was the subject of an address by F. C. Raney, of Fort Scott, Kan.

Edward Rosewater spoke on the "Ethics of Journalism." He criticised doctors and lawyers for seeking advertising in newspapers. The editor, he said, erred and sinned rather by the things he suppressed than by what he published.

A number of other papers were read, one of which was by Mrs. Georgiana Raby, of St. Louis, who spoke on "Fraternity and the World's Fair," reviewing the elaborate arrangements for the meeting of fraternal orders at the world's fair in 1904.

WHISKY LABELS ON HER BAGGAG.

Jokers Decorate Trunk of Mrs. Carrie Nation While Ticket Agent Is Lectured on Evils of Smoking.

McKeesport, Pa., July 10.—Mrs. Carrie Nation arrived in town and immediately went to the Baltimore and Ohio depot for the purpose of purchasing a ticket for Olympia park, where she gave two lectures during the day. The ticket agent did not know Mrs. Nation and appeared at the window smoking a cigar. Immediately Mrs. Nation saw the blue and white smoke, the young man lost favor in her eyes. She pointed out to him, in strenuous language, the error of his ways, and intimated that it would end in his death. The agent was at first somewhat surprised at the outburst, but when he had a chance to get in a word, told her he was there to sell tickets and he wanted no lectures except from his superior officer.

While the lecture was in progress Mrs. Nation's enemies were losing no time. Some procured a large quantity of whisky labels of a certain brand and liberally pasted them on her baggage. When the light of Mrs. Nation's eyes apprehended what had been done she almost fainted. Reviving without the aid of a stimulant, however, she made the depot lively for a time and then made a vain search for a policeman. Returning, she did her best at destroying the hated labels, but when her train came along not half of them had been dislodged, so she proceeded to the park, advertising the traffic which she so much hated.

Lime Burns Sound Steamer.

Anacortes, Wash., July 10.—The sound steamer Laconner has been destroyed by fire in Burroughs bay. The vessel was bringing 1,800 barrels of lime and 129 barrels of salt salmon from San Juan island when she sprang a leak. As soon as the water struck the lime the vessel caught fire. Captain Ira Myers headed her for the beach, which she reached in time to allow the officers and crew to get ashore. The loss is about $20,000.

CHRONIC SORES

Signs of Polluted Blood.

There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the SSS polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.

S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health. If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

The Ethics of Fiction

By ANNE FITZHUGH MACLEAN

III.—Difficult Moral Situations.

WITH the rapid growth of our modern habit of self analysis arose the moral dilemma as a motive in fiction, replacing or complicating the old motives of love, intrigue and adventure.

This in its turn has developed so rapidly that from a robust, obvious dilemma like that of Rochester and Jane in "Jane Eyre" it has already become in the hands of many writers subtilized beyond the recognition of the ordinary mind.

Even Mrs. Ward's Eleanor would, a hundred years ago, have spared herself most of her spiritual agonizings. The case between her and Lucy would have been a plain case of take who can, or Eleanor would have made a noble and immediate sacrifice of her claims, living happy ever after in the consciousness of well doing or else dying of a broken heart without any preliminary pains of self struggle. But the modernness of this treatment of an ancient situation is a very different thing from the decadent modernness of certain books—for instance, "The Column," where the dilemma is so vague that the everyday reader merely concludes that the young married pair were hard put to it for something to make themselves wretched about.

The two elements, one of which nearly always constitutes the difficulty in the moral situation, are, first, the necessity for deceit, either in word or in a course of action; second, the necessity of a decision between fearful self sacrifice and the ruin of another.

Generally all that is needed is a little of that wisdom of which Margaret Deland is our chief apostle, the wisdom that we call common sense. In most novels the lack of this quality on the part of personages caught in moral complications is either irritating or laughable, according as the author has or has not succeeded in gaining our sympathy. We feel that they know they are in a story and must keep up the plot, else they would surely speak the word or do the simple thing that would untangle the intricacies that are making them miserable or bringing the innocent to ruin.

Sir Gilbert Parker.

[Who built up a hopeless complication of difficult situations in "The Right of Way."]

From such it is restful to turn to a book in which the situation would be considered equally difficult in real life. Out of many "Jane Field" is a good example. The yielding to the temptation was to her despairing mother love made diabolically easy by the lawyer's mistake in assuming her to be her sister, of whose death he was ignorant. She meant to take from the estate only the sum that was rightfully due her. Even the most self conscious integrity might tremble at the power and plausibility of her temptation. She yields, yet in a life of falsehood she shrinks from a spoken lie and constantly risks all by refusing to utter one. Marvelous is the consistency of this old woman—rigid, unlovely, yet a glowing fire of maternal passion.

In the end her conscience triumphs—the conscience which, though, as the story says, "all her traditions were purely orthodox, made of her a fetich worshiper in a time of trouble," and when her daughter falls ill drives her to church "to propitiate a terrifying deity." When her tortured brain gives way as she makes confession of her sin, one cannot help the gentle human wish that she might first have realized the happiness of the child for whom she believed she had forfeited salvation.

A very different but also extremely interesting book whose motive is maternal passion in excess is "Mrs. Keith's Crime." So appealing is the situation of the woman who finally kills her adored child that there is danger of the reader's condemnation of her crime weakening under the influence of his sympathy. Or was it crime? Since killing for self defense is allowed by all, is it permissible to kill the helpless in his own defense?

This is Mrs. Clifford's problem in the story of Mrs. Keith, and shudderingly real has she made the presentment of it.

A hopeless complication of difficult situations is found in Gilbert Parker's fine book, "The Right of Way." Yet even in this the Gordian knot method would have been the right thing, and Steele would best have followed the obvious and sensible course—to go home, avow himself, let everybody involved take the consequences, including a divorce for his wife, who had married again, and then return to marry his Rosalie.

The distress to his wife would have been temporary, and surely the innocent Rosalie should not have had all the suffering put upon her. But that is the way. The person who sacrifices himself generally at the same time offers up another victim and one who deserves to be shielded quite as much as the one for whom the sacrifice is made. Mrs. Deland takes this for a text in "Sally," a wholesome short story for people in whose natures the quality of self renunciation is out of drawing.

In "A Tale of Two Cities" Dickens suggests no question as to whether Sydney Carton had a right to give up his life for his friend. Do we, then, belong to ourselves, or are we responsible to God for our bodies as well as our souls? Carton's act was suicide, and does any cause justify suicide? Certainly no cause could justify self degradation such as is illustrated in the means by which William Black's Yolande proposed to cure her mother of the habit of eating opium. Here we have an extreme case of the perversion of self sacrifice, but it does not require extreme cases to work grave injury to the moral vision of young or unthinking readers.

Says Mr. Howell, "The self sacrifice painted in most novels is nothing but psychical suicide and is as wholly immoral as the spectacle of a man falling upon a sword."

False and morbid sentiment in fiction is responsible for much false and morbid sentiment in real life. On the other hand, it could not have so permeated fiction had it not first existed widely in life.

Fiction exaggerates it, as a thing must be exaggerated, by the emphasis of its selection to the exclusion of most of the modifying elements of real life, but in the face of the spread of correct ethical principles it is fast assuming its true relation and proportion. Undoubtedly our public enlightenment has gone beyond the approval of such acts as that of Ewan, the clergyman in "The Deemster," who, by falsely acknowledging as his the signature which his cousin had forged, took upon himself, besides the lie, the burden of the debt and the stigma of disobedience to the church.

Many readers of "The Honorable Peter Stirling" regarded his lie told to save his friend, or, rather, his friend's wife, as the sole blot upon an ideal character. The lie was an indulgence the temptation to which was great, but he would have been a stronger man to have resisted. He does what the self sacrificing novel hero usually does—puts his wisdom above the wisdom of God, who, however we conceive him, must be a God of truth and cannot require a lie as a foundation for ultimate good. Stirling's words, however, at the moment of crisis, "Ask John, and he will say I am the father of the child," are read by some persons as no lie, but an ingenious statement of fact, to be interpreted thus, "Ask John, and he will say, 'I am the father of the child.'"

Mr. Crawford's "Corleone" has a moral situation at once so dramatic and so probable that it deserves to be the pivot of a story rather than an incident. The inviolacy of the confessional is turned by a murderer to his own advantage in such a way as to put under suspicion of the crime the priest to whom he has confessed it and who is thereby left without means of proving his innocence.

Hippolyte, the priest, sees no dilemma in his situation, nothing to be solved, for he does not for a moment consider breaking the seal of the confessional as an alternative to silently accepting an ignominious death.

The great novelists of the early nineteenth century did not make an ethical situation the keynote of a story, though they made subordinate use of such elements. Scott's notable exception is "The Fair Maid of Perth," of which he tells us he "conceived the case of one constitutionally weak of nerve being supported by feelings of honor and jealousy up to a certain point and then suddenly giving way under circumstances to which the bravest heart could hardly refuse compassion." In this conception Scott was in advance of his time. Since then many stories have been built upon the idea that physical fear is not always proof of a cowardly soul, and I know nothing that shows more clearly than the popular acceptance of this motive the great increase in our knowledge of human nature and the consequent increase of sympathy and forbearance.

A dangerous doctrine still to be weeded out of fiction is that a bad life can be atoned for toward its end by one heroic act. The woman who has wrecked lives appears in such romances to wipe out the score against her when, having experienced the hollowness of her mode of life, she turns sick nurse or devotes her remaining years to work among the poor.

The fascinating debauchee, with years of wasted or actively bad life behind him, rescues his enemy or does something equally dramatic, and the author strikes an attitude as if to assure us that his past is now clean.

What the novelist needs in dealing with moral dilemmas—and what the best novelists have already found—is, first, common sense, and, second, a just standard of right and wrong. Thus equipped, false or exaggerated sentiment may be required in the actions of his personages, but his presentment will show these things in their true significance. Such writers are the most valuable of moral teachers, for their audience is the largest in the world, and they teach the truth so subtly that it is absorbed by the spirit as the pure air is drunk in by the skin.

The Things That Need Not Happen

From "The Power of Truth," Published by Brentano's

THIS world would be a delightful place to live in if it were not for the people. They really cause all the trouble. Man's worst enemy is always man. He began to throw the responsibility of his transgressions on some one else in the garden of Eden, and he has been doing so ever since.

The greater part of the pain, sorrow and misery in life is purely a human invention, yet man, with cowardly irreverence, dares to throw the responsibility on God. It comes through breaking laws—laws natural, physical, civic, mental or moral. These are laws which man knows, but he disregards. He takes chances. He thinks he can dodge results in some way. But nature says, "He who breaks pays." There are no dead letter laws on the divine statute books of life. When a man permits a torchlight procession to parade through a powder magazine, it is not courteous for him to refer to the subsequent explosion as "one of the mysterious workings of Providence."

Nine-tenths of the world's sorrow, misfortune and unhappiness is preventable. The daily newspapers are the great chroniclers of the dominance of the unnecessary. Paragraph after paragraph, column after column and page after page of the dark story—accidents, disasters, crime, scandal, human weakness and sin—might be checked off with the word "preventable." In each instance, were our information full enough, our analysis keen enough, we could trace each back to its cause, to the weakness or the wrong from which it emanated. Sometimes it is carelessness, inattention, neglect of duty, avarice, anger, jealousy, dissipation, betrayal of trust, selfishness, hypocrisy, revenge, dishonesty, any of a hundred phases of the preventable.

That which can be prevented should be prevented. It all rests with the individual. The "preventable" exists in three degrees—first, that which is due to the individual solely and directly; second, that which he suffers through the wrongdoing of those around him, other individuals; third, those instances wherein he is the unnecessary victim of the wrongs of society, the innocent legatee of the folly of humanity—and society is but the massing of thousands of individuals with the heritage of manners, customs and laws they have received from the past.

We sometimes feel heartsick and weary in facing failure when the fortune that seemed almost in our fingers slips away because of the envy, malice or treachery of some one else. We bow under the weight of a sorrow that makes all life grow dark and the star of hope fade from our vision, or we meet some unnecessary misfortune with a dumb, helpless despair. "It is all wrong," we say, "it is cruel, it is unjust. Why is it permitted?" And in the very intensity of our feeling we half unconsciously repeat the words over and over again in monotonous iteration, as if in some way the very repetition might bring relief, might somehow soothe us. Yet in most instances it could be prevented. No suffering is caused in the world by right. Whatever sorrow there is that is preventable comes from inharmony or wrong of some kind.

In the divine economy of the universe most of the evil, pain and suffering are unnecessary, even when overruled for good, and perhaps if our knowledge were perfect it would be seen that none is necessary; that all is preventable. The fault is mine or yours or the fault of the world. It is always individual. The world itself is but the cohesive, united force of the thoughts, words and deeds of millions who have lived or who are living like you and me. By individuals has the great wrong that causes our preventable sorrow been built up; by individuals must it be weakened and transformed to right. And in this, too, it is to a great degree our fault; we care so little about rousing public sentiment, of lashing it into activity unless it concerns us individually.

The old Greek fable of Atlas, the African king who supported the world on his shoulders, has a modern application. The individual is the Atlas upon whom the fate of the world rests today. Let each individual do his best, and the result is foreordained. It is but a matter of the unconquerable massing of the units. Let each individual bear his part as faithfully as though all the responsibility rested on him, yet as calmly, as gently and as unworried as though all the responsibility rested on others.

Most accidents are preventable—as at Balaklava, "some one has blundered." One of the great disasters of the nineteenth century was the Johnstown flood, where the bursting of a dam caused the loss of more than 6,000 lives. The flood was not a mere accident: it was a crime. A leaking dam, for more than a year known to be unsafe, known to be unable to withstand any increased pressure, stood at the head of the valley. Below it lay a chain of villages containing over 45,000 persons in the direct line of the flood. When the heavy rains came, the weakened dam gave way. Had there been one individual, one member of the South Fork Fishing club, brave enough to have done merely his duty, one member with the courage to so move his fellows and to stir up public action to make the barrier safe over 6,000 murders could have been prevented.

When a tired engineer, sleepy from overwork, can no longer cheat nature of her needed rest and, drowsing for a moment in his cab, fails to see the red signal light of danger or to heed the exploding of the warning torpedo, the wreck that follows is not chargeable to the Almighty. It is but an awful memorial of a railroad corporation's struggle to save $2. One ounce of prevention is worth six pounds of coroner's inquest. It is a crime to balance the safety and sacredness of human life in the scales with the petty saving that comes from transforming a man into a mechanism and forgetting he has either a soul or a body. True, just and wise labor laws are part of society's weapon for fighting the preventable.

When a terrible fire makes a city desolate and a nation mourn, the investigation that follows usually shows that a little human foresight could have prevented it, or at least lessened the horror of it all. If chemicals or dynamite are stored in any building in excess of what wise legislation declares is safe, some one has been cruelly careless. Perhaps it is some inspector who has been disloyal to his trust by permitting bribes to chloroform his sense of duty. If the lack of fire escapes adds its quota to the list of deaths or if the avarice of the owner has made his building a fire trap, public feeling becomes intense, the newspapers are justly loud in their protests and in demands that the guilty ones be punished. "If the laws already on the statute books do not cover the situation," we hear from day to day, "new laws will be framed to make a repetition of the tragedy impossible." We are promised all kinds of reforms; the air seems filled with a spirit of regeneration; the mercury of public indignation rises to the point where "fever heat" seems a mild, inadequate term.

Then, as the horror begins to fade in the perspective of the past, men go quietly back to their own personal cares and duties, and the mighty wave of righteous protest that threatened so much dies in gentle lapping on the shore. What has been all men's concern seems soon to concern no one. The tremendous energy of the authorities seems like the gesture of a drunken man that starts from his shoulder with a force that would almost fell an ox, but when it reaches the hand it has expended itself, and the hand drops listlessly in the air with hardly power enough to disturb the serenity of a butterfly. There is always a little progress, a slight advance, and it is only the constant accumulation of these steps that is giving to the world greater dominion over the preventable.

By WILLIAM GEORGE JORDAN

Let us not seek to fit the whole world with shoes from our individual last. If we think that all music ceased to be written when Wagner laid down the pen, let us not condemn those who find enjoyment in light opera. Perhaps they may some time rise to our heights of artistic appreciation and learn the proper parts to applaud. If their lighter music satisfies their souls, is our Wagner doing more for us? It is not fair to take from a child its rag doll in order to raise it to the appreciation of the Venus de Milo. The rag doll is its Venus. It may require a long series of increasingly better dolls to lead it to realize the beauties of the marble woman of Melos.

Intolerance makes its great mistakes in measuring the needs of others from its own standpoint. Intolerance ignores the personal equation in life. What would be an excellent book for a man of forty might be worse than useless for a boy of thirteen. The line of activity in life that we would choose as our highest dream of bliss, as our paradise, might if forced on another be to him worse than the after death fate of the wicked according to the old fashioned theologians. What would be a very acceptable breakfast for a sparrow would be a very poor meal for an elephant.

When we sit in solemn judgment of the acts and characters of those around us and condemn them with the easy nonchalance of our ignorance, yet with the assumption of omniscience, we reveal our intolerance. Tolerance ever leads us to recognize and respect the differences in the natures of those who are near to us, to make allowance for differences in training, in opportunities, in ideals, in motives, in tastes, in opinions, in temperaments and in feelings. Intolerance seeks to live other people's lives for them: sympathy helps us to live their lives with them. We must accept humanity with all its weakness, sin and folly and seek to make the best of it, just as humanity must accept us. We learn this lesson as we grow older, and with the increase of our knowledge of the world we see how much happier life would have been for us and for others if we had been more tolerant, more charitable, more generous.—From "The Power of Truth," Published by Brentano's.

Yankee Yacht Experts

Our Marine Designers and Builders Lead World ⁘ The Magic Name of Herreshoff ⁘ Famous Bristol Boats ⁘ Captain Nat.

With Sir Thomas Lipton again in the field as a challenger for the America's cup all the world is getting in trim to give the deepest attention to the next races for that trophy, to be sailed for off Sandy Hook in August.

For more than half a century this cup has remained in the custody of the New York Yacht club in spite of the admitted fact that the seamanship of the men across the water is equal to that of the men who have sailed the various successive cup defenders to their victories. This same state of affairs exists as far as the coming races are concerned, and it is upon the question of yacht designing and building that the real test between the English and the Americans depends. This question and this alone, it is firmly believed by yachtsmen, will decide the coming contest between the Shamrock III. and the cup defender.

American yacht designers concededly are the best in the world, and Sir Thomas, on the occasion of his last unsuccessful effort to lift the cup, half in humor and half in despair, said he was afraid he never would be able to land the cup unless the Herreshoffs would consent to build a cup challenger for his use. It is the work of these American designers that has kept the cup safely on these shores since the America first brought it over, despite the fact that the best designers and sailors in the United Kingdom have made repeated efforts to win it back, spending millions of dollars in their attempts.

The name Herreshoff is a magic one in the world of yachting. It was Herreshoff who designed and built the Vigilant, the craft that defeated Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie in 1893; it was Herreshoff who designed and built the Defender, which lowered the earl's colors in 1895, when he made his second attempt to win the cup with the Valkyrie III., and it was Herreshoff also who designed and built the Columbia, which defeated the first Shamrock in 1899 and which again was relied upon to defeat the Shamrock II. two years ago, after the new Herreshoff yacht, the Constitution, had proved to be a little inferior to the cup defender of the previous race, called upon for a second time to protect the trophy. These and many other famous yachts have been built by the Herreshoffs, upon whom the yachtsmen of this country have once more to depend.

is a direct descendant of the noted Charles Brown, the colleague of Roger Williams. John B. Herreshoff was born in 1841 and was educated at Brown university. He was an enthusiast on the subject of boats in his boyhood, and he entered the business as a designer and builder in 1864. He lost his sight shortly after, but kept right on building boats, and today can explain the intricacies of machinery and the values of lines of construction as accurately as though he saw everything. Nathaniel Greene Herreshoff, the youngest brother of John B., however, is the member of the firm who is responsible for the almost unvarying success of the yachts built by the firm. He practically has lived on the water all his life and from the age of nine on has been considered an expert at handling sailing craft. He was graduated from the Institute of Technology and in 1869 went into the Corliss engine works in Providence and there worked and studied for eight years, after which he joined his brother in business.

Much of the attention of the Bristol firm was given to steam craft until a few years ago. Nathaniel Herreshoff does the actual designing, but John B. always is consulted. He runs his hands over the models, and his sensitive fingers find lumps and hollows that would be impossible for less educated digits to discover. Then he makes suggestions, calls attention to the slightest imperfections and tells how they may best be remedied. In this manner the two brothers evolved the Wasp, the Gloriana, Colonia, Vigilant, Defender, Columbia, Rainbow, Mineola, Yankee, Virginia and a host of other racing yachts that have made history. Yachtsmen of America, while admitting the great genius of Herreshoff, especially in designing big cutters, do not concede that all the brains in this particular direction are stowed away in one head. There are others who have held their own in the construction of smaller single stickers and in large schooners.

For instance, there is William Gardner, a young man who has made a reputation among the marine architects of America. He began his career in the office of Stephen Roach's shipbuilding yard and thoroughly learned the manner of shipbuilding on the Delaware.

Charles D. Mosher is another thoroughly practical engineer and designer.

A. Cary Smith is a marine painter whose works on canvas have attracted no small amount of attention, but at the present time he is turning out more yachts than pictures. He designed the big steel schooner Tampa, now owned by Emperor William of Germany, but probably the best known racing craft from his board is the Amorita, owned by Richard Mansfield.

He also designed the Iroquois, which safely sailed through the great blizzard of 1888 without having a spar carried away; the seventy footer Titania, the schooner Lasca, a craft that later was bought by a German nobleman; the Ariel, and many others. It was Cary Smith who transformed the Herreshoff keel cutter Colonia into a centerboard schooner, which under the flag of Commodore Postley of the Larchmont (N. Y.) Yacht club was seldom defeated during the many years of its activity. Mr. Smith also designed some fast sound steamers and other steam craft.

The Boston designer, A. G. McVey, is a newspaper writer who has had charge of the yachting departments of various Boston papers for years. He has designed several thirty footers and forty footers and stands well in the ranks of the marine architects. Then there is George Stewart, who designed the cup defender Pilgrim in 1893; also E. Binney, C. Purdan and B. B. Crowninshield of Boston, who designed Thomas W. Lawson's Independence and a whole fleet of small craft; W. P. Stephens, Charles G. Davis, C. D. Mower, Clinton H. Crane, Larry Huntington, and many others who hail from New York. Proof is not wanting of the strength of America in marine architects.

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism.

"My mother has been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pa. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried. In fact, she is never without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with." For sale by Alvin & Bulger.

EXPENSIVE KISSES.

Two That Helped to Make Eighteenth Century History.

In the year 1794 the beautiful and charming Duchess of Gordon raised that famous regiment of soldiers called "the Gordon highlanders" by giving each recruit a guinea in gold and a kiss from her own lips. It is notorious that the regiment was raised to a full complement quicker than any other regiment in the British service. But the highlanders paid well for their kiss. They were sent immediately to fight the French, and in their first engagement 500 fell, killed and wounded.

In the year 1765 a stray kiss was the means of bringing about a bloody and expensive war. Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria was journeying in a neighboring state. One day he visited "the royal household," and while there his eye caught sight of a most beautiful maiden who happened to be near him. He was so bewitched with her charming personality that he impulsively and thoughtlessly implanted a kiss upon her fair cheek. She was a princess of the royal household, which the prince knew not, neither did he know that she was an affianced bride and that her betrothed was near by and saw the whole affair. Angry words and blows followed. A duel was fought and both principals were severely wounded. Diplomatic relations between the two kingdoms were suspended, and a long and bloody war ensued, all on account of a kiss which was paid for most dearly in blood and treasure.

Dangerous Symptoms.

The story is told of a Scotch preacher who gave his people long, strong sermons and delivered them in a remarkably deliberate manner. One Sunday he asked a friend who was visiting him to occupy his pulpit in the morning.

"An' were you satisfied wi' my preaching?" asked his friend as they walked home from the kirk.

"Weel," said his host slowly, "it was a fair discoorse, Will'm; a fair discoorse, but it pained me at the last to see the folk looking so fresh and wide-awake. I mistrust 'twasna sae long nor sae sound as it should hae been."

The Dictionary Habit.

Friend—What queer language your husband uses! He pronounces every word half a dozen different ways.

Wife—Yes, he has half a dozen different dictionaries.

We are inclined to believe in those whom we do not know because they have never deceived us.—Johnson.

The Postal Service

Uncle Sam the Greatest Mail Carrier In the World

OWING to the recent sweeping changes in the personnel of the staff of Postmaster General Henry C. Payne, public attention is directed to Uncle Sam's postal establishment, the greatest business concern in the world. It handles more pieces, employs more men, spends more money, brings more revenue, uses more agencies, reaches more homes, involves more details and touches more interests than any other human organization, public or private, governmental or corporate.

The postal services of England, France and Germany include the telegraph, which is a private enterprise here, and yet the aggregate figures of the postal business in this country surpass both post and telegraph in any of those lands. The receipts and expenditures of one system, of combined railroads and of the United States Steel corporation, perhaps, equal those of the postal service, but the only equality is in monetary figures and not in the extent and ramifications of organization.

The post office department directed last year 75,924 post offices, mustered an army of 200,000 employees, spent $124,809,217, and its receipts were $121,848,047.

The delivery system of letters has been carried to a high state of perfection. Those residents of cities and large towns who accept as a matter of course the frequent rounds of the gray coated messengers of the post office find it difficult to recall that prior to 1863 the letter carrier service had no existence in the United States.

Rural free delivery is a much more recent addition to the carrier service, but is already well established. The estimates of the department are to the effect that the available territory for this service embraces about 1,000,000 square miles. The 11,650 routes now in operation cover about one-third of the available territory. From this it will be seen that it will require about 25,000 additional employees to take care of this territory. It is believed that within the next three years the extension of this service will have been completed.

In connection with the transportation of mails it may be a matter of interest to know how the bags and pouches used in carrying the billions of pieces of mail matter deposited in more than 80,000 post offices and postal cars are distributed and how they find their way back. Practically they are furnished by contract, and nearly all get in circulation through the New York office.

The great trend of the mail is from east to west and from the large commercial centers to the less populous districts. How to recover the mail bags sent to remote sections and have them promptly returned to the large centers long ago became a serious problem. This was solved by designating certain cities, with adequate railroad facilities and ample storage room, as depositories for all surplus mail bags finding their way to offices in the surrounding states.

The money order division is one of the greatest of international clearing houses. Through its machinery remittances may be sent all over the world at the smallest expense and in the safest manner. The number of money orders issued is still, however, much below the business done by either Germany or England. The former country does a postal money order business nearly four times the volume of that done in this country, while England overtops us at least 200 per cent. The postal order has been far longer established in those countries, and there is little competition on the part of private enterprises, as here.

The advance of the foreign mail service has kept pace, so far as the conditions would allow, with the domestic service. It is only since 1874 that the postal union has existed which established uniform rates and conditions. Prior to that time the mails with foreign countries were regulated by separate treaties, providing different rates with almost every nation. Then the letter writer had to consult numerous schedules to learn how much he must prepay and what conditions must be fulfilled to secure the earliest dispatch.

Now, with the uniform foreign rate as well known as the domestic, he can drop his letter into the first box he comes to with the assurance that it will go by the quickest route to its destination, though at the ends of the earth, and all for the sum of 5 cents.

The first head of the postal department was Samuel Osgood of Massachusetts, under President Washington in 1789. It was not until 1829, however, that the postmaster general was considered a cabinet officer, when William T. Barry of Kentucky held that post under President Jackson. In all there have been just forty postmaster generals.

Henry C. Payne, the head of the postal department, is a New Englander by birth, and his first job with a salary attachment was as assistant to the post office at Shelburne, Mass., a fitting start in life for the man who was destined in later years to become the head of the department. When the civil war broke out young Payne wanted to enlist, but was rejected on account of his size. Early in the sixties he went to Milwaukee, which is still his home, and where he became a millionaire.

Mrs. Payne, who as the wife of a cabinet officer is one of the notable figures in Washington society, has in no small degree contributed to her husband's success in life. For many years she has been prominent in the Daughters of the Revolution and the Colonial Dames. Before her marriage she was Miss Lydia Van Dyke of an old New York colonial family. The Paynes were married in 1867.

Among all the thousands of Uncle Sam's post offices probably the most curious is the one in Beebe Plain, a town that stands half in Vermont and half in the province of Quebec, Canada. The old post office was built about seventy-five years ago exactly on the line between the United States and Canada, so that it stands in two countries and serves in the postal service of two nations. This combination post office is now being run by parent and child, the father being postmaster for Canada while the daughter is the postmistress for the Vermonters.

With all its great income the postal service is run at a loss, the expenditures since 1882 having been greater than the receipts. This is explained by the fact that whenever the receipts exceed or approach the expenditures it is the policy of congress to extend postal facilities and cheapen the cost of the service to the public. This was the case in 1882, when the letter postage was reduced from 3 cents per half ounce to 2 cents per ounce. Americans have every reason to be proud of the work done by Uncle Sam's post office department, for it is of the highest order of merit.

Nuremberg.

Nuremberg, whose walls are reported to be showing signs of rapid decay, was once almost the richest and most famous town in Europe. The well known saying of Pope Pius II.—that a Nuremberg citizen was better off than a Scottish king—was justified by the accounts that have been preserved of the town and its burghers. In the fifteenth century there came from Nuremberg the first watches known as "Nuremberg eggs;" the first cannon, the first gun lock, the first wire drawing machine, the clarinet, certain descriptions of pottery and the art of painting on glass. For 800 years its now decaying walls defended the valley of the Pegnitz against all enemies. Four hundred towers once topped the walls, but only about a third of them now remain.

European Tattooers.

Tattooing is not by any means confined to savage peoples. There are races in Europe which make it a regular practice, and men, women and children bear on their bodies ornamentations that are as ornate and queer, although not as extensive, as are markings on the bodies of the south sea savages.

These European tattooers are among the Albanians and Bosnians, who live in the famous and notorious Balkan peninsula.

NERVOUS HEADACHE BREEDS INSANITY

Many a person's whole pleasure in life is ruined by the fear of nervous headaches. Any little excitement, no matter what, business or social, brings them on. The feet and hands grow cold, the head is hot, the eyes stiff, the temples throb, and only in the quiet of a darkened room is relief found. This condition must be checked or it means complete mental ruin. To those people Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills come as a blessing. They do not stop, they cure the headaches. They do not blanket, they build up. They put the nervous system in a strong, vigorous, sturdy condition—a condition that gives one resistive power and enables them to again enjoy life's pleasures.

Mrs. George Hall, of No. 389 West Market Street, East Liverpool, Ohio, says: "I was bilious—had nervous headaches, hard and constant—there was a general feeling of weakness and depression. I was asked to try Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and did so, getting them at Larkins' drug store. The result was very good indeed as the biliousness overcome—the headaches cured and bodily and nerve strength furnished."

IF YOU HAVE PAIN IN YOUR BACK

Do Not Be Deceived. You have Kidney Trouble, and You Do Not Need a Physician to Tell You So.

Pain in the back is an almost infallible sign of kidney disease; a surer sign is the condition of your urine. If you have a pain in the back, then look to the condition of your urine. It is easily done. Take a glass or tumbler and fill it with urine; after it has stood 24 hours, if it has a sediment, if it is milky or cloudy, if it is pale or discolored, stringy or ropy, your kidneys and bladder are in a dangerous condition and need immediate attention, or the consequences may prove fatal. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the one medicine that really cures all diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood, rheumatism, dyspepsia and chronic constipation, and it will take you but a short trial to convince yourself of its wonderful curative power.

G. F. Sammer of No. 409 Tioga street, Syracuse, N. Y., in a recent letter says:

"I was afflicted for years with severe pains in my back and kidneys. I tried many doctors and many medicines, but got no relief. I bought a bottle of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and it has entirely cured me."

It is for sale by all druggists in the New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles—less than a cent a dose.

Sample bottle—enough for trial, free by mail.

HARVEST OF DEATH

Intense Heat Throughout the Country Results Fatally to Many.

DOZEN DIE IN GREATER NEW YORK

Hottest Weather in Two Years—Temperature Almost Unendurable and Prostrations Numerous — Evening Brings but Little Relief.

Pittsburg, July 10.—Instead of the cooling showers predicted for this section yesterday by the weather man Pittsburg residents experienced the hottest day so far this summer. The minimum temperature was 92 degrees and was registered at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. From this hour till 6 o'clock the mercury was stationary and the intense heat of the day caused people to swelter till long after midnight. The long list of fatalities caused by the torrid weather during the past week was increased yesterday by the deaths of seven persons from heat and the prostration of four others.

The Dead.

Frank Menet, aged 40, a mill worker of Duquesne.

Jane Humphrey, 8 months old, 7131 Idlewild street.

Mrs. Winifred Carr, aged 53, of South Twenty-second street, died at South Side hospital.

George Schiller, aged 83, died of heart disease, aggravated by the heat, at his home, rear 1731 Fifth avenue.

Zella L. Kimmel, 7 months old, 121 Edmond street.

George Norris, aged 22, of Wilmerding, went bathing in Monongahela river to escape the heat and was drowned.

Frank Meszaro, aged 30, a laborer, found dead in the cellar of his boarding house.

New York, July 10.—There were six deaths from heat in New York, six in Brooklyn, and fully two score of prostrations. It was the hottest day in two years, or since July 2, 1901, which was the hottest day in the hottest month since the local weather bureau opened in 1871. The official record is that day, two years ago, was 99 degrees. Yesterday it ran to 94 degrees at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Down the streets humanity suffered terrible. In the tenements the heat seemed to be almost unendurable. Little children suffered extremely. This state of affairs continued from early morning until late at night. In the evening the scorched inhabitants sought relief on roofs, at the nearby beaches, or by taking car rides.

Philadelphia, July 10.—This vicinity experienced the hottest weather in two years, the maximum temperature registering 96 degrees at 5 p. m. One death, one person rendered insane and a dozen prostrations, all due to the hot weather, were reported by the police.

Chicago, July 10.—Two deaths and 10 prostrations resulted from the heat. A heavy thunderstorm sent the temperature down from 90 to 72. During the storm a number of buildings in the business portion of the city were flooded by the heavy rainfall.

Springfield, Ill., July 10.—Thursday broke the heat record for the year. The government thermometer on top of the federal building recorded a maximum of 97 degrees, while on the streets thermometers ranged all the way from 98 to 104 in the shade.

Cincinnati, July 10.—Thursday was the hottest day of the year, the thermometer registering 95 degrees. Twelve prostrations were reported, three of the victims being in a serious condition.

St. Louis, July 10.—The excessive heat continues here, the weather bureau reporting 97 degrees. A number of prostrations occurred, but no case has resulted fatally.

Lincoln, Neb., July 10.—The mercury stood at 99 degrees Thursday. This was the hottest of the year. One man was prostrated by the heat and may die.

Burlington, Ia., July 10.—The thermometer has stood at 100 degrees for two days. There has been one prostration from the heat.

FOUR FATALITIES AT CROSSING

Wagon Containing Nine People Struck by Pennsylvania Train Near Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, July 10.—A westbound Pennsylvania train struck a wagon containing nine people at a crossing eight miles east of this city, killing four, fatally injuring three and seriously injuring two of the occupants of the wagon.

Robert Copenhagen, with his wife and two children, aged 8 and 2 years respectively, were going from Red Comb junction to Madisonville. A daughter of a neighbor and four of their boarders accompanied them. They did not observe the train which was coming at high speed. When the engineer saw them he blew his whistle, but it was too late to reverse or stop the train. The mules on hearing the whistle stopped and could not be moved. The animals were across the track and escaped unhurt, while the wagon was wrecked and all the occupants either killed or injured. The train brought the victims to this city.

Wheat Yield of New South Wales.

Sydney, N. S. W., July 10.—The Morning Herald says the estimated wheat yield of the colony is 13,418,400 bushels.

What Shall We Have for Dessert?

This question arises in the family every day. Let us answer it to-day. Try

Jell-O,

a delicious and healthful dessert. Prepared in two minutes. No boiling! no baking! add boiling water and set to cool. Flavors:—Lemon, Orange, Raspberry and Strawberry. Get a package at your grocers to-day. 10 cts.

New Rural Routes.

Washington, July 10.—Two rural free delivery routes will be established July 15 at Orville, Wayne county, O. The routes cover an area of 48 square miles, containing a population of 1,185. On Aug. 1 an additional route will be established at Kane, McKean county, Pa. The route covers an area of 12 square miles, containing a population of 422.

Six Years for Overissuing Stock.

Berlin, July 10.—The court at Duisburg, Rhenish Prussia, has sentenced former Company Director Terrinden, of Oberhausen, to six years' confinement in the penitentiary for overissuing stock and other offenses. Terrinden fled to the United States upon the discovery of his irregularities in the summer of 1901 and later was extradited.

Bids for New Court House.

Greensburg, Pa., July 10.—The bids for the new court house were opened. Miller & Sons, of Pittsburg, are the lowest bidders. Their bid was for granite, $846,000, and for stone, $760,000. It is likely they will be awarded the contract.

Mrs. Blaine Dying.

Augusta, Me., July 10.—There is little change in the condition of Mrs. James G. Blaine, her physicians saying that life is simply wearing away. The end may come suddenly or she may live several days.

Drank Wood Alcohol.

Sewickley, Pa., July 10.—Anne Foley, aged about 50 years, died from drinking wood alcohol at the residence of Mrs. T. W. Fitch, on Maple avenue, where she was employed as a domestic.

Pittsburger Drowned in Gull Lake.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 10.—Elmer McGibbney, aged 21, of Pittsburg, Pa., was drowned in Gull lake while swimming. McGibbney was an employe of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie railroad.

Vessel and Cargo Lost.

Portland, Me., July 10.—The total destruction of the steamship Heathford at Colombo, island of Ceylon, is reported. The Heathford had put into Colombo with her cargo of 30,000 half chests of tea on fire and both vessel and cargo were lost.

Naval Deserter Arrested.

"A TALE OF TWO CITIES"

Leaving Detroit at 4 in the afternoon, aboard the palatial steamer "Eastern States" or "Western States" of the famous Detroit & Buffalo Line, passengers are afforded an interesting and panoramic view of Detroit's harbor, teeming with the commerce of the Great Lakes, and bordered with its countless evidences of manufacturing wealth and activity. Passing down the river, Fort Wayne appears, bristling with its war-like aspects, and crowned with "old glory" gently curling in the breeze, seemingly waving adieus to passing travelers.

Again, we are among scenes of simple country life—beautiful farms and artistic rural homes dotting the banks on either side and the verdant islands mid-stream—and, as we float peacefully out upon the bosom of "Old Erie," one feels that the cares of life have lagged behind.

Now the varying course of the ship from time to time brings to view the silvery moon and its rippling reflections in the vessel's wake, while the strains of some dreamy waltz, enchantingly rendered, soothes the ear, and cool, invigorating breezes fan the brow as the traveler is borne along, almost regretting that nature demands its sweet repose.

It is sunrise and we are soon to end our journey. As we pass the breakwater the harbor seems stretching out to welcome our noble vessel, and the tourist, to Buffalo's hospitable environs. Once again we are among scenes of activity, but so refreshed that our journey seems like a fairy's legend.

DELEHANTY'S BODY IDENTIFIED

Remains of Famous Ball Player Are Shipped to Washington—Death Being Investigated.

Buffalo, July 10.—The body found in the river below the falls was identified at Drummondville as that of Ed Delehanty, the famous outfielder of the Washington American league team.

The body was mangled. One leg was torn off, presumably by the propeller of the Maid of the Mist, near whose landing the body was found. M. A. Green, a stockholder in the Washington team, identified the body by the teeth, two crippled fingers and the clothing. The body was shipped to Washington.

Mr. Green identified the luggage left by Delehanty on the train at the bridge last Thursday night when he was put off. In it was a pass to the Washington grounds made out to Mrs. Delehanty. Delehanty's effects have been sent to his wife by the Pullman people.

Frank Delehanty, of the Syracuse team, and E. J. McGuire, a brother-in-law from Cleveland, are here investigating the death of the player. They do not believe that Delehanty committed suicide or that he had been on a spree in Detroit.

Raid on Betting Ring.

Chicago, July 10.—Shortly after the sixth race at Washington park a number of constables, who had been held at bay all afternoon, were admitted to the betting ring. Seven bookmakers for whom the constables had warrants were placed under arrest on a charge of gambling. The men arrested were: James O'Leary, Joseph Yeager, Fred Pesch, Marcus Cartwright, M. Riordan, Bernard J. (Kid) Weller and Samuel Summerfield. They gave bonds of $200 each pending a hearing. The raid was made at the instance of a local attorney. The move is said to have been brought about by several horse owners who were ruled off the track recently at Highland park.

Poisoned by Eating Ice Cream.

FAVOR CLOSER TIES

United States and Great Britain to Act in Interest of Peace of the World.

DECLARATION OF KING EDWARD

Ministers Heartily Approve of Monroe Doctrine—American Officers Royally Welcomed at Buckingham Palace. Toast Drank to President Roosevelt.

London, July 10.—In formally welcoming the American naval officers to England King Edward took occasion to make an emphatic declaration in favor of closer relations between the United States and Great Britain. His majesty did not speak of an alliance or even an understanding, but the impression was clear from his remarks that he desired that the two nations move together in the interests of the peace of the world. Some of the king's ministers also took advantage of the occasion to impress on the American officers their cordial approval of the Monroe doctrine and their desire that it be supported by American influences in a way which would place it above all criticism.

The royal welcome was extended to the American officers at Buckingham palace, where, at 8:30 p. m., commenced the dinner given in their honor by King Edward. The table was decorated by Marechal Neil roses and gold plate brought from Windsor was used. The king commanded the most distinguished of the empire to attend and 36 guests were present. On the king's right sat Ambassador Choate and on his left Rear Admiral Cotton.

The king was dressed in the uniform of an admiral of the British fleet. On the conclusion of the dinner his majesty in a tactful speech expressed gratification at the acceptance of his invitation and cordially welcomed Rear Admiral Cotton and his squadron to England. He asserted that what he said expressed the sentiment not only of himself, but of the whole British people, and he proposed a toast to President Roosevelt, for whom his majesty said he entertained the highest consideration and admiration.

Ambassador Choate responded and in an eloquent speech echoed the wish of the king for the maintenance and promotion of more cordial relations between the two great English speaking nations.

The king further emphasized his gratification by writing at the table a message to President Roosevelt, in which he stated that it had given him the greatest pleasure to welcome the American squadron. King Edward's cordiality made a great impression on the American officers, who left the function convinced of the desire on the part of Great Britain to maintain the closest relations with the American republic.

New Mast Stepped on Shamrock III.

New York, July 10.—The big mast of the Shamrock III was lifted out of her and the mate to it, but 3½ feet taller, was stepped in its place. The new spar was one she had used in her early trials at Weymouth, Eng., and will give an opportunity for greater sail spread, which Designer Fife evidently desires after watching the new boat's trials in the calm weather that has prevailed off Sandy Hook most of the time for the last 10 days. Both Shamrocks will be taken into drydock and cleaned and the underbody of the challenger repainted. The tuning up process will be resumed on Monday and will involve daily trials between the Shamrock I and the Shamrock III until Sir Thomas and Mr. Fife are satisfied that the challenger cannot be improved.

Convention of Christian Endeavor.

Denver, July 10.—The twenty-first annual meeting of the United Society of Christian Endeavor opened here. The attendance at the opening session, though taxing the capacity of the immense tent, which had been provided for the occasion, did not include as many delegates as had been expected on account of delayed trains. The opening of the convention was preceded by the annual business meeting of the Christian Endeavor corporation, at which the officers for the ensuing year were elected and reports of officers submitted.

Smelters Still Idle.

Denver, July 10.—The American Smelting and Refining company announced that the Globe Smelter would be reopened, but no men applied for work and the company was unable to resume operations. The strikers are orderly, but strong guards are maintained at both the Globe and Grant smelters.

For 40 years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

HEALTH BOARD BREAKS RECORD

Business Methods Introduced in Handling the Smallpox Cases In This City.

STRICT ECONOMY PRACTICED

The Afflicted Ones Were Cared for in a Most Satisfactory Manner at a Cost of $390.16.

FEW OTHER MINOR MATTERS

At the meting of the East Liverpool board of health held at 4:30 yesterday afternoon reports were submitted along with the expenses involved in the care of the six cases of smallpox with which the board has been wrestling for several weeks. The department has made a record which is perhaps unparalleled in any community of the state and one which reflects credit upon the board and its officers.

There were six cases in all, and they are now out of danger and will be turned loose next Monday. The disease first made its appearance in the extreme East End of the city, and the action of Health Officer C. B. Ogden was prompt. He and Sanitary Policeman Burgess placed a rigid quarantine upon the premises, and though several parties who had been exposed and later contracted the disease had to be looked after, they were residents of the same community and were easily isolated.

The department not only furnished medical attention and maintained a guard throughout the entire epidemic, but paid every cent of the living expenses of the six patients. The many items of expense were compiled by Clerk J. T. Herbert just previous to the meeting and footed up exactly $390.16, something which has never been equaled anywhere. As near as it was possible the account included whatever provisions were required to last the quarantined ones until their release next Monday. The groceries, meat and produce were all ordered beforehand, and the bills included in the above amount. The record is one that other small pox infested communities would do well to investigate as a matter of economy.

Members Haines, Harris and Mowen were present with Health Officer Ogden and Clerk Herbert, and the session was a brief one.

Clerk Herbert reported that the notices to abate nuisances had been served on the Burfords, and that the parties were complying.

Dr. Ogden stated he had received the list of names of parties who were hitched onto the storm water sewers along Tanyard run. Mr. Burgess had secured the names and turned them over to him. They were now in the hands of the board of public service. The report of Health Officer Ogden was read, and is as follows: Number of births during the month—males, 16; females, 11. Number of deaths during the month—males, 8; females, 7.

A large number of bills, including the small pox expenses, were referred to the city auditor for payment, and the clerk reported having issued 20 licenses to milk dealers doing business in the city. Mr. Herbert asked to be enlightened as to how far the resolution on this subject could be made to apply. Several restaurant keepers had visited him, and desired to know whether they were to be included in the list of those to take out a license.

The members thought that the regulation would certainly include the restaurant man, since the purpose of the regulation was not to obtain revenue, but rather as a sanitary restriction. Every one bringing or having milk sent to town to sell comes under the provisions of the resolution, and the clerk was so instructed.

It is probable that by the time the next meeting is held the question of regulating the meat business of the city from a sanitary standpoint will be ready for action. Mr. Harris broached the subject at the meeting yesterday, and the members took kindly to the suggestion.

Dr. Mowen had something to say on the garbage question but it was handled very gingerly. It appears the members are fearful of the problem, and are determined to have something tangible to present when they do take action.

After the meeting Dr. Ogden related his experience while on a visit to the smallpox district near Hammondsville. He stated that little precaution was being taken to prevent a spread of the disease, and that the cases were exposed to an extent that made the situation nothing short of alarming. He told the health authorities of Hammondsville that unless the restrictions were made more rigid East Liverpool would put up the bars against them very quickly. He obtained a promise that they would alter their present plans.

HORSE STOLEN

From Farmer Living Near This City. Went Toward the County Seat.

Lisbon, July 11.—(Special.)—A valuable mare was stolen last night from the stable of William McPherson, living between West Point and East Liverpool. The theft is supposed to have been committed about midnight, as some neighbors were aroused shortly after that time by the barking of dogs and saw two men driving toward Lisbon in a buggy and leading a horse behind. They were tracked this way for some distance.

The stolen horse is described as a brown animal of stocky build, weighing between 1,200 and 1,500 pounds, with dark, heavy mane and tail.

MAYOR TOM IS FOR MAYOR SAM

Jones of Toledo For Governor. Zimmerman Is Getting All the Goods.

COL. KILBOURNE TALKS

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, July 11.—Prominent Democrats are declaring for John L. Zimmerman, of Springfield, for the Democratic nomination for governor. Chairman W. J. Frey, of Findlay, who all along has been counted a Johnson henchman, has created much surprise by coming out for Zimmerman. He is at the head of the state central committee. He says he is pleased with Zimmerman's announcement and that he is an old-time Democrat, stands upon the platform of true Jacksonian principles and belongs to no faction. He thinks he would make an ideal governor.

Colonel James Kilbourne, who was the standard bearer of the Democracy two years ago, in speaking of Zimmerman said: "Mr. Zimmerman is a gentleman, a thorough going Democrat, and would make an active and efficient canvass, and if elected will make a most excellent governor."

Tom Johnson refused to commit himself on the Zimmerman candidacy. Tom does not seem to favor the Columbiana county man in politics. It is now reported that he will insist that Sam Jones, the golden rule mayor of Toledo, the man without a party, be made the Democratic candidate for senator. If this is true he has cast aside Hon. John H. Clarke, of Cleveland, a native of Lisbon, whom he seemed to favor. The other Columbiana county man whom Tom does not like is Uncle Mark.

Colonel Curtis V. Hard, of Wooster, commander of the Eighth Ohio regiment during the Spanish war, has been chosen chief of staff to Grand Marshal Major General Adna R. Chaffee, for the parade to be given in Detroit on the occasion of the first reunion of the Society of the Army of Santiago. General Charles Dick has been made an aide.

The auditing committee of the Ohio Mine Workers have completed their examination of the books of the officials of the organization. Their report will show the membership to be about 34,000 and funds on hand about $60,000. This is the largest sum that has been in the treasury in the history of the union.

IN PROBATE COURT

Lisbon, July 11. — (Special.) — George Ruffner has been appointed guardian of Lena Ruffner, a 14-year-old girl of Knox township.

L. H. Brickman appeared in court yesterday and asked that an administrator be appointed for the estate of the late Jacob Wilhelm, of Fairfield township, and the court has decided that his wife be cited to appear and either take or renounce administration.

BOMB SHELL WAS HURLED BY EXAMINER MACKENZIE

Illegal Practices Must Cease at Once.

Code's Intricacies Explained.

Hon. P. A. MacKenzie, special examiner of the bureau of public accounting of the auditor of state's department, who arrived in the city yesterday morning for the purpose of inaugurating a uniform system of accounting among the officials of every department in the city, imparted knowledge last evening in official circles that will result in a complete transformation in the manner of conducting municipal business.

Had the distinguished visitor discharged a Krupp cannon in the midst of the officials the shock would have been incomparable to that produced by his most pointed epithets. Among the auditors were Mayor Weaver, Treasurer Horton, Auditor Davidson, Solicitor Davidson and the members of the board of public service. When he had completed his explanation of how the city should be run every official in his presence realized for the first time how dense they were on municipal affairs and such squirming and fidgeting as was noticeable among them at the conclusion of his remarks was never before witnessed in this city.

Having been an ardent student of law for years, and having had a schooling among the ablest lawyers of the state on the code, Mr. MacKenzie can well be called a judge of the great book and his suggestions concerning any section of it can be relied upon with unquestionable safety. He stated several times that it was not his intention to pose as a "know it all," instead he was simply tendering advice on matters which he thought were not fully understood by the officials.

As a result of his explanations the employes of the city will receive no money this evening. Auditor Davidson had designated today as the time for payment of all bills, but it did not take him long to change his mind after the conversation with Mr. MacKenzie. The gentleman told him that inasmuch as council had passed no ordinance appropriating the money that it would be not only unlawful to do so, but extremely dangerous for both himself and the treasurer.

"Do you know, gentlemen," said he to the auditor and treasurer, "that you and your bondsmen could be held liable for every penny so expended. It is a serious affair. Without an appropriation made by council not one penny can be spent. If you have been paying out money without first securing council's consent you would certainly be up against a strong proposition if some one wished to push it.

"It is the duty of every board and all other officials who have bills of the city under their jurisdiction to make application to council for the appropriation. If they get it, they are then empowered to order the payment and under no other circumstances can the money be distributed. You have a 10 mill levy and within its limit council is all powerful. Every penny of it is under its control and can be spent only as it sees fit."

The members of council are joyous today over one bit of information gained from Mr. MacKenzie. Since taking their seats they have been laboring under the false impression that they were simply figure heads. He has shown them wherein they are the only body of power in the city; that without their sanction municipal business would be absolutely worthless. It was exactly what they have been longing for and did not know they possessed it.

"Gentlemen," said Mr. MacKenzie "in a sense you are invested with the power to carry on the entire business of the city. However, you must work in conjunction with the several boards. As a matter of fact, you are in a position similar to that of the king and parliament of England. The king can declare war, but little good does that do if parliament does not appropriate the money. Parliament can appropriate the money, but if the king objects to the war, there will be none. So it

LAD FATALLY HURT BY HORSE'S HOOF

YOUNG HARRY CASKEY NOW AT DEATH'S DOOR.

Had Taken the Animal to Pasture When It Turned and Dealt Vicious Blow.

Kensington, July 11.—(Special)—Harry Caskey, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Caskey, of this place, was kicked by a horse yesterday afternoon and probably fatally injured. The lad had taken the animal to pasture and when he released his hold the horse turned and kicked him viciously. One of the hoofs struck the boy on the head and he was found some time later in an unconscious condition.

Dr. Crawford rendered medical attention and later he, with physicians from Alliance, examined the wound. Young Caskey is better today but the chances for his recovery are slight.

A WORTHY CASE

Mayor Weaver Engaged in Charity Work Which is Most Commendable.

Mayor W. A. Weaver has interested himself in the case of little Tressa Brighouse, who has been afflicted for several years with a complication of diseases, and who has not the means with which to take a course of treatment in a hospital.

The mayor satisfied himself that the case is in every way a worthy one, as is testified to by her physician, Dr. W. M. Calhoun, and funds are now being solicited by his honor for her benefit.

Sweet Pea Social.

The Woman's Exchange of the First Christian church is making extensive preparations for a "Sweet Pea" social to be given in the church next Tuesday evening. The decorations will, as far as possible, be of these popular flowers, and it is the request of the society that the ladies donate as many of them as they are able to procure. A program, combining both musical and literary numbers, will also be a feature of the evening's entertainment.

HOPE STRONGER FOR RECOVERY

Of Pope Leo—Functions Almost Normal But Physicians Are Alert.

ATE A HEARTY DINNER

All Eyes Directed to Movements from the Vatican—Patient Appears to Experience Many Changes Within Short Space of Time.

Rome, July 11.—(Special.)—The pope was sleeping at 12:20 this morning and his condition at that time seemed to be unchanged from yesterday. He slept until 2:10 and awoke much refreshed. He grew restless a short time after and the physician found it necessary to administer a dose of chloral.

This morning the opening of the windows of the papal chamber was witnessed by the usual throng of watchers, most of them newspaper correspondents, who were on the piazza of St. Peter's. From what has leaked out from the sick room it appears that no great change had taken place in the patient up to that hour, 6:20 a. m.

After the second operation, for removal of serum from pleura, the pope spent a quiet and painless day with a normal temperature. An examination made after the operation did not reveal any re-gathering of the serum in the pleura cavity. It cannot be said, however, that the operation improved the pope's chances of recovery.

The last bulletin issued from the sick room this afternoon by the physicians contained the information that hope of the pope's recovery had again risen. He shows a great deal of restlessness. His pulse and respiration are near to normal, but a derangement of the kidneys is causing the physicians alarm. The pleuric condition remains unchanged.

The pope took the midday meal with evident relish, remarking that he felt better. He is now enjoying a peaceful sleep.

ORE TRAIN WAS TWICE WRECKED

CABOOSE WRECKED AT NEWBURG AND TWO WERE HURT.

Later Fifteen Cars Piled Up at Salem, Tearing Up 600 Feet of Track.

Salem, July 11.—(Special.)—A freight train made up of 21 ore cars was wrecked in the yards here at 8:30 o'clock last night. Fifteen of the cars were derailed and badly damaged but the crew escaped injury. The west bound track was torn up for a distance of 600 feet and the workmen who were repairing it had not finished at noon today. The east bound track was blockaded from the time of the wreck until after midnight.

The same train also met with a mishap at Newburg. A C. & P. freight train crashed into the caboose, painfully injuring the conductor and flagman. The injured men were replaced and the train proceeded east. One mile west of this city a broken flange on the second car from the engine jumped the track and bumped along on the ties until it struck a switch frog, when the mix-up resulted.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE FROM HORRIBLE DEATH

SMALL WEST END BOY SAVED BY OFFICERS.

Crawled Into Sewer and Almost Went Out of Sight—Crowd Excited.

In the presence of nearly 200 excited people, little Harry Ankrim, aged 5 years, of the West End, had a thrilling experience and a very narrow escape from death at an early hour last evening. The accident that came so near taking the life of the child was a most peculiar one and to Officers Mahoney and Aufderheide is due the credit for saving him.

The youngster was playing around the mouth of a 12-inch sewer on Ridgeway avenue with a number of other children when, for some unknown reason, he placed both feet in the opening and before he could catch himself had dropped almost out of sight. By a desperate effort he succeeded in getting a hold on the top of the pipe and just as his hold was relaxing a man who heard his loud screams arrived on the scene and grabbed him by the shoulders. In a few minutes a big crowd assembled and all tried but in vain to pull the boy from his precarious position.

Officers Mahoney and Aufderheide were summoned and immediately realizing the situation set to work with picks and shovels and soon had the pipe free from the earth which surrounded it. They then attempted to pull the child out but could not and were compelled to break the pipe. Had the little fellow fallen to the bottom of the pipe he would have died in a very few minutes from suffocation.

LAWYERS WILL LOAF

Their Annual Vacation Will Begin Monday, August 3, and Last For Two Weeks.

A meeting of the Southern Columbiana Bar association was held last evening in the office of W. B. Hill. Mr. Hill presided in the absence of President P. M. Smith, of Wellsville. There were a number of matters of minor importance considered but that in which the members were mostly interested was the time of the annual vacation. After considerable discussion it was decided to take two weeks, commencing on Monday, August 3.

ORGANIZED LABOR VOTING CONTEST

Has Been On the Square and Will Surely Remain So to the End.

PRIZES ARE WORTH HAVING

Even the extreme hot weather that has prevailed for the past week and which will in all probability continue to the end of the battle, has not affected the popular voting contest being conducted by the News Review. The result will be a certain test of popularity and the winning of a prize will be a high compliment to the lucky ones.

The scramble for coupons is a lively one. The News Review has frequently been asked if papers were purchased in large numbers whether a reduction could not be made. To all such inquiries there has been and will be but one answer in an emphatic "No." The contest is on the square and will be kept so. You can't get coupons from the News Review office unless you buy the paper and pay full price for it.

RETURN GAME

Will Be Played With the New Castle Elks By the Local Team.

The Elks' base ball club will leave this city Tuesday morning for New Castle, where a return game will be played in the afternoon of that day. The team will be accompanied by a large number of rooters who will spur the players to victory. The East Liverpool people will return on Wednesday. The New Castle lodge of Elks is making elaborate preparations for the reception and entertainment of the visitors from this city, and a delightful time is anticipated.

RULES WERE NOT ADOPTED

By the Board of Public Service at a Meeting Last Evening.

NO IMPORTANT BUSINESS

Came Up For Attention But Rouine Matters Got Some Discussion.

PRISONERS WILL HAVE WORK

In their new and handsomely furnished apartment at the city water works office the members of the board of public service held a lengthy session last evening. Though no business of particular importance was taken up, many questions demanding attention were disposed of and the board now feels in fair shape to battle with any complications that may arise.

Present at the meeting, besides every member of the board, were City Engineer Kelly, City Solicitor Davidson, City Auditor Davidson, Supt. Morley, Street Commissioner Dickey and a number of other interested citizens. They contributed to the inspiration of the meeting and in several instances assisted materially with the business.

President Grafton, of the board of public safety, arrived at the meeting late in the evening and stated that he had been delegated to confer with the board concerning the determination of Mayor Weaver to work prisoners upon the streets. He asked that the board give him an answer as to its opinion of the idea and whether or not it would assist in carrying out the plan. After considerable discussion the board advised Mr. Grafton that it would in all cases provide work for the prisoners if the mayor would furnish a policeman to watch them, and that if it was simply the plan of the chief executive to get rid of the hobo prisoners that work would be furnished for them.

The city engineer and street commissioner were asked if they would like to work the prisoners and both stated that they would not. The argument offered by them was that the men would not do the work well and would require more watching than they were worth.

Having been refused permission to tear up the streets for plumbing purposes because he had failed to repair a certain piece of work on Sixth street, a representative of the Milligan Hardware company appeared before the board and requested that he be reinstated. He promised to live up to the rules governing the breaking of sidewalks and it was finally decided to allow him to continue work.

The street commissioner requested that something be done in regard to the water course on Walnut street. He stated that the C. & P. railway employes have so altered the course that it floods the street and makes it almost impassable. The clerk was ordered to notify the proper officials of the company to meet with the board at the next meeting.

Postmaster Surles wanted the board to allow the Grand Army the privilege of placing bill boards on the streets to advertise the carnival. He was told that it was a violation of the rules of the board and that it would be impossible to grant the request. He was, however, told that the company could decorate the streets and that it could advertise with streamers providing they are kept at a certain height from the ground.

The Harrison heirs were ordered to lay a sidewalk in front of their property on West Fourth street. If they do not comply with the demand the

IF YOU HAVE PAIN IN YOUR BACK

Do Not Be Deceived. You have Kidney Trouble, and You Do Not Need a Physician to Tell You So.

Pain in the back is an almost infallible sign of kidney disease; a surer sign is the condition of your urine. If you have a pain in the back, then look to the condition of your urine. It is easily done. Take a glass or tumbler and fill it with urine; after it has stood 24 hours, if it has a sediment, if it is milky or cloudy, if it is pale or discolored, stringy or ropy, your kidneys and bladder are in a dangerous condition and need immediate attention, or the consequences may prove fatal. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the one medicine that really cures all diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood, rheumatism, dyspepsia and chronic constipation, and it will take you but a short trial to convince yourself of its wonderful curative power.

G. F. Sammer of No. 409 Tioga street, Syracuse, N. Y., in a recent letter says:

"I was afflicted for years with severe pains in my back and kidneys. I tried many doctors and many medicines, but got no relief. I bought a bottle of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and it has entirely cured me."

It is for sale by all druggists in the Now 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles—less than a cent a dose.

HARVEST OF DEATH

Intense Heat Throughout the Country Results Fatally to Many.

DOZEN DIE IN GREATER NEW YORK

Hottest Weather in Two Years—Temperature Almost Unendurable and Prostrations Numerous — Evening Brings but Little Relief.

Pittsburg, July 10.—Instead of the cooling showers predicted for this section yesterday by the weather man Pittsburg residents experienced the hottest day so far this summer. The minimum temperature was 92 degrees and was registered at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. From this hour till 6 o'clock the mercury was stationary and the intense heat of the day caused people to swelter till long after midnight. The long list of fatalities caused by the torrid weather during the past week was increased yesterday by the deaths of seven persons from heat and the prostration of four others.

The Dead.

Frank Menet, aged 40, a mill worker of Duquesne.

Jane Humphrey, 8 months old, 7131 Idlewild street.

Mrs. Winifred Carr, aged 53, of South Twenty-second street, died at South Side hospital.

George Schiller, aged 83, died of heart disease, aggravated by the heat, at his home, rear 1731 Fifth avenue.

Zella L. Kimmel, 7 months old, 121 Edmond street.

George Norris, aged 22, of Wilmerding, went bathing in Monongahela river to escape the heat and was drowned.

Frank Meszaro, aged 30, a laborer, found dead in the cellar of his boarding house.

New York, July 10.—There were six deaths from heat in New York, six in Brooklyn, and fully two score of prostrations. It was the hottest day in two years, or since July 2, 1901, which was the hottest day in the hottest month since the local weather bureau opened in 1871. The official record is that day, two years ago, was 99 degrees. Yesterday it ran to 94 degrees at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Down the streets humanity suffered terrible. In the tenements the heat seemed to be almost unendurable. Little children suffered extremely. This state of affairs continued from early morning until late at night. In the evening the scorched inhabitants sought relief on roofs, at the nearby beaches, or by taking car rides.

Philadelphia, July 10.—This vicinity experienced the hottest weather in two years, the maximum temperature registering 96 degrees at 5 p. m. One death, one person rendered insane and a dozen prostrations, all due to the hot weather, were reported by the police.

Chicago, July 10.—Two deaths and 10 prostrations resulted from the heat. A heavy thunderstorm sent the temperature down from 90 to 72. During the storm a number of buildings in the business portion of the city were flooded by the heavy rainfall.

Springfield, Ill., July 10.—Thursday broke the heat record for the year. The government thermometer on top of the federal building recorded a maximum of 97 degrees, while on the streets thermometers ranged all the way from 98 to 104 in the shade.

Cincinnati, July 10.—Thursday was the hottest day of the year, the thermometer registering 95 degrees. Twelve prostrations were reported, three of the victims being in a serious condition.

St. Louis, July 10.—The excessive heat continues here, the weather bureau reporting 97 degrees. A number of prostrations occurred, but no case has resulted fatally.

Lincoln, Neb., July 10.—The mercury stood at 99 degrees Thursday. This was the hottest of the year. One man was prostrated by the heat and may die.

Burlington, Ia., July 10.—The thermometer has stood at 100 degrees for two days. There has been one prostration from the heat.

FOUR FATALITIES AT CROSSING

Wagon Containing Nine People Struck by Pennsylvania Train Near Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, July 10.—A westbound Pennsylvania train struck a wagon containing nine people at a crossing eight miles east of this city, killing four, fatally injuring three and seriously injuring two of the occupants of the wagon.

Robert Copenhagen, with his wife and two children, aged 8 and 2 years respectively, were going from Red Comb junction to Madisonville. A daughter of a neighbor and four of their boarders accompanied them. They did not observe the train which was coming at high speed. When the engineer saw them he blew his whistle, but it was too late to reverse or stop the train. The mules on hearing the whistle stopped and could not be moved. The animals were across the track and escaped unhurt, while the wagon was wrecked and all the occupants either killed or injured. The train brought the victims to this city.

Wheat Yield of New South Wales.

New Rural Routes.

Washington, July 10.—Two rural free delivery routes will be established July 15 at Orville, Wayne county, O. The routes cover an area of 48 square miles, containing a population of 1,185. On Aug. 1 an additional route will be established at Kane, McKean county, Pa. The route covers an area of 12 square miles, containing a population of 422.

Six Years for Overissuing Stock.

Berlin, July 10.—The court at Duisburg, Rhenish Prussia, has sentenced former Company Director Terrinden, of Oberhausen, to six years' confinement in the penitentiary for overissuing stock and other offenses. Terrinden fled to the United States upon the discovery of his irregularities in the summer of 1901 and later was extradited.

Bids for New Court House.

Greensburg, Pa., July 10.—The bids for the new court house were opened. Miller & Sons, of Pittsburg, are the lowest bidders. Their bid was for granite, $846,000, and for stone, $760,000. It is likely they will be awarded the contract.

Mrs. Blaine Dying.

Augusta, Me., July 10.—There is little change in the condition of Mrs. James G. Blaine, her physicians saying that life is simply wearing away. The end may come suddenly or she may live several days.

Drank Wood Alcohol.

Sewickley, Pa., July 10.—Anne Foley, aged about 50 years, died from drinking wood alcohol at the residence of Mrs. T. W. Fitch, on Maple avenue, where she was employed as a domestic.

Pittsburger Drowned in Gull Lake.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 10.—Elmer McGibbney, aged 21, of Pittsburg, Pa., was drowned in Gull lake while swimming. McGibbney was an employe of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie railroad.

Vessel and Cargo Lost.

Portland, Me., July 10.—The total destruction of the steamship Heathford at Colombo, island of Ceylon, is reported. The Heathford had put into Colombo with her cargo of 30,000 half chests of tea on fire and both vessel and cargo were lost.

Naval Deserter Arrested.

"A TALE OF TWO CITIES"

Leaving Detroit at 4 in the afternoon, aboard the palatial steamer "Eastern States" or "Western States" of the famous Detroit & Buffalo Line, passengers are afforded an interesting and panoramic view of Detroit's harbor, teeming with the commerce of the Great Lakes, and bordered with its countless evidences of manufacturing wealth and activity. Passing down the river, Fort Wayne appears, bristling with its warlike aspects, and crowned with "old glory" gently curling in the breeze, seemingly waving adieus to passing travelers.

Again, we are among scenes of simple country life—beautiful farms and artistic rural homes dotting the banks on either side and the verdant islands mid-stream—and, as we float peacefully out upon the bosom of "Old Erie," one feels that the cares of life have lagged behind.

Now the varying course of the ship from time to time brings to view the silvery moon and its rippling reflections in the vessel's wake, while the strains of some dreamy waltz, enchantingly rendered, soothes the ear, and cool, invigorating breezes fan the brow as the traveler is borne along, almost regretting that nature demands its sweet repose.

It is sunrise and we are soon to end our journey. As we pass the breakwater the harbor seems stretching out to welcome our noble vessel, and the tourist, to Buffalo's hospitable environs. Once again we are among scenes of activity, but so refreshed that our journey seems like a fairy's legend.

DELEHANTY'S BODY IDENTIFIED

Remains of Famous Ball Player Are Shipped to Washington—Death Being Investigated.

Buffalo, July 10.—The body found in the river below the falls was identified at Drummondville as that of Ed Delehanty, the famous outfielder of the Washington American league team.

The body was mangled. One leg was torn off, presumably by the propeller of the Maid of the Mist, near whose landing the body was found. M. A. Green, a stockholder in the Washington team, identified the body by the teeth, two crippled fingers and the clothing. The body was shipped to Washington.

Mr. Green identified the luggage left by Delehanty on the train at the bridge last Thursday night when he was put off. In it was a pass to the Washington grounds made out to Mrs. Delehanty. Delehanty's effects have been sent to his wife by the Pullman people.

Frank Delehanty, of the Syracuse team, and E. J. McGuire, a brother-in-law from Cleveland, are here investigating the death of the player. They do not believe that Delehanty committed suicide or that he had been on a spree in Detroit.

Raid on Betting Ring.

Chicago, July 10.—Shortly after the sixth race at Washington park a number of constables, who had been held at bay all afternoon, were admitted to the betting ring. Seven bookmakers for whom the constables had warrants were placed under arrest on a charge of gambling. The men arrested were: James O'Leary, Joseph Yeager, Fred Pesch, Marcus Cartwright, M. Riordan, Bernard J. (Kid) Weller and Samuel Summerfield. They gave bonds of $200 each pending a hearing. The raid was made at the instance of a local attorney. The move is said to have been brought about by several horse owners who were ruled off the track recently at Highland park.

Poisoned by Eating Ice Cream.

DECLARATION OF KING EDWARD

Ministers Heartily Approve of Monroe Doctrine—American Officers Royally Welcomed at Buckingham Palace. Toast Drank to President Roosevelt.

London, July 10.—In formally welcoming the American naval officers to England King Edward took occasion to make an emphatic declaration in favor of closer relations between the United States and Great Britain. His majesty did not speak of an alliance or even an understanding, but the impression was clear from his remarks that he desired that the two nations move together in the interests of the peace of the world. Some of the king's ministers also took advantage of the occasion to impress on the American officers their cordial approval of the Monroe doctrine and their desire that it be supported by American influences in a way which would place it above all criticism.

The royal welcome was extended to the American officers at Buckingham palace, where, at 8:30 p. m., commenced the dinner given in their honor by King Edward. The table was decorated by Marechal Neil roses and gold plate brought from Windsor was used. The king commanded the most distinguished of the empire to attend and 36 guests were present. On the king's right sat Ambassador Choate and on his left Rear Admiral Cotton.

The king was dressed in the uniform of an admiral of the British fleet. On the conclusion of the dinner his majesty in a tactful speech expressed gratification at the acceptance of his invitation and cordially welcomed Rear Admiral Cotton and his squadron to England. He asserted that what he said expressed the sentiment not only of himself, but of the whole British people, and he proposed a toast to President Roosevelt, for whom his majesty said he entertained the highest consideration and admiration.

Ambassador Choate responded and in an eloquent speech echoed the wish of the king for the maintenance and promotion of more cordial relations between the two great English speaking nations.

The king further emphasized his gratification by writing at the table a message to President Roosevelt, in which he stated that it had given him the greatest pleasure to welcome the American squadron. King Edward's cordiality made a great impression on the American officers, who left the function convinced of the desire on the part of Great Britain to maintain the closest relations with the American republic.

New Mast Stepped on Shamrock III.

New York, July 10.—The big mast of the Shamrock III was lifted out of her and the mate to it, but 3½ feet taller, was stepped in its place. The new spar was one she had used in her early trials at Weymouth, Eng., and will give an opportunity for greater sail spread, which Designer Fife evidently desires after watching the new boat's trials in the calm weather that has prevailed off Sandy Hook most of the time for the last 10 days. Both Shamrocks will be taken into drydock and cleaned and the underbody of the challenger repainted. The tuning up process will be resumed on Monday and will involve daily trials between the Shamrock I and the Shamrock III until Sir Thomas and Mr. Fife are satisfied that the challenger cannot be improved.

Convention of Christian Endeavor.

Denver, July 10.—The twenty-first annual meeting of the United Society of Christian Endeavor opened here. The attendance at the opening session, though taxing the capacity of the immense tent, which had been provided for the occasion, did not include as many delegates as had been expected on account of delayed trains. The opening of the convention was preceded by the annual business meeting of the Christian Endeavor corporation, at which the officers for the ensuing year were elected and reports of officers submitted.

Smelters Still Idle.

Denver, July 10.—The American Smelting and Refining company announced that the Globe Smelter would be reopened, but no men applied for work and the company was unable to resume operations. The strikers are orderly, but strong guards are maintained at both the Globe and Grant smelters.

For 40 years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.
